U. S. CONTROL IN THE PHILIPPINES OF GREAT VALUE

Natives Unable to Maintain Order and Develop Economic Resources of the Islands.

STRIFE AMONG THE TRIBES

Savage Natives a Constant Menace to the Civilized and Peace Loving Inhabitants.

PROBLEM AN IMPORTANT ONE

BY OBSERVER.

After lying practically dormant since McKinley's second election the question of what is to be done with the Philippines has again come to the front.

This is entirely due to the Democrats. From the beginning those in favor of getting rid of the Philippines have had the support of the Democrats. So far has this extended that Manuel Quezon, one of the Philippine delegates to the United States congress, succeeded in having the Democratic national convention unseat six Democratic delegates who had come from the Philippines to Baltimore. His argument was that allowing these men to keep their seats was equivalent to the recognition of the Philippines as a political part of the United States.

At the same time Mr. Jones of the house of representatives has introduced a bill giving the Philippines qualified independence from July 4, 1913, and real independence from July 4, 1921. This bill has been favorably reported.

Intent of President McKinley.

No one imbued with the spirit of representative government could read Mr. McKinley's proclamation establishing the government of the Philippines without being impressed with its highness of purpose and general spirit of fairness and justice.

No government, on the whole, could have striven more earnestly, more faithfuly, to carry out the principles of that proclamation and to live up to the broad principles founded upon human rights, regardless of race or religion, than has the American government of the Philippine islands.

Even when the islands were in the midst of the turmoil due to the insurrection with all its attendant disorders, efforts were made to give the people a share in their own government. Municipal and provincial governments were established. Those who had but recently laid down the arms they had borne against the United States were given full rights. Even an assembly was promised. From the beginning the commission has had native members.

Government of the Islands.

In course of time the assembly was given. The people without hindrance elected their own representatives. The Philippines as a consequence have now a bi-cameral government, the lower house being made up of elected representatives, the upper house appointed, but containing a number of natives.

In the beginning it was to be expected that there would be discontent. Insurgent troops were still in the field and later bands of Ladrones preyed on the country for some time after the insurrection was ended. Also in the beginning it was to be expected that the people would be suspicious of Americans and their intentions.

Even when the time came for the election of assemblymen it was to be expected that agitators would take advantage of conditions and seek to gain popular favor by claiming to be zealous advocates of the people and their rights. But why, with the continued granting of more privileges, why with a leniency carried to an extent that permitted the insurgent flag to be carried in processions and insurgent uniforms to be worn, why with Filipinos holding more and more of the offices, why with an unrestrained press, why with natives and native officials always supported to the detriment of Americans and American officials, why with every possible attempt being made to better the sanitary, social, and economic condition of the native regardless of the point of view or interests of the foreigner, white or yellow, why does the discontent instead of growing less grow stronger and stronger, and, even, as in the case of the former governor, Mandac, manifest itself in open insurrection?

Check Put on Independence.

Is it because we are preventing a strong homogeneous population united by ties of language, blood, and a fierce spirit of nationality, from obtaining that independence which must be so dear to such a people?

Are we, who always pose before the world as the champions of liberty and self-government, depriving by brute force another people of that very liberty and government, and this after they have twice taken up arms for it?

If we carefully and without prejudice examine the question and find this to be the case there can be but one just and honorable course—to give these people their independence as quickly as the government can be turned over to them.

Examining the population as to its homogeneity, we find it may be first divided into two parts—the savage tribes, constituting something over 1,000,000 and the Christian tribes, known as the Filipinos, of whom there are about 7,000,000.

Division of Savage Tribes.

Considering the savage tribes first, we may roughly divide them into, firstly, the head hunters of northern Luzon; secondly, the dwarf, curly headed, almost animal and black Negrito, scattered throughout the mountainous districts of the islands, and, thirdly, the piratical, slave owning, fanatical Mohammedan Moros, who inhabit the greater part of the southernmost islands.

Not only is there no community of interest among these three kinds of savages, but each kind is subdivided into different tribes, having different dialects, more or less dif-

LABOR FEDERATION ASSAILS VERDICT IMPRISONING 32

Chicago Organization Declares Dynamiters Were "Railroaded by a Fixed Jury."

ENDS IN STORMY SESSION

Fitzpatrick Asserts He Believes in Violence as He Pleads for the Resolutions.

CALL ALSO MADE ON OTHER BODIES

In the face of bitter protests by labor leaders and following a stormy session, the Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday adopted resolutions denouncing the recent Indianapolis verdict which found thirty-two men guilty of the dynamite conspiracy. The resolutions expressed the belief that the men were innocent.

This is the first official public expression by organized labor on the sentence pronounced by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson, and is made by the largest individual labor organization in the country.

The resolution declares the thirty-two men were "railroaded to the penitentiary" by a fixed jury and a biased judge on trumped up charges. It asserts they were persecuted and prosecuted by influence backed by the Erectors' association and the federal government.

Calls on Other Labor Bodies.

It calls on the officials of the Chicago federation to communicate with all other labor bodies and point out the stand taken by the local organization. It emphasizes the contention that Chicago labor men are loyal to the convicted men. A call is made on all organized labor to give financial and moral assistance both to the men in prison and to their wives and children.

The action was taken after Edwin R. Wright, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and several others made pleas against the adoption of the resolutions, declaring that more harm than good would be done by this means to organized labor and the prisoners. The speeches of President John Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Federation of Labor and E. N. Nockels, secretary and treasurer, favored the resolutions, which were carried amid loud cheers.

Only one vote was recorded against the measure. His "nay" was so low voiced that no one was able to identify the owner. Mr. Nockels refused to let a reporter look at the resolutions.

Resolutions Are Adopted.

But the resolutions, as nearly correct as could be gathered from the rapid reading by the secretary, are as follows:

Whereas, Thirty-two members of labor unions have been sent to a federal penitentiary by a partial judge and a prejudiced and fixed jury.

Whereas, The Erectors' association and the federal government are working hand in hand in an attempt to crush organized labor by railroading its leaders to prison.

Whereas, After persecuting and prosecuting these innocent men, they have succeeded in railroading thirty-two to prison.

Whereas, The steel trust and other trusts kill more men than ever were killed by organized labor in any of its difficulties; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Chicago Federation of Labor send this communication to all its affiliated unions, pointing out the facts in the resolutions, and declaring their loyalty to their fellow victims of a prejudiced press and class struggle, and calling on organized labor to help the imprisoned men and their families both morally and financially until they are freed.

Storm of Protest Arises.

The resolutions, after adoption, were referred to the executive board for further action. A long argument preceded the reading of the resolutions, members of a committee of three who were appointed to change the wording of the resolutions protesting against them being made public until they had been edited. The author of the resolutions, Samuel Gloverman, an avowed Socialist and a member of the Cigarmakers' union, local No. 15, made a plea in which he likened himself to Lincoln and declared that even if the spelling and punctuation were not all they should be, the "punch" was there.

Not until fellow unionists had argued for and against reading the resolutions for nearly an hour did the members learn what it was all about. Inquiring shouts of impatient men and women finally brought out the fact that they placed the Federation of Labor on record as believing in the innocence of the dynamiters. Then a wild demand resulted in their being read.

Immediately a storm of protest against their adoption was heard from the cooler heads.

Sees Blow to Labor.

"This will do incalculable harm and no good whatever to either the men in prison or to organized labor in general," shouted President Wright of the Illinois Federation of Labor. "Organized labor doesn't approve of the tactics of these men. In spite of all the resolutions you could ever pass condoning their acts and expressing your belief in their innocence, the rank and file will still refuse to believe in violence and the use of dynamite.

"The only thing to do is to send these resolutions back to the committee. You will make a mistake which can never be wiped out. It will go down in history against the Chicago Federation of Labor."

"These men are in prison and competent lawyers are trying to get them out," said Charles Wheeler, delegate of the Sheet Metal Workers' union. "Don't put anything in the way of these attorneys. Voting such a resolution would do this."

ROCKEFELLER, ILL, SEEN AT KEY WEST

Admits Identity Before Sailing, and Says He Is Bound for Honduras.

SILENT AS TO TESTIFYING

Key West, Fla., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—William Rockefeller, who last week accepted through his attorney a subpœna ordering him to appear before the Pujo investigating committee in Washington, and who was expected to present himself at least and claim ill health as an excuse for not taking the witness stand, is on his way to Honduras on a yacht, having sailed from here yesterday afternoon.

This time there is no doubt about the aged financier's whereabouts. When he arrived here yesterday on a special train which came from Jacksonville, he admitted his identity and named his destination.

He was a pretty sick looking man and took no visible pleasure in the fact he had outwitted all the sleuths of the government and had been calmly resting on Jekyl island, off the Georgia coast, while they were surrounding his various homes in the north and predicting his "capture" every hour or so.

Oil Man Admits Identity.

News of the special train, which had headed south from Jacksonville, reached here yesterday morning, and there were many persons waiting to meet it when it arrived. An aged, gray haired man, who looked feeble, was helped out of one of its parlor cars.

"Yes, I am Mr. Rockefeller," he said when addressed. When asked where he was going, he replied in a faint voice he was not on his way to Bermuda or to Cuba, as had been reported, but was going to Honduras for the sake of his health.

The man who helped Mr. Rockefeller from the car was a physician, who declined to disclose his identity. He asked the correspondents to be brief in their questioning of his patient, who, he said, was very ill.

Dodges Issue of Hearing.

"Are you going to Washington on Jan. 13 to testify before the Pujo committee, or to present the excuse of ill health?" Mr. Rockefeller was asked.

"I do not wish to say anything about that," he replied.

Soon after the Rockefeller party arrived here, a yacht which had anchored out in the harbor was seen to get in motion. Almost at the same time the steamer Halifax, for Havana, Cuba, got under way.

Since small boats had taken parties out to each, it was impossible to tell which craft the long missing witness had boarded. But the Halifax soon wirelessed back that he wasn't aboard, while the yacht refused to reply to messages.

Knows Nothing of Whereabouts.

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Dispatches from Washington received here tonight quote Representative Pujo of the investigating committee as being still ignorant of Mr. Rockefeller's whereabouts.

"Mr. William Rockefeller has been served to appear before the committee," said Mr. Pujo, "and he will be treated as any other witness, so far as we are concerned. His present movements are of no interest to us. I know nothing about the truth of the report that he has admitted his identity at Key West and has started on a yacht for Honduras.

"All I know is that he is expected to appear on Jan. 13 and either go on the stand as a witness or else present a valid excuse. Should he claim on that date that he is too ill to testify or fail to come to Washington the committee will decide just what action shall be taken. Until then we shall do nothing but wait."

Neither John A. Garver, Mr. Rockefeller's attorney, who accepted service of the subpœna for him, nor Dr. Walter Chappell, his physician, would say anything tonight about the financier's trip, nor about the manner in which he fooled those who had been looking for him.

His homes hereabouts are unwatched, the government process servers having been withdrawn Friday night.

BISHOP TELLS OF 'UPBRINGING' OF UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT.

Dr. George E. Vincent Heard Good Literature Read by Mother as He Played Games with Blocks.

A few hints on the "bringing up" of the president of the University of Minnesota were given last night in an address at South Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal church.

The speaker was Bishop John H. Vincent and "the boy" was George E. Vincent, the son of the bishop and the president of the Minnesota university.

"I used to bring home as many as 400 blocks to my son," the bishop said. "While he played with them his mother read aloud from Dickens, Thackeray, and other standard authors. My boy would look up from his play and would ask, 'What is that, mother, you are reading?' She would explain and in that way he learned very early an appreciation of good literature while in the midst of his play.

"I brought home a blackboard and put it beside our best furniture and it didn't hurt the furniture a bit. There is such a thing as the conservation of furniture and the destruction of life.

"The table affords one of the best opportunities for education. The table is not a trough for pigs or for people to eat from. Conversation is more important than the menu. Funny story telling and general good fellowship is conducive to digestion and to family discipline."

SCHUETTLER ASSERTS NEGRO IS MURDERER OF LOGUE.

Mysterious "Jack" Declared by Assistant Chief to Be Near Confession of Slaying Jeweler.

Assistant Chief Schuettler said last night he felt certain the mysterious negro who goes by the name of "Jack," was the murderer of J. H. Logue, the diamond broker.

Jack sold diamonds and was found to have been in the McVicker's Theater building at the time the murder was committed. Chief Schuettler said that his men had practically succeeded in breaking down the alibi of "Jack" and expected a confession from him soon.

He is being kept in an outlying station and the "silent third degree," which resulted in the confession of Charles Conway to murdering Sophia Singer, is being administered.

Schuettler refused to give the name of the negro.

"Tomorrow," he said, "I'll be able to give you his name."

GEORGE ADE HAS A BAD FALL AND LOSES CONSCIOUSNESS.

Physician Fears Humorist Has Sustained Internal Injuries by Drop on Slippery Sidewalk at Lafayette, Ind.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—George Ade, while walking on a slippery sidewalk today, fell and was rendered insensible. Passersby picked him up, and carried him into a drug store. A physician was summoned and restored the humorist to consciousness.

Mr. Ade was taken in an ambulance to the home of Judge Henry Vinton, where he has been visiting. He is severely bruised and lamed by his fall, and it is feared may have sustained internal injuries. Physicians tonight reported him as being somewhat improved.

Mr. Ade has been here several days and had intended leaving for home tomorrow.

HOLD CHICAGOAN AT WHITE HOUSE

Anthony Hunt, Landscape Artist, Proves Victim of Nervous Strain.

IN EAST ON REST TRIP.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—An alleged spirit message, inviting him to come to see President Taft to receive an appointment as ambassador to Great Britain, resulted in Anthony Hunt of Chicago being locked up by the police on suspicion of insanity.

Mr. Hunt, who is about 30 years of age and well educated, is reputed to be wealthy and socially prominent in Chicago. He said he lived in Winnetka, a fashionable suburb of the Illinois metropolis.

Upon being arrested he communicated with Francis W. Taylor, private secretary to Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, who obtained his release.

Escapes from Hospital.

Mr. Hunt said he had been on a trip through the east, having spent some time in New York, where he attended the funeral of Whitelaw Reid, whose death created a vacancy in the post of ambassador to Great Britain.

He arrived in Washington last night and registered at the New Willard hotel. In the hotel lobby he met Mr. Taylor, an old friend from Chicago, and during the conversation Mr. Hunt was overcome with dizziness. A physician was called and he was taken to Garfield hospital, from which he escaped this morning.

The police were notified to be on the lookout for him, his friends fearing that he was temporarily demented.

Arrested at White House.

The White House police had received this notice only a few minutes before Hunt appeared. He produced his card and declared that he had received an invitation through a spirit message from the president to call this evening to be tendered the appointment of ambassador to London.

The policeman, having little faith in spirit messages, escorted the visitor to the police station, where he was later looked after by Mr. Taylor.

HUNT WAS ON REST TRIP.

Anthony Hunt retired as a landscape architect some time ago and left for a rest trip. His brother-in-law, Dr. R. C. Hamill of Winnetka, said last evening that Hunt had been suffering from nervous trouble.

"I do not think this is anything more permanent than the trouble that frequently follows a nervous breakdown," he said. "He has never given indication of more serious disorder."

DROPS DEAD FROM EXCITEMENT FOLLOWING TALK IN CHURCH.

O. C. Blackmer, Native of Chicago, Fatally Stricken After Address on "The Progress of Truth in World."

O. C. Blackmer, for forty years a resident of Oak Park, yesterday dropped dead of heart disease at the steps of his house at 311 North Grove avenue, while he was returning from Sunday school at the First Congregational church.

Mr. Blackmer had become enthusiastic in making an address to the Sunday school on "The Progress of Truth in the World," and his excitement, the family physician said, caused his death. His sons, Ernest and Percy, were with him when he was stricken.

Mr. Blackmer was born in Chicago in 1828. He was president and owner of the Blackmer Music Publishing company until he retired from business twenty years ago. The funeral will be on Tuesday afternoon from the residence.

IDENTIFY TWO MEN AS AUTO BANDITS; SUSPECT ESCAPES

Policeman Sticken and Witness of Shooting Point Out Arrested Pair.

ARSENAL IN THEIR FLAT

Early Morning Prisoner Jerks Away and Flees Detective in Hail of Bullets.

DRAGNET CATCHES OTHERS ARMED

After sixteen robberies by automobile bandits, several in the heart of the city, two men under arrest finally were identified yesterday as half of the gang which committed robbery No. 16. The identification was made by Patrolman Sticken, whom they made a fair start toward killing in their escape Friday night, and a spectator.

A man believed to be a third member of the gang was picked up, but escaped from the detectives by the simple method of ducking under the arms of his captor, running down the street, and scaling a high fence.

Police Are Jubilant.

Assistant Chief Schuettler and Capt. Halpin were jubilant as they announced the results of their work. They declared it certain at least one automobile gang which has committed robberies is broken up.

Whether or not only one gang has been at work is expected to be shown by developments of the next few days.

The prisoners say they are Albert Charest and James Mitchell of Detroit. The man who escaped is Hubert Cattlith, alias Jack Morton. Bulletins were flashed over the city after his escape, describing him as 5 feet 7 inches in height, 24 years old, weighing 140 pounds, and marked by a gold filled tooth on the right side of the upper jaw. He is dark, with brown hair, and wore brown clothes and tan shoes.

It is said Charest broke down and made a partial confession at the close of a three hours' questioning by Capt. Halpin. The prisoner was sent back to his cell, and the captain refused to tell what information had been obtained.

Picked Sleuths Search City.

The capture of the auto bandit suspects followed a search of the city for "Trilby" Thompson, a former convict who held up Detective Garry and several others in Martini's saloon, Ogden avenue and Robey street, a few days ago. Capt. Halpin ordered seven detectives—the pick of his squad of 130—to bring in "Trilby" on Saturday night.

The detectives were sauntering along Jackson boulevard near Aberdeen street about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Two suspicious looking men approached them. The detectives stopped them.

Revolvers were placed against the heads of the men, and they were searched. Each had a loaded revolver in his hand in his overcoat pocket. Two loaded clubs, used for sandbagging, were found in their pockets along with a bunch of skeleton keys, two large bowie knives, a screwdriver, and a black mask. More than 200 revolver cartridges also were found in their pockets.

Find Revolvers in Rooms.

The men hesitated for some time before they told who they were. Finally they said they were rooming at 1146 West Jackson boulevard. A search of the rooms was made and more revolvers, keys, cartridges, and auto bandits' supplies were found.

Persons at 1146 West Jackson boulevard said the men often had gone to a place at 1057 West Monroe street. The detectives went to that address.

While five of the men went in to search the house, the two men were held out in front of the flat. Detective William Egan held Charest; Morgan held the other man, who Charest said was Hubert Cattlith, alias Jack Morton.

Cattlith broke away from Morgan after he had been standing a few minutes. He ran west in Monroe street with Morgan shooting at him from close range, but with poor aim.

Vanishes in Lumber Yard.

Cattlith ran to a lumber yard a block west of the flat which was surrounded by the other detectives and jumped over the fence. The other detectives finished raiding the flat, where they captured Mitchell and another chauffeur named Robert McNeff.

The patrol wagon was called and a reserve crew of policemen were sent to the lumber yard. Policemen were stationed at every corner of the block. Others mounted the roofs of buildings near the lumber yards.

Lanterns were obtained and a diligent search between the piles of lumber and in the chimneys and ventilators of the surrounding buildings was made. The search continued over two blocks until after daylight. Cattlith had vanished.

Other Sleuth Not So Easy.

At the same time Cattlith made his escape Charest tried to break from Egan. But Egan brought his revolver down over his prisoner's head with force enough to fell Charest to the ground.

The detectives brought Charest, Mitchell, and McNeff to the detective bureau. Charest was questioned by Capt. Halpin in the afternoon.

He denied he knew anything about the auto robberies.

"What do you do?" the captain asked.

"I'm a waiter and a cook," he said. "I've been working at two or three places since I came to Chicago."

"Where did you come from?"

"I came from Detroit five weeks ago. I live in Detroit. I have been rooming with Cattlith for about three weeks."

"How did you happen to fall in with such company?"

"I didn't know what he did. I thought he was a chauffeur."

"What do you use this arsenal for?" the captain asked, pointing to a pile of revolvers, clubs, slingshots, and keys on a desk in his office.

"I didn't know they were in the room."

"Do you mean to say you roomed with a man three weeks and didn't know he had that stuff?"

"I didn't know it."

"How did you happen to have a revolver last night when you were arrested?"

"Well, you know it isn't safe to be on the streets these days. There's been an awful lot of holdup work going on and I didn't want to get stuck up."

Charest was taken to the cell room by detectives and handcuffed to another suspect. Eight men arrested on suspicion were manacled and driven in the motor patrol wagon to Policeman Sticken's house, at 3065 North Avers avenue.

Identified by Sticken.

The eight were Charest, Mitchell, McNeff, and Thomas Shupe, James Regon, Abe Shaffner, John Sullivan, and William Kuhn, other recent captures.

They were handcuffed in pairs and two policemen for each pair accompanied them. Charest or Duboise was the first man led before Policeman Stricken as he sat propped up in bed suffering from the bullet wound inflicted by auto bandits No. 16.

"That's the man who was on the running board," the injured policeman almost shouted as he pointed his finger at Charest. "He's the man that shot me. I know him."

There wasn't the slightest hesitation on Sticken's part when Charest was brought in.

"I'll prove I'm not the man," Charest said.

"You're the man. I'd know you anywhere," Sticken replied.

"Bring in the other two," Sticken asked of the detectives.

Calls Mitchell Bandit Chauffeur.

Mitchell, the chauffeur, was brought in.

"That's the driver. I sat beside him on the seat. There isn't any mistake. Where's the rest of the gang?"

The other six were led in one at a time for Sticken to look at, but he couldn't link them positively with the crime.

The men were brought back to the detective bureau and locked up. Guards will watch them in the cells.

After the detectives reported the identifications to Capt. Halpin, Assistant Chief Schuettler went to the captain's office. They conferred for a half hour. Several persons tried to identify the men, but only one was successful.

J. M. Whiteford, who gave his name as J. M. Bush, after a consulation with Capt. Halpin, said he was positive Charest and Mitchell were active members of auto bandit robbery No. 16.

Sure Two Are Bandits.

"I was standing on the street and saw the men in the automobile as they fought with the policeman," Whiteford said. "I am sure Charest and Mitchell are the men in the car. I am absolutely sure of it."

"We've got 'em, boys," Assistant Chief Schuettler announced when he came from the room where he had heard the statements of the detectives and Whiteford.

"There isn't any mistake about it. I think the gang has been broken up. It's too bad the other member of the gang should escape."

Capt. Halpin said he believed McNeff, who was found in the room with Mitchell at 1057 West Monroe street, was the fourth member of the gang that has been terrorizing Chicago.

No one has identified McNeff yet, but it is believed he was the fourth member of the band who escaped after Policeman Sticken had climbed into the automobile and ordered the men to the station for having no tail lights.

Find Letters to Men.

A later search of the flat revealed letters addressed to the suspected men.

They were addressed to "Mrs. Kathryn Bargeon, 22 Howard street, Detroit," "William Coleman, 44 Catherine street, Detroit, Mich.," "Mr. Charles McNeff, 1057 West Monroe street," "James Mitchell, West Madison street," and "James Mitchell, 1419 Larned street, Detroit."

Charest, who is 22 years old, also gave the name of Duboise when questioned by Capt. Halpin.

"That isn't what your mother calls you, is it?" the captain of detecives asked as he read from a postcard received from his mother. He gave no answer to the question.

The postal read: "Albert Charest, 113 Aberdeen street, Chicago.

"Dear son: Hope this card finds you in the best of health. We are well at home. Hope you are working. MOTHER."

The postcard was postmarked April 8, 1912, Detroit.

Calls on Holdup Victims.

Capt. Halpin has asked all victims of auto bandits to come to the bureau this morning and to try to identify the prisoners.

Mitchell, identified as the driver of the bandit car, said he was a chauffeur employed by the Ashland garage and had a stand in Madison street.

The description of Cattlith was given Policeman Sticken. He said it tallied exactly with the other man in the car when he was slugged and shot.

Three of the men taken to Sticken's home for identification were arrested by the "flying squadron" of detectives shortly before the early morning captures. They gave the names John Sullivan, 19 years old; James Regon, 22 years old, and Abe Shaffner, 22 years old. They had revolvers in their pockets when the detectives arrested them.

The other three men taken to Sticken's home were picked up in the general search of the city which Mayor Harrison suggested to Chief McWeeny in his "get busy" order.

Seventeen men have been arrested, but only the two have been identified positively.

Mitchell is 25 years old. He said he had come to Chicago only recently from Detroit. McNeff is 24 years old. He gave his address as Detroit. His head was bandaged. He said he was injured in a fight at Erie and Wells streets three weeks ago. Blood stains were found on several letters addressed to him.

BID POLICE ADMIT "PERJURY"; LAST CHANCE COMES TODAY.

Civil Service Commissioners Hint at Promise of Immunity if Former Witnesses Make "Explanations."

All the officers of the United Police and other members of the organization, who, according to Leon Hornstein, assistant corporation counsel, have laid themselves open to prosecution for their testimony before the civil service commission, may save themselves today by telling the truth. It is said the commissioners expect some of the policemen to change their testimony.

It is the last chance of the policemen, for the investigation into the political activities of the United Police, the collection of their "slush fund," and the alleged use of money in influencing city council and legislative proceedings will end today.

The commissioners refused to discuss the probable results if the policemen appear today and correct their former statements. One of them said, however, that it was not usual to prosecute a man who volunteered to tell the truth after he had perjured himself.

On the other hand, Assistant Corporation Counsel Hornstein said there was little doubt the commission would order charges filed against the policemen who had denied all knowledge of the "slush fund." It is even possible the charges may be taken before the state's attorney.

CRIME UNABATED DESPITE ROUNDUP

McWeeny's Arrest of Suspicious Characters Fails to Deter Highwaymen.

BRUTALITY ON INCREASE.

Thugs Caught by Citizen, However, Are Thrashed and Marched Off to Jail.

Within twenty-four hours after the issuance of Chief McWeeny's orders to his men to arrest all suspicious characters, following a stirring up by Mayor Harrison, the usual reports of criminal activities started coming in again.

Several men were held up in the streets, another was robbed in a street car, and a house was ransacked in broad daylight. In each case the thieves got away. They are still away.

Several of the highwaymen beat up their victims.

Frank Schultz, 1955 West Monroe street, was rapped over the head and dragged into an alley near Randolph and Ann streets, where $41 was taken from him. One of the two robbers knocked him down again for luck, kicked him in the face, and strolled away. Schultz was shy several teeth when he reached the Lake street station.

John Tuohy of Manly, Ia., a farmer, was able to show only $3.85 when two masked men held him up at Madison and Desplaines street, almost within cry of the Desplaines street station, and on the principal west side thoroughfare. The men knocked him down and went their way.

Held Up in Front of Home.

William Ginsberg, 729 South Ashland avenue, was held up in Polk street, almost in front of his residence. Failing to get any money from him, the two robbers knocked him down and ran. Arthur Nix, 1015 West Madison street, who surrendered $13 to two men, suffered no further injury, save the nervous alarm incidental to feeling a revolver jammed against the small of his back.

Another experience, contributed by Isaac Flight, 4342 West Adams street, took place near Desplaines street station, at Madison and Jefferson streets. He was robbed of his purse and $84 while riding in a Madison street car. The thieves escaped.

John Chamelik, 2136 South Albany, left his residence unguarded for ten minutes shortly before noon. When he returned he found it had been entered and stripped of $350 in movable property.

Bandits Soundly Thrashed.

A dose of their own medicine was administered to three highwaymen by Soloman Sachs, 343 North Clark street. Sachs saw the bandits drag Patrick Furlong under the Kinzie street viaduct between Clark and La Salle streets. They were beating him after taking $6 from their victim, when Sachs caught up. Using his revolver as a club he attacked the three and with the aid of Furlong himself gave them a terrific beating. The men with faces unrecognizable were marched by the pair to the Chicago avenue station, where Capt. John Rhem assured Sachs he had "made a neat job of the thugs." The services of a doctor were required before any of the men could speak. They gave their names as Carl Jones, no address; Peter McFadden, 1132 Sedgwick street, and Raphael Gilli, 222 West Ohio street.

Plucky Operator Takes Thug.

Police Operator John Kerins arrested a man who had assaulted an old men, unidentified. In the fight Kerins was well beaten, but dragged his prisoner to the station.

"What's the use?" laughed Benjamin Hanson, found on the pavement at Monroe and Sangamon streets with several knife wounds. "What's the use in telling you coppers who stuck me? Wait till I get well and I'll get him myself. Then I'll be sure he's got."

Hanson was taken to the county hospital.

A new method of learning what flats are unoccupied was spotted yesterday, when a weeping boy appeared at one of the apartments at Evans avenue and Forty-sixth street with a sad story. He said he had lost a nickel and wanted a light by which to find it. When the doors closed he would move to the next apartment with the same story. It happened that all the residents were at home. That probably saved them a visit from daylight burglars.

A New York jewelry salesman, staying at the Palmer house, told the police in a badly scared voice that his trunk, containing several thousand dollars' worth of diamonds, had not arrived. He was soothed by the suggestion that the trunk probably would come on the next train, and went to bed satisfied.

MOTHER AND CHILD GONE.

Disappear When Reconciliation with Husband Is Suggested.

When the case of the state vs. Clifford Clowers is called before Judge Torrison this afternoon in the Sheffield avenue Municipal court a pretty, dark eyed, olive skinned French girl of 18 will take the stand as chief witness and tell a story of her love for a 5 year old baby boy which ended in a near tragedy.

Miss Frances Dumas will be the witness. Last night she told how she led a life of drudgery in Atlanta; how she beat her way with the baby to Chicago to bring it to its mother and made a vain attempt to bring about a reconciliation between the mother and father of the child.

Met Woman in Jacksonville.

"I met Mrs. Julian F. Johnson in Jacksonville, Fla.," she said. "She was Nina Harrison Van Wyck, a niece of former Mayor Van Wyck of New York, before she was married. I fell in love with her 5 year old baby boy, Julian. I was an orphan and without a friend. Mrs. Johnson offered me a home. I went to live with her. Her husband was away at the time.

"Later we moved to Atlanta. She met Clifford Clowers and they eloped. They left the baby with me. Then, before Mr. Johnson returned from his trip, they wired me to come to Chicago. I had only a dollar. I literally beat my way here.

"I spent the money for food for the baby. I ate nothing. I found Mrs. Johnson here with Clowers. I secured employment, and every Saturday night I turned over my pay envelope to her. I loved her because she was the mother of little Julian. I hoped I might get her to go back to her husband.

Tells Woman to Go Home.

"Christmas eve I suggested the best present she could give me would be to tell me she would go back home. She resented it.

"New Year's eve I returned to the flat and found they had gone. I at once wired to Mr. Johnson in Atlanta. He came and I swore out warrants for Clowers' arrest."

Mrs. Johnson cannot be found and Clowers is in a cell at the Sheffield avenue station. Before Clowers and Mrs. Johnson disappeared they lived at 48 East Chicago avenue.

D. C. CREGIER IN AUTO WRECK.

City Custodian with Harry Hudson in Car Which Crashes Into Doctor's Machine.

De Witt C. Cregier, city custodian, and Harry Hudson, a clerk in the automobile license office at the city hall, had narrow escapes yesterday when an automobile in which they were riding skidded at East Fifty-seventh street and Woodlawn avenue. The car struck an automobile in which Dr. W. P. McCracken, 1142 East Forty-sixth street, was riding, knocking him against the roof of the machine and slightly injuring his head.

Both machines, according to the doctor and the city custodian, were going at a moderate speed when the accident happened.

The doctor's machine, which was being driven by Earl Washburne, a chauffeur for the Buell Automobile company, 6061 Cottage Grove avenue, was going north in Woodlawn avenue.

ELECTRIC BULB EXPLODES; MAN MAY LOSE AN EYE.

Spark Drops Into Gasoline Tank and Starts Fire—Victim Rescued by Doctor Passing By.

The breaking of an electric bulb in the hand of Charles P. Howell, 2340 Clifton avenue, a chauffeur employed in a garage at 3464 Evanston avenue, may prove serious.

A spark fell into the gasoline tank of an automobile Howell had been repairing. The gasoline exploded, causing a fire which was extinguished at a loss of about $5,000. Dr. L. L. Gregory, 3530 Evanston avenue, was passing in an automobile when he saw the flash from the explosion. He ran into the garage and threw a blanket about Howell and smothered the flames.

Howell was placed in the physician's automobile and driven to his office at 2809 North Clark street, where it was said he may lose his eyesight.

Crazed; Shoots Into Crowd.

Staggering out of a saloon at West Madison and Halsted streets, Michael Georziano, 704 West Ohio street, last night fired five shots at a crowd of men. One of the bullets wounded Mark Ryder of River Forest in the right thigh. Policeman Edward O'Brien witnessed the shooting and captured Georziano.

TEARNEY TO RUN IN THIRD WARD?

"Uncle Tom" Says Alderman Will Thus Outwit the Opposition in Second.

HOYNE PASSES THE LIE.

Denies Charge of Negro Pastor Saloonkeeper Helped Finance His Campaign.

Ald. "Al" Tearney will not be a candidate to succeed himself in the city council from the Second ward. This was the word passed out yesterday by a leading member of the Hearst-Harrison faction.

It was stated that the alderman-saloonkeeper had intended running again and also had considered making the race for city treasurer. It now is asserted he will not attempt to land either office.

The report in the H.-H. camp does not agree, however, with statements made by Tearney's relatives. "Tom" Tearney, an uncle of the alderman-saloonkeeper and himself proprietor of a saloon at Campbell and Archer avenues, boasted to patrons of his place that "Al" would outwit the opposition by moving into the Third ward.

To Run in Third Ward?

According to Tom Tearney, it is the alderman's intention to make the race for the council vacancy in the Third ward on the theory that the fight on him there will not be as strong as if he attempted to gain reëlection in the Second ward.

The Third ward is controlled by the Dunne faction of the Democracy. A follower of the governor elect said yesterday that Tearney would find rough sledding if he tried to dominate the Third ward as he has the Second.

"The Third ward normally is anti-Democratic," he asserted, "and if the Republicans and Progressives should unite on a candidate it would be useless for the Democrats to make a fight. If they split, however, we would win. In the latter event a strong Dunne man will be put up. If Tearney thinks he can move over to the Third ward and get our support, he is mistaken.

The Hearst-Harrison informant said Tearney had a good chance of getting the nomination for city treasurer, or at least the support of the city hall crowd, until the fact that he was openly violating the 1 o'clock closing law in his Thirty-fifth street saloon became generally known.

Hoyne Makes Some Denials.

Maclay Hoyne, state's attorney, last evening denounced as a "tissue of falsehoods" the statements of the Rev. Henry J. Callis, pastor of Walters A. M. E. church, published in THE TRIBUNE yesterday regarding his dealings with Tearney in connection with the appointment of an assistant state's attorney. Mr. Hoyne sent out a statement relative to the negro pastor's interview.

Later Mr. Hoyne was asked by THE TRIBUNE the following question:

"Is it or is it not a fact that the automobile in which you did most of your campaigning last fall was furnshed to you by 'Al' Tearney?"

"It is not true,' Mr. Hoyne replied. "I used my own automobile—the one I still have."

Mr. Hoyne then was asked:

"Is it or is it not true that a large number of your campaign conferences were held in Tearney's café?"

"It is not true," Mr. Hoyne answered. "I don't recall that I held any campaign conferences there."

Denial of Preacher's Statement.

Mr. Hoyne's statement denying the charges made by the Rev. Mr. Callis follows:

"My attention has been called to an article in a Sunday newspaper which purports to quote the pastor of a negro church named Callis, as to the facts surrounding the appointment of one of my assistants, Edward Wilson," said the state's attorney. "Mr. Callis, it is said, asserts I promised a delegation of negro ministers to appoint a negro man as assistant state's attorney who would be satisfactory to the colored churches; that I violated that promise and upon request of Ald. A. R. Tearney appointed Edward Wilson, and that I told Mr. Callis I appointed Mr. Wilson at the request of Ald. Tearney.

"Edward Wilson is a graduate of Williams college, my alma mater, and was in college when I was there. I have known him since 1892.

Tells of Appointment.

"Before the election Mr. Wilson came to me, and although a member of the Republican organization, offered me his support. Despite the efforts of Republican organization leaders to stop him from so doing, he openly worked for me until election.

"After the election and prior to my installation in office a delegation of negro ministers called upon me and said they heard I contemplated appointing Mr. Wilson as an assistant state's attorney. They frankly said their call was in support of the candidacy of a colored member of the bar.

"While they admitted that most of them were Republicans, they urged me not to appoint Mr. Wilson but to appoint J. Gray Lucas. The only reply they ever received from me was that I would take the matter under consideration. I did not say I would consult them about the appointment or about anything else.

Denies Tearney's Aid.

"The statement that Ald. Tearney directly or indirectly ever asked me to appoint Mr. Wilson or any one else to office is an unqualified falsehood. The statement that I mentioned Ald. Tearney to Mr. Callis, or any one else, as a contributor to any campaign fund of mine also is false. He did not so contribute. I do not know whether Ald. Tearney even knows Mr. Wilson.

"It is enough I know him to be an educated, industrious, and capable lawyer, and in selecting one colored man for a member of my staff I have followed the precedent set by my predecessors in office.

"The article to which I have referred contains a charge that Assistant State's Attorney Irwin Walker, who was in charge of the case for assault brought by a reporter for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE against Ald. Tearney 'threw the case.' This insinuation that Mr. Walker did other than his full duty in the Tearney case is an unwarranted reflection upon an honest and clean cut young lawyer, who possesses my complete confidence."

CALLED "FIGHT FOR DECENCY."

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 3.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Every TRIBUNE reader who believes in decency feels extreme gratification over your warfare against Tearney and such civic vermin. Allow me to congratulate you on your stand and wish you success. May you do for Chicago in this fight what you did for the nation in expurgating the senate of Lorimer.

E. W. STAHL.

SAYS "PREVENTIVE MEDICINE" WILL RELIEVE HUMAN MISERY.

President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard Sees Forestalling of Disease Greatest Step Toward International Peace.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 5.—"Preventive medicine," said President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard university, in a public lecture at the Harvard medical school today, "is capable in the future of doing away with poverty and misery, of remedying industrial disputes, and of contributing to the cause of international peace."

The medical practitioner of the future, he declared, would be one who prevented disease rather than cured it. More than half the physicians of the country, he believed, eventually would be engaged in preventive rather than curative medicine.

"Preventive medicine is capable of removing those causes of human misery, poverty, and sorrow which lead to internal rebellion and disorder, and among nations, to war and strife," Dr. Eliot continued. "One of the most irritating things in international relations is the strife that arises out of the distribution of population. Preventive medicine is making safer the immigration of peoples."

PASTORS ATTACK MAYOR FOR SNUB

"Tyranny or Cowardice," "Blunder or Stupidity" Among Charges Made.

LAUD FIGHT ON TEARNEY.

Lawmaker as Lawbreaker Menace to the City, Says the Rev. L. P. Cain.

Several Chicago clergymen in their sermons yesterday criticised the mayor for his refusal to receive the ministerial delegation last Monday when it called on him at the city hall to protest against the intended New Year's nullification of the 1 o'clock saloon closing law.

The refusal of the mayor to see the ministers was called a "colossal blunder and supreme stupidity," or "an evidence of subserviency to the vice element." One minister found it hard to determine whether the mayor's action was "tyranny," "cowardice," or "weakness." The charges that the men who visited the mayor were not ministers and that there was disorder were called "gratuitous falsehoods."

THE TRIBUNE's attitude in opposing Ald. Tearney's violation of the law in his saloon was commended and was called "a fight for righteousness." "A law maker becoming a law breaker," as one minister said, "is a spectacle to be shuddered at."

Likens Mayor to Czar.

Jenkin Lloyd Jones, pastor of All-Souls church, who was spokesman for the ministers who attempted to interview the mayor, preached on the topic, "From Tyranny to Democracy."

"When the mayor of Chicago refused to see a delegation of between 200 and 300 ministers on the score of the lack of a previous appointment and the implication that he 'was running the city,'" said Dr. Jones, "he assumed the rôle of an autocrat befitting that stage of government that was represented by the czar of Russia before his power was limited by a constitution and is now represented by the Grand Lama of Thibet.

"It is hard to account for the snub to accredited representatives of organized religion in this city of 1,000 churches, except on one of the following theories:

"That the mayor overlooked the fundamental principle of democracy which makes him the servant and not the tyrant of the community that has delegated to him the enforcement of law.

"That the mayor was guilty of moral cowardice. Conscious of this open declaration to suspend one of the laws of the city he has sworn to enforce, he did not care to meet this demand of the representatives of law and order.

Is It Question of "Pull"?

"One more explanation presents itself, namely, that behind this open insult to law on the part of public officials, there must be a tremendous 'push' or 'pull' either in the way of dollars or votes. I cannot believe that this violation of oaths of office on the part of city officials was a concession primarily to rowdyism.

"There is an assumption on the part of many would-be representatives of politics and business, that the churches and their ministers are wanting in virility, so deficient in coherency, strength, and organized power, that they need not be reckoned with when political issues are involved.

"Does the mayor represent the class which is so much more solicitous to count 'the boys' of the ward gangs, than he is the men who on election days, as on other days, intend to vote and act as gentlemen?"

Blunder or Stupidity.

The Rev. M. P. Boynton, pastor of the Lexington Avenue Baptist church, said in his sermon prelude:

"Any intimation that the company that visited the mayor and Chief McWeeny was not composed of ministers is a gratuitous falsehood. In all my experience I have never seen as many ministers associated for one object as marched to the mayor's office. Nearly every denomination in Chicago was represented.

"If the mayor is under obligations to the liquor and vice lords, then his action in refusing to see the ministers was the best possible service he could render the cause of civic righteousness, as it shows where he stands. If he is not thus obligated and is free to serve the whole city, then his action was a colossal blunder and supreme stupidity.

"No press of business, no mere printed program painted on a sign board, no failure of a letter to arrive, can be urged as excuse for the mayor of a city of two and a quarter millions refusing to see an orderly, lawabiding, cultured company of gentlemen who have taken pains to visit his office and stand within one hundred feet of where he hides at his desk.

"The general expression as the ministers retired from the anteroom was 'The mayor is afraid to face the ministers.' I do not know that is true. I am simply reporting the general impression made upon the ministers. The fact remains he chose to snub the church of God and weakly refused to talk with a company of Chicago's ministers.

"Mayor's Chair Empty."

"It is an astonishing comment on the sort of men elected to public office when a mayor shuts his door and consigns three or four hundred ministers to the ill temper and contemptuous sneers of his doorkeepers.

"Now, in view of the treatment accorded myself and hundreds of other ministers last Monday and gave the mayor a chance to speak for himself, how can he escape the charge of insincerity and hypocrisy?

"Be it known by the mayor and all his henchmen that so long as the mayor's chair is empty in these matters of moral and civic reforms, the pulpits of Chicago will continue to protest against official lawlessness. It is a happy circumstance that our great papers so graciously afford the ministers a Monday pulpit."

Praises Fight on Tearney.

"Three events have happened in the last week which has brought shame upon our city," said the Rev. L. P. Cain, pastor of the Edgewater Presbyterian church.

"These are," he said, "the insult to the ministers, the passing the denatured police ordinance passed at the behest of the United societies, and the failure to bring to justice Ald. Tearney for his open violation of the law.

"Are we to infer that the meaning of this is that the Protestant church is not respected at the city hall? Suppose there were only fifteen ministers in the company that went to call on the mayor, ought they not to have been listened to? Would not fifteen saloonkeepers have gained a hearing?"

Dr. Cain mentioned THE TRIBUNE by name and commended its attitude on "Tearneyism."

"The next city campaign," he said, "will center on the question of the enforcement of law. A lawmaker like Ald. Tearney, who is also a lawbreaker, is enough to make one shudder. We hope THE TRIBUNE will keep up the fight on Tearney until he is brought to justice."

The mayor's attitude towards the ministers and the conduct of Ald. Tearney was criticised by the Rev. John Thompson, district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal church in the Woolley Memorial church.

"The attitude of Mayor Harrison," he said, "was at best exceedingly poor politics. It was a distinct snub to the ministers. That night every thug, every holdup man, chuckled at the attitude of the mayor.

"Tearneyism is a problem and a menace. If the mayor does not recognize the civic conscience in this city he will become a menace, and Harrisonism will be the next issue in the elections.

"It is the duty of the mayor to appoint a committee of investigation in the case of Tearney, and clear the name of the administration from the odium there is now attached to it in this regard."

Should Labor with the Voters.

The Rev. Frederick E. Hopkins, at Park Manor Congregational church, suggested that as the ministers' attempt to get a hearing with Mayor Harrison had failed, they might devote their time to building up a better spirit among voters.

"If the 300 ministers who marched on the mayor," he said, "had stopped to labor with at least 300 sinners they could have found on the street they would have received at least courteous treatment, which was more than was shown by our lordly mayor, and if they had made that many converts we might have come that much nearer, at the next election, towards having our laws enforced with some consideration for the character, intelligence, wealth, and investment in the churches and religious and uplifting institutions of Chicago."

Farwell Replies to Mayor.

"The mayor has tried to make fun of the delegation that tried to see him last Monday by offering to bet me fifteen red apples I couldn't name fifteen bona fide ministers that were in his office to see him," said Arthur Burrage Farwell, president of the Chicago Law and Order league, in the Ravenswood Methodist Episcopal church.

"We already have a list of sixty pastors of churches whose presence in the mayor's office we have confirmed by their own statement and about thirty clergymen, who are editors and executive officers in their respective denominations."

"I Was There," Says Pastor.

"I was with not less than 300 ministers to wait upon the mayor," said the Rev. Austin K. Hunter, pastor of the Jackson Boulevard Christian church. "The carnival of crime that resulted from the failure of our officials to enforce the law is evidence of the just demand of these ministers."

The Rev. Samuel J. Skevington in the Belden Avenue Baptist church, said:

"The mayor should not fail to learn from the sad experience of Belshazzar, the prince of Babylon. The morals of a great city like Chicago are too serious a matter for the chief executive to be justified in treating them as a joke."

The Rev. J. S. Dancey, pastor of the Auburn Park Methodist Episcopal church, said:

"Mayor Harrison's autocratic refusal to meet the ministers after having been notified four days before by letters of their intended visit can only be compared to the foolish attitude of King George III. toward the demand of the colonists.

"A political revolution will result which will place a man in the mayor's chair who believes in enforcing the laws."

DR. DAVIS PLANS TO REFORM "CITY'S WICKEDEST CORNER."

Minister Says New First Congregational Church Must Be Moral Policeman.

"The wickedest corner in Chicago today," said Dr. Ozora S. Davis, head minister of the New First Congregational church, yesterday, "is the corner of Paulina and Madison streets. I don't believe there's a tougher corner in Chicago. It always will be until the forces in this and other churches make it different.

"I am not saying anything derogatory to the police department, but it is this church and other churches that are saving the community from ruin rather than the stern majesty of the law. You cannot legislate men into doing right.

"We stand here, if necessary, to throw the vote of this church by the common consent of its members for a man who is right. When the members of the churches of the west side get together for better politics we can purge this city. This will never be a muzzled pulpit. We will act as right dictates."

The New First Congregational church was formed by the union of the old First Congregational and the Union Park churches. Their new parish house, dedicated during the day, is an institution for the benefit of poor children of the neighborhood.

A husband has to be a mind reader these days or he is likely to get into a whole lot of legal and marital trouble. A wife had her husband brought before Municipal Judge Gemmill just because he had neglected to give her any money for a year and a half. His defense was that she never had asked for money and he did not feel like thrusting it on her, but the court decreed it should not be necessary for a wife to ask for funds. No ruling has yet been made on disposition of funds in a family where the wife has the money.

Ministers in Protest Delegation Rebuffed by Mayor in City Hall.

THE delegation which attempted without success to see Mayor Harrison last Monday to protest against the permit given to sell liquor after 1 a. m. New Year's day included at least sixty-three ministers with regular churches. PRAISE LINCOLN AS EMANCIPATOR

Speakers at Anniversary Celebration See in Him the 'Great American Ideal.'

URGES MORE DEMOCRACY.

Louis Brandeis Says Little Has Been Done to Remove Social Wrongs.

The fiftieth anniversary of the emancipation of the slaves was celebrated last night in the auditorium of Abraham Lincoln center, Oakwood boulevard and Langley avenue. The seating capacity was taxed and several hundred persons were turned away.

After a prayer by Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, Maurice S. Kuhns read the emancipation proclamation. Louis Brandeis of Boston was the first to address the audience.

"It is fitting that we rejoice over the great event which we are now commemorating," he said, "because today the obligation of society to secure to each of its members opportunities for development, and the happiness that comes with it, is recognized more fully than at any time in the history of the world.

Quotes Booker Washington.

"When Booker Washington went to Europe to study men in the depths, he found misery everywhere, but he found men rising. He found that bad as conditions were, they had been worse. He saw men not despairing but full of hope. He saw the advent of the Golden Age. He found everywhere the recognition of the new noblesse oblige, the obligation of service—that doctrine that not the few should advance at the cost of the many but that all should advance together. He found that men are not to be raised but given the opportunity of rising.

"Each social and industrial wrong must be subjected to diagnosis. We must find the cause of all the misery. Little has been done to remove social and industrial wrongs. What medical science has done in advancement we may do in the treatment of social wrongs. Misery is the result of ignorance, and the day when the recognition of brotherhood and democracy is diffused among us all, and the knowledge of science is extended, then will we have the true, perfect liberty of mankind."

Praises Lincoln as Ideal.

Edwin Markham eulogized Lincoln as a literary artist, a lover of men, a gentleman, a humble man, a social philosopher, and the great American ideal.

"Lincoln is worth more to America than all her battleships," he said. "Lincoln stood for the old integrities. He stood for the forlorn hope. He espoused the unpopular cause."

"We need a new Lincoln," said Hamlin Garland, "to free our little children from the looms and our daughters from the traffic in women."

Mrs. Celia Parker Wooley argued for the reorganization of the standard which prohibits negro workers from employment with white workers.

Rabbi Sees Problem Unsolved.

Rabbi Joseph Stolz at Isian temple spoke of the emancipation.

"As Jews," he said, "who were the first in history to demand the freedom of serfs, as Americans who are proud that the blot of slavery has been wiped from our escutcheon, we rejoice in the jubilee of the emancipation proclamation. But the negro problem was not solved when Lincoln signed the proclamation, remarking: 'I never in my life felt more certain that I was doing right.' The solution of the negro question is one of the most serious and perplexing problems confronting our nation. Our beloved townsman, Julius Rosenwald, is doing something to solve it. Booker Washington is doing much. Many others are lending their coöperation. But it cannot be solved justly and permanently without thought, patience, forbearance, tolerance, and the square deal."

LITTLE GIRL FATALLY BURNED.

Daughter of Gardener at Hibbard Residence Incurs Injury as She Hurls Shells Into Fire.

Lillian Dahlstrom, 7 years old, daughter of John Dahlstrom, gardener for William G. Hibbard Jr., third vice president of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., died yesterday of burns incurred on Saturday when she accidentally set fire to her dress while throwing nut shells into a stove in a garage at the rear of the Hibbard summer home in Winnetka.

SLEET COATS CITY STREETS

Pedestrians Have Slippery Time on Icy Pavements.

ELEVATED ROADS TROUBLED

Woman Hurled by Wind Against Standing Taxicab.

A flurry of snow, enough rain to coat the pavements with ice, and a vigorous wind combined yesterday to make Chicago unpleasantly aware that winter, late in coming, had finally landed.

All the elevated lines had some difficulty, some of the South Side trains dropping their passengers at Congress street to be picked up by later trains, while they hurried back to relieve the congestion at south bound stations.

"L" Trains Run Under Difficulties.

The Wilson avenue trains of the Northwestern had their troubles in making the grade of the station loop, and eventually an empty train was driven around the loop several times to clear the ice from the third rail and relieve transportation.

The Aurora, Elgin and Chicago Electric railway trains were fifteen to thirty minutes late. Scrapers were employed, but the sleet froze rapidly on the rails and caused delay.

Pedestrians on Michigan avenue found it easier to be blown along over the smooth ice on the sidewalks than to attempt to walk.

One Woman's Experience.

Miss Madge O'Malley, secretary of the Ira J. O'Malley company, 79 West Lake street, left a meeting in the Woman's club rooms in the Fine Arts building and walked toward Congress street.

As she reached the intersection the wind caught her and she whirled around about four times in an amazingly rapid trip across the icy pavement of Michigan avenue. By a lucky chance she collided with a standing taxicab instead of picking one that was moving, and, although her shoulder went through the glass, she was only slightly bruised.

Carried into the Auditorium hotel by a chauffeur, she recovered and went home.

More snow is predicted for today with colder temperature.

Cold Wave Moving Eastward.

The cold wave, which descended upon Chicago from the northwest, will extend eastward and southward during the next two days, according to the government weather bureau report from Washington, D. C. It will reach the Atlantic states tonight or tomorrow morning.

"The cold weather will be followed by some moderation about Tuesday over the northwest and extreme central west," says the report, "and, after the middle of the week, to the eastward and southward, although temperatures will probably remain below the normal for the season.

"The week will open cloudy east of the Rocky mountains except in the northwest, with snow over the northern and central and rain over the southern districts, but by Wednesday generally fair weather should prevail."

CONDUCTOR CAUSES ARREST OF PAIR UNDER MANN ACT.

Married Man of Detroit and 16 Year Old Girl Held in Chicago for Federal Authorities.

Alertness of a passenger conductor on the Michigan Central railroad resulted last night in the arrest of a man and 16 year old girl who boarded the train at Detroit.

The girl told Lieut. Mooney of the Kensington station her name was Sadie Higson. She said she was employed as a telephone operator in Detroit.

The man gave his name as Arthur Stauber. He is 28 years old. He is employed by a Detroit lumber company. Letters found on him show he is married and his wife lives at 7 Locust street, Milwaukee.

Lieut. Mooney says the case is a violation of the Mann act. He will turn the prisoner over to the department of justice today.

"The girl told me she was en route to Jackson, Mich.," said Lieut. Mooney, "and she became acquainted with Stauber, who induced her to come to Chicago. They were going to register as husband and wife at a hotel, she said.

"The conductor of the train got suspicious when Stauber paid the girl's fare from Jackson to Chicago and he telegraphed the police."

Peter Marino, 508 West Oak street, was arrested and will be turned over to the federal authorities for complicity in bringing Gertrude Fortune, 17 years old, and Blanche O'Neill, 17 years old, from St. Louis to Chicago for immoral purposes.

CAUCUS FOR FIGHT ON LORIMERITES

Many Democratic Members of Illinois House Will Decide Course Tonight.

WILL REFUSE COMPROMISE

Factional Battles Expected to Throw Contest Over Speaker Onto Floor.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Democratic members of the new legislature who seek to prevent any ally of the Lorimerites getting control in the house, will caucus tomorrow to decide on their course. They will consider no peace proposal which is not founded upon the original proposition that no man who voted for Lorimer in 1909 shall be considered as a candidate for speaker or for Democratic leader.

Some of the anti-Lorimer Democrats assert that twenty-five members elect of the house will refuse to enter the "regular" caucus on Tuesday night. It is admitted at least eighteen are ready to take this course. The anti-Lorimer caucus will consider these four questions:

Shall they go to the Democratic caucus?

Shall they go to caucus if the promise is given that no Lorimer Democrat is proffered as a speakership candidate?

Shall they stand for John M. Rapp, who is not a Lorimerite, provided he is the agreed caucus choice?

Shall they proffer three names, if they bolt the regular caucus, as a basis for a nonpartisan organization of the house?

Candidates Who Face Fight.

Headquarters were opened today by three candidates for speaker who came under the prohibition of the anti-Lorimer Democrats. These candidates are:

Lee O'Neil Browne of La Salle county.
A. M. Foster of Schuyler county.
John J. McLaughlin of Cook county.

Headquarters for these other Democratic candidates also are in running order:

John Huston of McDonough county.
Frank J. Ryan of Cook county.
Charles A. Karch of St. Clair county.
John M. Rapp of Wayne county.

It is reported by some of the Chicago arrivals tonight that Governor Elect Dunne will take an active hand in the speakership fight. This report says Mr. Dunne has allied himself with the Hearst-Harrison forces and will fight Roger C. Sullivan.

Caucus Choices to Fail.

In the opinion of the experienced legislative politicians, no party caucus choice will be named the next speaker and the fight will be made on the floor of the house on Wednesday, with each member a free agent.

Present conditions preclude any possibility of Democratic harmony, which, if effected, would land the seventy-seven votes needed to elect a temporary speaker.

It appears that all of the forty-nine house Republicans will go to caucus Tuesday afternoon. Three candidates for speaker will go before the caucus:

Homer J. Tice of Greenview,
George H. Wilson of Quincy,
William P. Holaday of Georgetown.

Tice's friends think he has the honor won.

Frank J. Snite of Chicago was the first Progressive to announce his candidacy for leader of the Progressive group. He will have three opponents—Fayette S. Munro of Highland Park, Emil N. Zolla of Chicago, and Joseph Carter of Champaign.

The report was brought in that Medill McCormick, if he maintains his seat in the house, will be the mutually agreed leader after the conference which begins tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock.

Close Contest in Senate.

The senate organization contest is as full of exciting possibilities as is the house mess. Admission was made that no party or faction is in position to assume now that it will control. The Democratic senate caucus will be held Tuesday night at 7:30, with four full fledged candidates for the Democratic leadership, Senators L. F. Gorman of Chicago, Walter I. Manny of Mount Sterling, F. Jeff Tossey of Toledo, and Johan Waage of Chicago.

The Republican senators meet Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Senator Logan Hay of Springfield apparently holds the whip hand at present and may be elected the Republican leader of the senate, through a compromise between all of the elements and factions. Even Senator Walter Clyde Jones, Progressive, may see his way clear to supporting Hay.

Politicians Flock to Capital.

State and national politicians and leaders began to flock into the capital today. Among tonight's arrivals were Roger Sullivan, former Democratic national committeeman, and a score of his supporters. Among the other Chicago arrivals were William L. O'Connell, chief adviser to Mr. Dunne, and A. J. Cermak, who will be the representative of the Hearst-Harrison Democracy in the coming caucuses.

Charles Boeschenstein of Edwardsville, Democratic national committeeman, and Arthur W. Charles of Carmi, Democratic state chairman, arrived from the south at about the same time that the Sullivan delegation detrained. They joined the Sullivan party.

Gov. Elect Dunne will rush here from Keokuk, Ia., where tomorrow, in company with the governor of Iowa, he will inspect the new Keokuk dam in the Mississippi, which will be opened in August.

James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic primary nominee for United States senator, also is expected soon. National Committeeman Boeschenstein will receive the Sullivan support for the Lorimer senatorial vacancy.

EXPLAINS TALK WITH WILSON

Col. Lewis Urged Legislatures Be Treated as Nonpartisan.

REWARD FOR THEIR AID.

Wants This Done for Giving Senators Who Would Back Policies.

Col. J. Hamilton Lewis was reported by the Associated Press from Washington on Monday as suggesting to the president elect that "patriotic men who would give him the support of two senators should be regarded as worthy of proper reward and recognition in the distribution of minority patronage."

Col. Lewis yesterday wrote to THE TRIBUNE a letter expounding his position on the matter.

Colonel Explains Stand.

In part he said:

"First, let it be understood I said what was published, in so far as the plan was stated, the difference being that I did not assume to tell the president he should adopt such a policy, but after my conference with the president, out in the anteroom, in the presence of the waiting senators, newspaper men, and others, said that which I now wish to publicly affirm:

"That if I were president I would treat the Illinois legislature and other legislatures similarly situated as nonpartisan bodies; that I would announce to the public the need of the senators to carry out the policy which the people had instructed me to pursue; that the legislators who enabled me to carry that policy by their vote, in giving me senators, would be rewarded by being given position consistent with their merits, that would enable them to participate in the execution of the policy of the people and earn the rewards which would come for such faithful service in the honors and appreciation visited on them by their constituents."

Cites Some Precedents.

Col. Lewis then outlined historical precedents as justification for his attitude, declaring that if he finds the public "adjures these views" he will, as a representative of the people, correct his viewpoint.

He pointed to the position of James Buchanan after election when he needed senators to support his policy. He showed how legislators voting for Douglas were openly rewarded.

He called attention to the placing of Democrats in his cabinet by Lincoln and how Judge Douglas, Lincoln's previous opponent, secured for him the support of Illinois legislators who heretofore had been Democrats.

In 1892, when Cleveland was a candidate for the presidency, Mr. Lewis pointed out, his supporters aided the Populists in return for the electoral vote to Cleveland.

Points to Roosevelt.

Mr. Lewis then pointed to Col. Roosevelt's policy regarding the Panama canal and how arrangements were made with the legislature of Kentucky, which resulted in the election of a Republican senator who supported the colonel's canal policy.

President Taft also authorized his representatives in Tennessee to make such arrangements with the legislature, composed of three parties, that he received openly and honorably a Republican senator to support his corporation tax law and the amendments to the interstate commerce bill, Col. Lewis declared.

STROKE KILLS DR. LEWIS SWIFT.

Famous Astronomer Passes Away at Marathon, N. Y.—Honors Heaped Upon Him.

Binghamton, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Dr. Lewis Swift, one of America's great astronomers, died early today at his home in Marathon, from a stroke of paralysis sustained New Year's day. The funeral will be held Tuesday.

Dr. Swift was a fellow of the Royal Astronomical society of England, and also of Canada, received three gold medals from the Austrian Academy of Sciences at Vienna for discoveries, the greatest number ever given to any one man, and also received the La Lande silver medal and 540 francs from France for the most rapid discovery of comets ever made.

He was the acknowledged discoverer of more than 1,300 nebulæ or "little worlds," and fifteen comets.

WILLIAM J. M'KENNA DEAD.

Former Alderman of Fifth Ward Succumbs to Tuberculosis at San Antonio.

William J. McKenna, former alderman of the Fifth ward and well known in Republican political circles, died at the St. Anthony hotel in San Antonio, Tex., yesterday of tuberculosis, which resulted from a street car accident in Chicago nine months ago.

Mr. McKenna was a brother of John J. McKenna, who is a former member of the board of equalization, and had been a deputy clerk of the Circuit court for over fourteen years. His term as alderman of the Fifth ward expired two years ago.

Mr. McKenna's body will arrive in Chicago tomorrow night and the funeral will be held Friday morning.

OBITUARY.

MISS MARY VIRGINIA PRITCHARD'S funeral was held yesterday from the residence of her parents, 126 Laurel avenue, Wilmette. Burial was at Rosehill. The Rev. Roy E. Bowers officiated. Miss Dorothy Rae, a sorority sister of Miss Pritchard, sang. The pallbearers were six classmates from the New Trier High school.

LOUIS PAUL CAILLETET, eminent physicist, president of the Aero club of France, is dead in Paris. He was born in 1832.

WOODS MAY LOSE ALL PATRONAGE

Sullivan Democrats Plan to Cut Off Power of Secretary of State.

WILL CREATE BUREAUS.

Three Bills to Be Introduced in Legislature at Earliest Time.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Democratic members elect of the state legislature plan to take away from Harry Woods, the incoming Democratic secretary of state, all power in the distribution of state patronage. Three bills with this end in view are ready for introduction at the earliest moment of the new session and are now possessed by Democrats.

The cause for this action is the opposition of Mr. Woods to Roger C. Sullivan and the regular state organization and his announced policy that no jobs will go to the Sullivanites.

The first of the three bills creates the office of superintendent of public buildings and grounds, the second establishes the office of state wheel tax commissioner and a scale of fees, and the third bill will create a state bureau of corporations.

Change in Primary Law.

In addition it is planned to amend the primary election law so as to stipulate in detail just how primary petitions shall be filed, which would either remove the petitions from the jurisdiction of the secretary of state through the creation of a state election commission modeled after the Chicago commission, or leave the secretary of state a mere clerical figurehead in handling the petitions.

Some of the legislators here say Mr. Woods has seen the prospect looming up and has attempted to engineer an organization of the house all of his own, aimed directly at John J. McLaughlin and the Sullivan forces, and that many of the jobs already have been promised if the Woods plans mature.

This development is hailed by many of the Progressive members as an opportunity to initiate general reforms in the management of the office of the secretary of state necessitated by the time worn methods which have given to the office the most impressive list of patronage in the state, excepting only the appointments of the governor.

Aid from Reform Element.

It is probable, therefore, that the anti-Woods Democrats will get enough support from the reform element to get favorable action on their bills, if they press them urgently.

To the superintendent of buildings and grounds it is planned to turn over all the janitors, superintendents of ventilation, and workmen about the capitol generally, who are under the command of Capt. R. J. Beck, under appointment of the secretary of state. The state wheel tax commissioner is expected to take over the automobile tax revenue and the corporation commissioner would take charge of the machinery of the corporations department, which forms the main feature of the secretary's office.

SOCIALISTS OUT IN MILWAUKEE.

Political Rule Ends, All Offices, with Exception of Few, Going Over to the Nonpartisans.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—The Socialist rule of Milwaukee county ended yesterday, except for the sheriff's office, which goes to the nonpartisan office holders at midnight tonight. With today's transfers the Socialists are cleaned out of the city, except for scattering aldermen from rock ribbed Socialist wards, the city attorney and city health commissioner, who were named by the Socialists for a four year term. Forty changes in minor officials marked the ousting of the Socialists.

Dice Shooters Raided.

Twenty-eight men were taken in a gambling raid yesterday when found shooting dice in the poolroom of Mathew Petto, 1017 Orleans street.

BURKE ROW TO GRAND JURY?

Hearst-Harrison Men Want 'Bobby's' Accounts Examined.

PLOT, HIS FRIENDS ASSERT.

Former Chief Denies Shortage and Says Democracy Owes Him.

The grand jury is to be asked to act as referee in the factional fight between the Hearst-Harrison and Robert E. Burke factions of the County Democracy.

The H-H contingent, at a meeting of its executive committee yesterday, voted to request an official inquiry of Burke's financial dealings with the organization.

The matter will be brought to the attention of the grand jury, it is said, through State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne, who is identified with the H-H clan.

Devine Alleges $6,100 Shortage.

President Miles J. Devine charged at the H-H meeting in open session that Burke was short $6,100 collected at balls and picnics. The decision to proceed against him was arrived at in the secret session of the executive committee, according to one of the committee members.

Friends of Burke charge a plot to embarrass him. They say the charges are without foundation.

When originally made at the time of division Burke said that instead of being indebted to the organization he really was many thousands out of pocket.

Meet in Separate Halls.

The two factions met in separate halls during the afternoon. Both discussed arrangements for attending the inauguration of Gov. Elect Dunne at Springfield on Jan. 13, providing the expected legislative deadlock has been broken by that time.

Since the withdrawal of the Burke faction from the organization, or, as "Bobby" charges, the appropriation of his headquarters by his enemies, the Hearst-Harrison City hall crowd has spent considerable money in beautifying the Randolph street clubrooms.

The Burke faction's meeting place, a block east, is not nearly as pretentious.

ASKS CHANGE IN CONSTITUTION.

Lindbergh Urges That Convention Be Called to Amend Basic Law of Country.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Representative Lindbergh of Minnesota advocates the calling of a national constitutional convention to consider an amendment providing for direct presidential primaries and other changes in the basic law of the republic.

BEGIN HEARINGS ON TARIFF TODAY

Democratic Leaders Have Not Settled All Details on Revision Method.

CARE TO BE WATCHWORD.

Hope to Have Views of Country by Time Extra Session of Congress Is Called.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—The first stage in the program for downward revision of the tariff, promised by the Democratic party, will be entered upon tomorrow, when the house of representatives, through its committee on ways and means, will formally open the doors to the American public for the discussion of tariff rates, protection to industries, and concessions to the "ultimate consumer."

The work will be preparatory to the first change of tariff duties since 1909, when the Payne-Aldrich law was enacted by a Republican congress and approved by a Republican president.

Method of Revision Unsettled.

The method of the approaching revision and the extent of the changes to be made in the present duties are points not fully settled by the Democratic leaders in congress and President Elect Wilson.

It is known reduced duties on chemical, metal, cotton, and woolen goods will follow closely the standard fixed by the bills which have passed the Democratic house during the last two years, none of which has become law.

Urged by Leader Underwood, Speaker Clark and other Democrats, President Elect Wilson is expected to set the date for the convening of the extra session about March 15.

Will Use Care in Changes.

While the Democratic tariff is to be based on the revenue needed to run the government, it fully is understood that the probable result upon important American industries will be taken into consideration in reducing any of the present protective tariff rates.

Approximately one third of the government's income, about $330,000,000, is received from the tariff, but in many of the schedules the Democratic plans for reduction in rates would result in an increase of revenues, because of the increase of imports that would follow.

Drugs, chemicals, paints and other merchandise that come within the chemical list, known as "schedule A" will form the subjects of opening hearings, tomorrow and Tuesday.

Three Hearings Each Week.

New schedules of the tariff law will be taken up for hearings each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday until Jan. 31, when the sessions will close with a hearing on the free list, the administrative features, and miscellaneous portions of the tariff law.

Members of the committee are inclined to favor a revision schedule by schedule, but the question probably will not be determined until after the hearings are concluded and a caucus of the Democrats of the next house shall have passed upon the procedure.

An important factor in the preparations for the work of revision is the belief of Democratic leaders that before the extra session is called enough states will have ratified the income tax to enable congress to pass an income tax law, supplanting both the present corporation tax and the proposed excise tax.

Such an income tax, the Democrats estimate, would supply from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 of the government revenue.

WATCH FOR BOGUS GAS MAN.

Policemen Get Orders as Result of Robbery of West Side Woman by "Inspector."

Policemen were again instructed by an order sent to all stations last night to "Watch out for the bogus gas inspector."

His latest victim is Mrs. Mary Silva, 1915 West Madison street. In this instance he wore a uniform with the words "Gas Inspector" on the cap. He gained admittance to Mrs. Silva's flat by representing he was sent from the gas company's office to make a test.

Placing a revolver at Mrs. Silva's head, he locked her in a bedroom while he ransacked the flat. He obtained $10.

She Gains Sudden Operatic Triumph.

ENRICA CLAY

Enrica Clay, whose name "off stage" is Miss Enrica Clay Dillon of Los Angeles, Cal., was suddenly called to assume the title rôle in the grand opera "Aida" on Saturday after a long wait for a chance to show her merit. Her appearance was an instant triumph.

MME. WHITE SENT TO 'MINORS'

Will Sing for Lyceum Bureau in Western Towns.

TRIUMPH FOR SUCCESSOR.

Enrica Clay Given Chance She Long Waited Here For.

Mme. Carolina White will sing tonight in Green Bay, Wis., while Enrica Clay, her young American successor on the Chicago opera stage, strives to continue the unusual triumph accorded her in the title rôle in "Aida" on Saturday.

All explanations given by opera leaders yesterday indicated Mme. White had been "farmed out to the minors," pending the termination of an existing contract with the opera company. When the contract terminates on March 19 she becomes a free agent and may resume her place on the leading opera stages.

Meanwhile Mme. White will be appearing under the auspices of a lyceum bureau. She will still be on the opera company pay roll for $800 a week. The lyceum company, however, will be paying the opera company $1,000 a week for her services.

Says Relations Are Cordial.

"I have not left the Chicago Opera company," said Mme. White yesterday. "My relations with Mr. Dippel and the directors of the company are cordial. I sent Mr. Dippel a note announcing I would not sing on Saturday, but that was merely customary. He previously knew I would not appear, as I was to sing on Monday evening in recital in Wisconsin.

"I am to sing in a number of western cities until the expiration of my contract. I know nothing of any arrangements with the lyceum bureau. That does not interest me. I am paid by the opera company."

Enrica Clay Happy.

The happiest woman in Chicago was Enrica Clay at the home of the Sisters of Mercy, where she has been residing for several weeks. She received the telegraphed and telephoned congratulations of her friends.

"It's just too lovely for words," she said. "I have been in Chicago two weeks waiting for an opportunity. It came so suddenly and found me unprepared. It is so sweet of every one to say I did creditably. I hardly knew I was singing, because I was so excited.

"Of course, I have sung in Germany and Italy for some time, but making my Chicago debut under such circumstances was almost enough to frighten one half to death. I am not used to Chicago's weather and have been ill most of the time since I arrived here, but I feel better now."

Daughter of Late Coast Judge.

Enrica Clay's name "off stage" is Miss Dillon. She comes from a well known California family and has been studying in Europe for years. She returned to this country a short time ago on account of the death of her father, the late Judge H. C. Dillon of Los Angeles.

Two weeks ago she came to Chicago, and through her friendship with Mme. de Cisneros was introduced to Andreas Dippel and asked for an opportunity to sing. She was told to "wait." For two weeks she waited. The chance came Saturday.

Man's Fall Results Fatally.

John H. Hart, a building contractor, died at Grace hospital yesterday of injuries suffered on Nov. 26 when he fell two floors down an elevator shaft in a building at 618 West Randolph street.

SENATE OPPOSED TO ARBITRATION

Poll Shows Congress Also Will Refuse to Repeal Panama Canal Act.

IGNORE STAND OF TAFT.

Knox Soon Will Make Reply to Objections Raised by Great Britain.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Arbitration of the Panama canal questions, proposed by Great Britain and favored by President Taft, will not be assented to by the senate. Congress will not repeal the Panama canal act.

This is the legislative situation of the Panama dispute so far as this congress is concerned. What President Wilson may be able to do, in case he should adopt the same policy as President Taft, remains to be seen.

The diplomatic situation in connection with this mtter is unsatisfactory to the British. It developed today that President Taft made the public announcement of his decision to comply with the British demand to arbitrate when he had failed to communicate that decision in advance to the British government.

It is customary in diplomatic negotiations for the executive of a power to advise the other disputant what it proposes to do before publishing the fact.

Knox to Prepare Answer.

In view of the president's announcement, Secretary Knox will prepare a formal answer to the British note of protest filed on Dec. 9 last. He will set forth the view that the protest is not well founded and will present the facts sustaining the American position that it is justified under the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in exempting its coastwise shipping from canal charges and in excluding from the use of the canal trust owned and railroad owned ships, whether under the American or a foreign flag.

It was learned tonight that the president does not intend to have the canal questions passed upon by the permanent court of arbitration of the Hague, as required by the provisions of the general arbitration treaty of 1908. Secretary Knox will propose to the British government the creation of a special tribunal, to be made up equally of citizens of the United States and Great Britain.

It would be impossible to select jurists from the Hague court representing countries not opposed to the interests of the United States. The nearest approach to an impartial tribunal, in the view of the president, would be for the United States and Great Britain to appoint an equal number of nationals as agents. With the representation evenly divided, one side would have to convince a part of the other in order to obtain a decision.

Hopes to Quiet Opposition.

It is the hope of the president that this plan will break down many of the objections hitherto offered to the arbitration of the canal dispute. Such a tribunal would have to be created by an agreement negotiated by the two governments and submitted to the senate for ratification. A poll of the senate made on the proposition to have the questions settled by the Hague tribunal shows thirteen senators in its favor, thirty opposed, and eighteen noncommittal.

According to the senators who could be reached when the president's plan became known, their opposition is fundamental and is now directed at the form proposed for the arbitration. Consequently, it is not likely Mr. Taft's plan will be approved.

The senate is extremely jealous of its part in the treaty making power and holds that an agreement, being to all intents and purposes a treaty, requires ratification by a two-thirds vote. Therefore, if the senators opposed to arbitration by the Hague court extend their opposition to a special tribunal, only two senators in the noncommittal class, or not polled, will be required to make compliance with the British demand impossible.

In this case friction undoubtedly will arise. The United States will find Great Britain backed up by all the European powers and Japan, which have the same interest as the British government. The least that can happen will be the piling up of great claims for damages, which in the end must be disposed of in some way. It may be some plan of retaliation will be adopted which would be world wide and which would embarrass this country greatly.

Question of Legal Nature.

Under the treaty of 1908, it is stipulated that "differences which may arise of a legal nature or relating to the interpretation of treaties existing between the two contracting parties and which it may not have been possible to settle by diplomacy, shall be referred to the permanent court of arbitration established at the Hague."

The question between the United States and Great Britain in respect to the Panama canal are legal and conventional. They fall within the scope of the treaty, though it may be contended that as the interests affected are "vital" they are outside of adjudication by arbitration.

It is contended by some senators that the matter of canal tolls are purely domestic in their nature and vital because they concern the control of the waterway which has been built by American money. The treaty of 1908 will expire on June 4 next. In some quarters it is suggested that the treaty be abrogated, which is not at all likely, or that no action with respect to the British protest be taken until the treaty terminates, which is entirely probable. In the latter event it is claimed this government would not be bound to act under the treaty. It is such a small way of evading the international obligations of the United States that it will hardly be approved by the American people.

LONDON PRAISES TAFT ACTION.

LONDON, Jan. 6. 3 a. m.—The London morning papers are heartily pleased with President Taft's declaration of his intention to submit the Panama canal controversy with Great Britain to arbitration if diplomatic negotiations should fail. The Daily Mail says:

"Any other than the honorable course which President Taft has taken would have been almost unthinkable on the part of a statesman who has devoted such efforts to furthering the cause of international peace throughout the world. If the senate follows President Taft's lead the Panama question is as good as settled."

The Daily News describes the declaration as a most welcome "New Year's message to Great Britain and the world."

Tribunal Hard to Arrange.

The Telegraph regards Mr. Taft's speech as altogether worthy of a statesman and a friend of peace throughout the world, but fails to see how any special tribunal could be established which would not be open to the same objection as the Hague court. It remarks, in common with other papers, that there could be no better preparation for the celebration of the centenary of peace, and earnestly hopes for the speedy reference of the question to an independent tribunal.

The Standard considers that although President Taft may not have time to carry out any arrangement, there is no need to doubt that a satisfactory solution will be arrived at, and takes occasion to pay a tribute to the highly honorable part played by the greater portion of the American press in the Panama controversy.

Coe Optical Accuracy

Your oculist can give you the right prescription for glasses, but he cannot fill it himself. Its efficiency depends entirely upon who does fill it. The best oculists send their patients to us to have glasses made. They do it solely in the patient's interest. We pay no commissions to oculists. Some oculists deal in glasses on which they make a commission. In such cases you don't know who makes the glasses. All you know is that they are not Almer Coe glasses. If you want our service, you must come to us.

A MATTER OF LANGUAGE.

Real estate men are advised by an educator to cultivate an agreeable voice if they wish to be successful business men. The sound of your voice, the educator declares, has much to do with the disposing or indisposing of the person you address toward you.

There is no question that an agreeable voice is an asset. But why stop there? With the cultivation of the voice should also go the cultivation of the English language and the tactful use of it.

A New York editor recently had to go a thousand miles to find a capable woman secretary. The girl stenographer who addresses her employer with an "Oh, say," no matter how agreeable her voice may be, shows a lack of culture which reflects strongly on her efficiency and capability. She may be tolerated in her position. But she is not going to rise.

Too many young people come out of our schools, business and otherwise, with an excellent sporting vocabulary, but with too meager a command of English and of manners.

THE STRIKE IN NEW YORK.

Garment workers to the number of 125,000 are on strike in New York. Among their demands are a minimum wage of $10 a week for girls and $16 a week for men, an eight hour day, sanitary shops, and the abolition of all sweatshops and tenement home work.

The strike is on in New York, but it concerns the entire nation. This is especially true of the last demand of the strikers—sanitary shops and no tenement home work. The clothing which is manufactured in New York by immigrants living in the most notorious slums in the world are worn by people in every part of the country.

The clothing manufacturers, in their eagerness for cheap labor, frequently have only the main body of the garment made in the shop. They then give out these half made garments to women and children, often the wives and children of their shop employés, to finish them at home. Not infrequently a consumptive father, who cannot stand the pace of the machine in the shop, stays at home and ekes out an existence by helping his wife and children "finish" these garments. From these slum homes, always insanitary and often reeking with disease, these articles are then taken back to the shops, given a pressing, and scattered through thousands of stores and in scores of thousands of homes in the United States.

This is what is meant by tenement home work, by "home finishing," of which the strikers now plead to be relieved. This home work cannot be abolished, however, except through an increase in wages for the head of the family. Abolish home work on paper and leave the wages of the head of the family the same as before and his wife and children will be compelled to return to home finishing to supplement the meager earnings of the father.

The strike in New York is an effort on the part of the east side workers to gain for themselves an American standard of living which they are unable to maintain at present.

RECOGNIZE CHINA.

The failure of the American government to recognize the republic of China may not be, in fact, a coercive refusal to do so until China has come to agreement on the six power loan, but it has been a failure full of mystery for the citizen who is fond of the belief that his nation welcomes the progress of democracy. Senator Bacon's resolution for the recognition serves to draw attention to our unusual procedure.

Denial that the United States is endeavoring to bring China to time and force the new government to agree to the conditions of the loan which banking groups in England, France, Germany, Russia, Japan, and the United States propose to underwrite has been emphatic and some explanation has been made in Washington which endeavors to account for a delay not easily understood.

Certainly we have consulted deliberation more than usual in this case, and it has been one in which precipitation would have had greater grace. If suspicion does not easily dismiss the thought that coercion has been back of the failure it cannot be said that suspicion in this case has been unreasonable.

China has endeavored to borrow several million dollars for national needs. The conditions of the loans it has obtained heretofore have been resented by the Chinese and the government was justified in fearing that the demands of the six power groups, however reasonable they may be regarded by the financiers seeking to underwrite the loan, would arouse the indignation of the Chinese people.

The demand that the groups shall be allowed to supervise the salt tax, which is to guarantee the loan, could be made only to a nation accustomed to swallowing offense as it pocketed money. It may be a reasonable protection to the groups and be none the less an affront to Chinese dignity.

What the groups may be able to impose on China as conditions of loan is a matter for them and China to determine, but the United States cannot afford to give color to suspicion that it is backward in recognizing a new republic because finance would use the government to impose terms.

The most effective answer to this suspicion will be the recognition of the Chinese republic.

IF REPUBLICANS WERE WISE.

It is of no use to address the legislature with advice on a matter which concerns its politics. It will go its own ways to its own ends, consulting its own tastes and its own desires. Much experience is not needed to teach that.

Therefore what is said here of Mr. Morton D. Hull is more in the nature of deserved compliment to him than of suggestion to the Republicans of the house of representatives. Mr. Hull might be the spirit of Jefferson in the mold of Hamilton and it would advance him but little in the consideration of legislators of Illinois bent on establishing an organization.

But if there were at Springfield a number of men elected to the house of representatives calling themselves Republicans and seeking to nominate an able leader, inasmuch as political fortune this year does not permit them to elect a speaker—a leader of conspicuous merit and conspicuous service—they would choose Mr. Hull.

He is mentioned—and a moderate knowledge of the legislature leads to the fear that his prospects begin and will end with mention. Nevertheless, there is due him an acknowledgment of the fact that few citizens of the state have served the state more modestly, more effectively, more faithfully, more sanely, or more persistently than Morton D. Hull of the Fifth district, Chicago.

Men of his kind may go to the legislature for one session, but then they seek higher preferment than the assembly can offer, or they have satisfied all their desire for public service and drop out. Mr. Hull is beginning his fourth term, and there has never been any time when he has sought to use his legislative work as a claim on the people of the state for some more conspicuous office.

The voters of his district have been wise to return him, and he has been willing to go back. He has been the brains and backbone of many a futile effort for good government and the brains and backbone of some attempts which have won. He has not been discouraged by failure. He is not noisy in protest against chicanery, and he is not noisy in the demonstration of his own virtue. He knows the practices of the legislative "game" and is wise in knowledge of its deceptions.

A state which might attract the services of a number of men like him would be a notable exhibit of the worth and value of representative government.

The excuse for this offense against his modesty is that he is mentioned for a responsible post on the Republican side of the house of representatives.

The possibilities of the situation at Springfield this winter are almost beyond comprehension. The legislature is a dangerous conundrum. Control is a matter of combination and responsibility is personal. No one party alone can command the house of representatives and exigency may produce almost anything.

If Mr. Hull were the choice of the Republicans for leader there at least would be a guaranty of efficient, honest leadership on one side of the hall.

"I WANT to consult somebody that knows the law." Why take that trouble? What's the law, between friends?

CHICAGO has a fire department, anyhow, that wastes no time and makes no false motions in getting to work when suddenly confronted with a job in its particular line of business. It doesn't stop to consult somebody who knows how to put out a fire.

SINCE it has become the fashion to denounce "reason why" as tautological and absurd, it will be necessary to correct Shakspeare's "It fits thee not to ask the reason why," Fitz-Greene Halleck's "And scorn to give aught other reason why," Tennyson's "Theirs not to reason why"—and to see how you could leave the "why" out of this sentence without mangling the sense: "These statistics furnish a reason why to many good citizens the glad Christmas season is a terror and a calamity." Not that we care a straw about the phrase, one way or the other.

IT is suggested by an enthusiast in Panama that the Culebra cut be designated as Goethals gateway. Sporting men would lose no time in abbreviating that to "g. g."

EVERYWHERE the New Year seems to have been welcomed with more tumult than usual. Perhaps it meant: A fig for superstition!—New York Sun.

Not in downtown Chicago. Here it meant: A fig for the restraints of law, order, and common decency! Everything goes!

"It's too bad, old fellow, that they shut off your speech at that banquet the other evening just as it was beginning to be interesting."

"Nobody can make me believe you were drunk on New Year's eve, Tom—unless somebody else set up the beverages."

"Dear sir—Although you failed to inclose stamps for return postage we are sending your manuscript back to you as a matter of courtesy."

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

HEALTH IS WEALTH

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

I WAS present at the discussion of infantile paralysis when Rosenau and Harrington read their papers, the striking part of which related to the stable fly as a transmitter of the disease. Rosenau's work demonstrated that stable flies transmit infantile paralysis, but he did not claim that the disease could not be transmitted otherwise.

Having heard the modest statement made by Rosenau in this discussion, I wonder at the far reaching conclusions that are drawn from them.

Since the adjournment of the congress Anderson has published his verification of the contention that infantile paralysis can be transmitted by biting flies.

I hope during the season of 1913 there may be a final conclusion as to whether infantile paralysis can be otherwise transmitted. But at the present time there are no facts on which any one can justify himself in abandoning the ordinary methods of controlling contagion in the case of infantile paralysis.

◆

The most interesting discussion of the congress was that on infantile paralysis. The most complete and far reaching contribution to that discussion was that of the Swedish scientists, headed by Prof. Petterson. In speaking on the subject of the biting fly as a carrier Prof. Petterson said that in January, 1912, they had an epidemic in Kalix, in the northern part of Sweden, on the 66 degree parallel. He had seen small epidemics commence and cease during the winter.

"In Sweden it has not been possible to find any such correspondence between the seasonal temperature and the prevalence of the disease that the spread of the infection might be attributed to insects."

On the other hand there is much evidence that the disease can be spread by other agencies beside, and in addition to, the biting flies. Petterson says, "It must be admitted that there scarcely exist any really weighty reasons to oppose the correctness of the view accepted already by Wickman that the disease spreads from one person to another."

◆

In addition to flies it has been proved that the disease can be spread by the nose secretion, by handkerchiefs, fancy work, cloth, books, by intestinal secretions, and by blood. The virus can be kept alive and capable of spreading the disease in milk and water for thirty days or more. Although Josefson was not able to show that the virus could be spread by the legs of flies, the Rockefeller institute has demonstrated that it can be.

Kling, Petterson, and Wernstedt showed that the virus decreased in virulence when it was dried. The cases caused by virus of low virulence they think cause atypical and mild cases of the disease. They say the virus carriers and the abortive cases may be four or five times as numerous as the cases showing typical symptoms.

◆

Finally, these authorities sum up as follows: "Nobody who closely studies the real points and takes due regard of the facts already existing is likely to escape finding that the eager study of the epidemic infant paralysis has step by step revealed new facts, all of which are characteristic of contagious diseases. He will further find that what has hitherto seemed obscure is only an expression of the laws followed by the same diseases."

In the present state of our information no one is justified in failing to quarantine all typical cases, all atypical cases, and all carriers.

GRANULATED LIDS.

Mrs. A. F. writes: "1. What is the cause of granulated eyelids? 2. Is yellow oxide of mercury in ointment applied to the lids beneficial? 3. Is there any danger of mercuric poisoning from using it in the eyelids of a healthy child of 3 years? 4. What causes dandruff? 5. What removes dandruff and causes it to disappear permanently?"

REPLY.

1. Granulated lids is a term loosely used. Frequently it means trachoma—an infectious disease. Find out if your child has trachoma.

2. Ointment of yellow oxide of mercury is good for many affections of the lids.

3. No.

4. Some cases mean that the scalp has not been kept clean enough. Other cases are due to some skin germ not identified. The very bad cases in babies, sometimes called dandruff, are due to faulty nutrition.

5. Frequent washing, followed by the use of a little grease and good brushing, will remedy many cases. Resorcin ointment is serviceable in others; sulphur in others.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES.

Mrs. H. F. R. writes: "1. What is the nutritive value of buckwheat cakes? 2. What is the difference between graham flour and whole wheat flour? 3. Are pickles and spices such as cloves, allspice, and others harmful or beneficial to the system?"

REPLY.

1. About the same as corn or flour cakes. They furnish, especially, heat and energy. Eating them can be too long persisted in.

2. Wiley defines graham flour as unbolted wheat meal, and whole wheat flour, improperly so called, as fine wheat meal from which some of the bran has been removed.

3. A moderate amount of pickle is beneficial, especially in winter. In summer, fresh vegetables and fruits are abundant enough to supplant pickles. Spices, such as cloves, allspice, etc., I think, do more harm than good.

◆

R. H. D. writes: "Our baby boy, 5 months old, uses his left hand a great deal in picking up his toys. Is there any way to prevent him from becoming left handed?"

REPLY.

It depends on the way the brain cells are hooked up. Inheritance is a factor in it. You can train a child to use his right hand by keeping a mitt on the left. This must be persisted in to be successful. When persisted in it generally results in ambidexterity, which is highly desirable.

PAINS IN THE CHEST.

K. R. S. writes: "I have for years been troubled with a severe pain near the heart at odd times that prevents me from drawing a long breath. The attacks last from fifteen minutes to an hour or more and the last one lasted all afternoon. What can I do for relief?"

REPLY.

Such pains may be due to angina pectoris or neuralgia of the heart. I so, they are of consequence. A physician should determine this point. Probably they are pleurodynia pains—neuralgia of the chest wall. If so, they are of no consequence. A porous plaster and a purge is all that is needed for pleurodynia pains. People who have pleurodynia pains are usually out of nutritional balance.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1913: By the Brentwood Company.]

MUCH money changed hands on the death last week of old Sir Henry Mervin Vavasour of Spaldington at the age of nearly 99. For some two or three years ago the fact was brought to light that neither the British peerage nor yet its baronetage had ever produced a centenarian. Sir Henry Vavasour was thereupon discovered to be the oldest baronet, and was found to be so hale and vigorous that numerous bets were made, not only in his native county of Yorkshire, but also in London clubland, that he would safely pass the hundredth milestone. Indeed, the wagers for and against this probability assumed phenomenal proportions, and many of the bettors endeavored to protect themselves by taking insurance at Lloyds, both against and in favor of his dying before he reached the century mark.

Now the bettors and Lloyds have been called upon to settle up, since the old baronet has been gathered to his fathers, within a little more than twelve months of the goal, his baronetcy becoming extinct. For he had no male heir, and his estates pass to his only daughter, wife of the Rev. Alfred Hobart Hampden, rector of Cottred, in Herts, and grandson of a former earl of Buckinghamshire.

Strictly speaking, Sir Henry was not a Vavasour. Spaldington came into the Vavasour family through the marriage of John Vavasour to Isabel de la Haye, heiress of the De Hayes of Spaldington. Their lineal descendant, Thomas Vavasour, died at the end of the seventeenth century without male issue, leaving an only daughter, and for the next 100 years Spaldington passed through a succession of female heirs, until at the end of the eighteenth century Lieut. Gen. Henry Nooth, on his marriage to Anne Yates, great-great-granddaughter of Thomas Vavasour, obtained permission of the crown to assume the name and arms of Vavasour of Spaldington, and was created a baronet.

The Vavasours of Spaldington were, at the best, but a junior branch. The parent stem, the Vavasours of Hazelwood, descended from that Mauger le Vavasour of Norman extraction who obtained from Henry I. the grant of Hazelwood castle, and of extensive lands in Yorkshire, became extinct in the male line, through the death unmarried in 1826 of Sir Thomas Vavasour of Hazelwood castle. He devised his estates to a cousin the Hon. Edward Stourton, younger son of the sixteenth Lord Stourton. He assumed, on succeeding to Hazelwood castle, the name and armorial bearings of Vavasour, in accordance with the requirements of the testator's will, and was created a baronet. The present holder of this baronetcy, Sir William Vavasour, is his grandson. In his younger days a zouave in the papal army, and as such a veteran of the battle of Mentana, where Garibaldi was defeated by the pontifical and French forces, he has been overtaken in his old age by misfortune. For, gazetted some years ago as a bankrupt, he was shown on that occasion not only to be without assets but even without any means of subsistence, his estates in Yorkshire, including Hazelwood castle, having been taken possession of by the mortgagees through foreclosure.

Hazelwood castle was already the home of the Vavaseurs before the building of the present Minister of York in 1290; for it is a matter of historic record that the stone used in the construction of the Cathedral of York came from the Thieves Gill quarry on the Hazelwood castle estate, and was donated for the purpose by the then owner of Hazelwood castle, Sir William le Vavaseur.

The Vavaseurs may be said to be indebted for their name to their rank in the aristocracy. In olden times the latter was divided, according to Bracton, into "emperors, kings, and princes, counts, barons, vavaseurs, and knights." In the "Canterbury Tales" the word vavasour, or vavasseur, is used in the prologue to designate a person next in dignity to a baron, but superior to a knight—a sort of subvassal—and this interpretation is borne out by the fact that Sir Mauger le Vavasour, the founder of the family, is mentioned in Doomsday Book as being subvassal to the Earl of Northumberland, in respect to a considerable number of manors and estates

There is no connection between these Vavasours and that Cecil Fisher-Vavaseur, only son and heir of Admiral of the Fleet Lord Fisher, and who is married to Miss Jane Morgan, daughter of Randall Morgan of Philadelphia. Some years ago, on the death of the late Josiah Vavaseur, who was one of the directors of Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., it was found he had bequeathed the greater part of his large fortune, some $2,000,000 in cash, and the manors of Thetford, Crexton, and Kilverstone hall in Norfolkshire to the Hon. Cecil Fisher, on condition that he should adopt the name and arms of Vavasseur. It was mainly because Cecil Fisher had been compelled to change his patronymic that his father, on being raised to the peerage, decided to take as his title that of Lord Fisher, so that the family name might be in this fashion preserved.

Every one who has heard the inspiring strains of the famous Welsh march and song entitled "Men of Harlech," will be interested to learn of the impending marriage of the Hon. William Ormsby Gore, the eldest son and heir of Lord Harlech, to Lady Beatrice Cecil, daughter of the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury. Lord Harlech takes his title from the Merionethshire Harlech castle, now in ruins, which was defended by one of his ancestors for Henry VI., during the Wars of the Roses, and again for Charles I., by another maternal ancestor, a Col. Owen of Porkington, who was also governor of Conway castle for Charles I. The "March of the Men of Harlech," which may almost be regarded as the national anthem of Wales, dates from the first of these two sieges.

In the male line Lord Harlech is descended from the same stock as the Earl of Arran, whence his name of Gore. His other patronymic of Ormsby comes to him through his grandmother, only daughter and heiress of Owen Ormsby, whose own mother in turn was the heiress of the Owens of Porkington in Shropshire, descended from Hwfa Ap Cyndelw. It was the uncle of the present Lord Harlech who was raised to the house of lords by Queen Victoria, in whose service he had spent many years as a gentleman in waiting.

King George has revived the strict rule which prevailed during the lifetime of his grandfather the prince consort, that is to say, during the first half of Queen Victoria's reign, and has caused it to be made known through Lord Sandhurst, the lord chamberlain, that any persons who have been bankrupted are, ipso facto, barred from court until they manage to obtain from the tribunal an honorable discharge of their liabilities.

King George is after all quite right in this matter. For an officer in the army who is bankrupted forfeits his commission, a member of the house of commons loses his seat, a member of the house of lords is debarred from voting until he obtains his discharge, and at all the leading clubs in London bankruptcy entails retirement and subjection to balloting for readmission, which is only granted if the discharge is honorable.

A LINE-O'-TYPE OR TWO

AT THE SIGN OF THE GOAT.

Last week I sent a bunch of verse,
And asked, as you perhaps recall,
In rhythmic fashion brief and terse,
On New Year's day to top them all.

In other words, to lead the Line
Upon the first day of the year,
But on that day no verse of mine
Bestrode your Charleyhorse of Cheer.
Didst leave it out because there came,
From Pensacola to Duluth,
Too many nibbles after fame,
Or did I use the word "forsooth"?
Well, anyway, whate'er the cause,
Please stow the doggone verse away
Until, let's see—and here's a pause—
Yes, let it run on All Fools' day.
H. G. G.

WHEN a man reaches 50—the intellectual zenith, according to Munsterberg—it will be a real pleasure to dash off a column of this sort, and a subsequent joy to his readers. By that time, also, many of his contributors may have reached the half century mark, and that will help enormously.

CONTINUED COLD BUT MODERATING LATER

UNPARALLELED PRIZE OFFER.

Every now and anon we receive a pleasant note signed "One of the Silent Majority," meaning that the writer has never tried to make the Line.. Desiring to recognise this silent, devoted and heroic band, we make the following offer:

To that member of the Silent Majority who refrains most heroically and consistently from sending in a contribution during 1913 we will give a perfectly beautiful watch, appropriately carven.

Our generosity has two motives: (1) We wish to reward virtue, and (2) we need the mental exercise involved in writing a share of the Column.

In Which Mr. Joseph Sheehan Breaks Down and Cries.

[From the Decatur Herald.]

"You might think that I was tired to death of Il Trovatore," said Mr. Sheehan, as he watched the stage hands set the cloister scene. "I've been singing it for fifteen years, and time and again I've sworn that I would never sing it again. It was one of these solemn promises that my sister, myself, and a few friends were up in the country on a vacation, when in passing a little vaudeville theater I heard a cornetist playing the 'Miserere.' Well I just broke down and cried. 'You'll be singing it again, Joe,' said my sister, and here I am."

And as Mrs. McCarty supports herself and cheeild by peeling potatoes in a restaurant, sporting writers are reminded by Dick A. that they will not be able to pull that old one about the pug being good to his folks.

MINOR'S CONTRACT NOT BINDING.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My 15 year old son subscribed and signed a contract for eighteen months' subscription to a magazine without my permission. One month later I told him to discontinue it for certain reasons. He notified the collector and then wrote to the offices. They wrote threatening letters and refuse to discontinue sending the papers. As the boy is a minor, I would like to know if they can hold me to the contract and what measures I can take to have them discontinue sending the magazine? W. B. P.

In view of the fact that your son is a minor he cannot be held to this contract. You are not bound by the contract unless you signed it.

SERVING A SUMMONS.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—In issuing a summons to a defendant in a civil suit can summons be legally served on Sunday or legal holiday and must it be served in the county in which suit is brought? H. T. SMITH.

The summons should not be served on Sunday or a legal holiday.

Usually a summons is served in the county where suit is brought, but in some cases the summons is properly served anywhere in the state where the suit is started.

REIMBURSEMENT FOR EXPENSES.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—(1) Can a mother coming from a long distance, leaving her home and interests, put in a claim against her son's estate for nursing? (2) Could I add a claim for money expended for his comforts, traveling expenses, or to recover money paid for room rent? O.

You are entitled to be reimbursed for the items you mention. This can be done by probating your son's estate and putting in a claim for the amounts due to you. However, in this event the widow will be entitled to an award out of the estate which will leave little to pay your claim, so that it is advisable for you to settle this with the widow on some fair basis.

A PATENTEE'S PROTECTION.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have conceived the idea for a patent. A lawyer told me that I would be fully protected while finding out if the idea can be practical by a drawing witnessed and sworn to. This I did. Will you kindly tell me if that is sufficient? A. P. S.

The only way to assure yourself of protection is to obtain a patent. It might be of advantage to have the persons to whom you show the drawing sign their names and the date, but this will not prevent them from obtaining a patent on the device, or from manufacturing the article.

THE PROPERTY OF HIS FATHER.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother died when I was 5 years old. My father married a second time and worked for a railroad company in Tennessee and was killed while at work. My stepmother disappeared after his death. I am told he owned property. (1) To whom can I write to find out if my father owned property? (2) If so, what became of it at his death? (3) If there was a settlement from the railroad company for his death to whom was the settlement made? C. F.

1 and 2. We advise you to inquire among people who knew your father in his lifetime and those who were with him when he died.

3 and 4. The railroad can give you this information.

WORKMAN'S BILL.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I built a building for a concession in an amusement park and one of the men I hired would not say how much he wanted when I employed him, but said whatever I thought was right would be satisfactory to him. The venture was not a success and the man mentioned put in a bill for $4 a day. A part of the bill has been paid and he is insistent upon getting the balance. I wish to know if he can bring garnishment proceedings against me to recover the amount he claims is due him or is he limited to a lien on the building? F.

This workman can sue you for this bill, or it is possible that he can place a mechanic's lien on the building, but any right which he has to a lien does not prevent him from recovering from you so long as his bill is unpaid. You are probably under obligation to pay this man a reasonable sum for his services, although this does not necessarily mean $4 a day.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I rented a two flat building, signing a lease to May 1, 1913. When will I have to give the landlord notice that I will move on May 1, 1913? A. B. C.

Unless the lease has some unusual provision about notice, you do not have to give any to vacate at the end of the term of the lease. The lease is notice to the landlord and to you.

WHERE THE REAL DANGER LIES.

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I wish you may grant me a little space to correct the report appearing in your paper this morning of my New Year's address to the Grand Army of the Republic at their campfire.

In your report I am made to say that the lately convicted dynamiters, growing syndicalism, the Lawrence strike, and other labor troubles are signs of a danger to our country worse than the civil war. It would appear from this that I had implied that the danger comes from these things.

As a matter of fact, the whole purpose of my address was to show that our present war is against the anarchic and individualistic business methods against which these things are but natural reactions. The Lawrence strike was compared with John Brown's raid and likened to it.

The point of the thing was that just as those veterans had had in their generation to fight that theory of government which made the rights of a state of more importance than the rights of all the nation, so we of today have to fight that theory of industry which makes the rights of an individual more important than the rights of all men.

CALLS PARCELS POST A LEMON.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The new parcels post law is a lemon in one respect at least. Take a package weighing ten ounces. Today, the day before the law goes into effect, I can put 10 cents in stamps on the package and drop it in the nearest package mail box, perhaps a block away. Tomorrow, when the new law goes into effect, I must take the package to the nearest substation, about a mile away (car fare or a long walk), to have it mailed. Amount saved in postage, 1 to 5 cents, according to the zone of destination. Loss in car fare, or time consumed, 10 to 15 cents.

Of course I have the option of sealing the package, making it first class mail, and paying letter postage, 2 cents a half ounce, isn't it? Or 40 cents. Nice work, isn't it? Did the express companies put one over in drafting this new law for your confiding Uncle Sam, or is it just pure carelessness? To get down to the meat of the matter, why disturb the present four pound limit at a cent an ounce? A.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I believe it would interest the public if the Friend of the People would tell us by what means the express monopoly succeeded in injecting that little joker into the new parcels post law, which compels the public to mail all packages of the fourth class, no matter how small, at some regular postoffice, and not at the corner box, as formerly.

The new law, of course, was believed by the public to be for its advantage, but instead it becomes a law as a sop to public clamor and a distinct advantage to the express companies and the mail carriers' union.

The result of convenience alone will be millions of small packages to the express companies. And think of what that means to the mail carriers' union.

WASTED SARCASM.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—We read daily of the unjust criticisms directed against our police force. As a citizen of the Twenty-sixth ward permit me to say that we consider our police force the best in the country. Unfortunately, those of us who have only lived in Ravenswood twenty or twenty-five years have never had the pleasure of meeting him, but we are informed by one of our earliest settlers that he met an officer of the law on or about the time Abraham Lincoln was a boy.

We hear many comments on the reorganization of our police force. In this connection permit me to say he doesn't need any reorganization, just furnish him with a nice warm bed and more modern quarters than those of the waiting rooms of street car employés or other available places, and give him a written guarantee that the automobile bandits and other crooks will not disturb his peaceful slumber.

We also protest against the ancient method of compelling him to pull his box hourly. This not only disturbs his pleasant dreams but it is extremely dangerous for him to go to the corner and expose himself unprotected.

P. S.—Have you recovered any of your stolen property?

Neither have we. A. F. I.

CONDITIONS IN PUBLIC KITCHENS.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Last year, on the 15th of June, 1911, I addressed you a letter, which you had the kindness to publish on the same date, and caused an investigation to be made respecting the conditions by which the cooks, as a class of numerous, industrious, and worthy men, are, in order to earn an honest living and support decently those depending upon them, compelled to work. Fortunately, and for good reasons, too, your investigation, although too limited, has been the means of awakening the good and humanitarian sense of some proprietors, who grant to their cooks a day off a week. Those are exceptions only, for the great majority are still compelling their cooks to work twelve to fourteen, and even more hours every day of the week, and the insanitary state of most kitchens is just as bad as it ever was. I am aware that the force of four sanitary inspectors devoted solely to the kitchens of the city is absolutely inadequate and farcical, and it is high time that the public should urge those responsible for this unsatisfactory state of things to do their duty.

To satisfy greed and to swell the profits many second class establishments make croquettes of all kinds of scraps, even of chicken skins alone. Nothing at all is wasted; even the comebacks from the tables are made over, and, of course, resold to the patrons, while the help is half starved. This is true not only of the small proprietors' shops, but of some large ones with many branches. A COOK.

SEE POWERS' HAND IN PEACE PARLEY

Exert Influence on Turks, Who Will Present New Proposals Today.

HOLD ON TO ADRIANOPLE.

May Give Up Crete and Move Line of Lost European Empire to Dedeagatch.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The general situation has ameliorated and the danger of a rupture of the peace negotiations tomorrow seems to be averted through Turkey making fresh concessions which will enable the allies to enjoy a holiday during the festivities in connection with the orthodox Christmas.

Rechad Pasha seems to have turned into a sphinx, but from authoritative sources it is stated that the powers, through their ambassadors here and at Constantinople, have succeeded in mixing much water with both the allies' and Turkey's wine.

Strong pressure in favor of moderation has been exercised at Constantinople, while the Balkan representatives have been urged to be patient before breaking off the negotiations, especially as they can lose nothing by waiting, their position being better than that of Turkey.

Influence of Powers Felt.

The efforts of the powers appear to be successful on both sides. Thus, unless some sudden change develops at the last moment, Rechad Pasha will present on Monday new terms, which will comprise another rectification of the Thracean frontier, bringing it farther east than provided for in the terms presented Friday, perhaps to Dedeagatch, but not yet including Adrianople, and possibly the cession of Turkey's rights in Crete directly to the allies.

After representations had been made to them Dr. Daneff, Premier Venizelos, M. Novakovitch, and M. Miyuskovitch met today and decided to give Turkey a further period of grace, considering the new terms as proof of a disposition on the part of the Ottoman empire to reach a satisfactory solution.

They propose to submit the new terms to their governments for study and await further instructions, and will suggest an adjournment of the conference probably until Friday, the third day after their Christmas, at the same time emphasizing the absolute necessity of Turkey meeting the terms of the allies, particularly with respect to Adrianople.

Consult on Scutari's Future.

Advancement has been made by Russia and France in their efforts to induce Italy to use its good offices at Vienna, with the object of turning over Scutari to Montenegro, instead of including that town in Albania.

It is believed that Italy, as the ally of Austria, and also because of relationship between the Savoy and Montenegrin royal families, may succeed in accomplishing this, while if the same proposition were urged by the administrations at Paris and St. Petersburg it might assume the character of the triple entente opposing the triple alliance.

Daughter of the President Elect Advises Audience to Do Something for Benefit of the Community.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 5.—Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, daughter of Woodrow Wilson, today addressed an audience of the Young Women's Christian association here. The attendance was so large that the association's rooms were vacated and the meeting transferred to the Central Baptist church.

Miss Wilson's subject was "The Joy of Service." She urged every one to do something for some one else, and gave personal testimony to the pleasure she had derived from work.

She declared that persons who live in a community and do no community service are not making the best of life. Miss Wilson also told a number of stories illustrating her subject and related:

"I watched a beautiful little star at Princeton for a long time. Finally I went to the observatory at the university and looked at my star through a telescope. To my surprise, my star was made up of four little stars. Never before had I realized the great importance of little things."

Fearing a postponement of his wedding by order of his physician, John Ainsworth Brown Jr. advanced the date of his marriage by two weeks. He married Miss Ruth Seavey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Seavey, 1136 Morse avenue, on last Friday.

The couple walked into the Seavey residence in the afternoon, the young man leading the girl by the hand. They were met by Mrs. Seavey.

"Meet Mrs. Brown—Mrs. John A. Brown Jr.," said the young man as he introduced the mother to her daughter. The couple had been secretly married by the Rev. Johnston Myers of First Baptist church.

The wedding had been arranged for two weeks from Saturday and friends of the young people had been making preparations for the event. Showers, receptions, and dinners were scheduled for Miss Seavey, who will now be guest of honor at the affairs as Mrs. Brown.

Mr. Brown is a buyer for Armour & Sons, and was injured recently by the fall of a piece of machinery. He had been living with his parents at 6048 South Park avenue. He was undergoing treatment at Mercy hospital for the injury, which was considered serious, and feared the attending physicians would order a postponement of his wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are stopping at the Sheridan hotel. They met several years ago on the veranda of a hotel at South Haven, where the parents of each were spending the summer.

Astronomers Agree with Mme. Thebes, the Astrologer, on Her Prediction Made on Nov. 20.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Mme. Thebes, the astrologer, predicted on Nov. 20 that the year 1913 would be a turbulent one. Astronomers say they now see that she is right in her deductions. They announce there will be three solar and two lunar eclipses during the year.

CASTRO OFFERS TO GIVE BONDS

Willing to Put Up Securities for His Behavior in United States.

DEFENDS HIS MUTENESS.

Does Not Believe He Is Bound to Answer Certain Questions.

New York, Jan. 5.—Gen. Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, who has been detained at Ellis island since his arrival here last Tuesday, is willing to give bond that he will obey the orders of a federal court while visiting the United States, according to an affidavit which he signed today.

This affidavit will be presented to the federal court tomorrow at the hearing of his writ of habeas corpus, demanding that the immigration authorities show cause why he should not be permitted to enter the country as a tourist.

No Reason Given Him.

In his sworn statement, Castro says no reason was given by the immigration officials for his detention. He tells of his examination and declares he does not believe he is obliged to answer questions put to him regarding the affairs of the French cable company and the electric light company, both of Venezuela, or whether any foreigners' property was confiscated at any time in Venezuela. These are questions for the Venezuelan government to answer, he claims.

Has Ample Funds.

"Questions relating to my personal affairs," the affidavit says, "I answered fully, explaining that I intended to visit the United States for a short time to see the country, and that I had no idea of becoming a permanent resident here; that I had ample funds to support myself during my proposed stay in the United States and also sufficienty money to purchase steamship accommodations when I decided to leave.

"I wish to stay here a sufficient time to visit some of the more important places and to leave this country, by some vessel to my liking, which I desire to pick out at my leisure."

Castro concludes the affidavit by declaring that he is willing to give sufficient securities to the court that he will obey its order and mandates during his visit.

NEED 50 YEARS TO EXCAVATE LOST ITALIAN CITY OF OSTIA.

Prof. Vagliori Says Uncovering of Vicinity Where Statue of Venus Was Found Must Proceed Slowly.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, Jan. 5.—Prof. Vagliori says it will require over fifty years to complete the excavation of Ostia, eighteen miles from this city, where the statue of Venus and other great finds were discovered. The professor says the researchers must first attend to the preservation of the unearthed remains before going further into the excavation of the unexplored portion of the lost city.

He says he first proposes to discover the original streets of the town and then he will undertake the excavation of the different sections of the city, after he has acquired a full knowledge of their topography.

Prof. Vagliori is afraid that Hadrian's baths, which were only partially unearthed, have been almost completely destroyed by lime burners since they discovered traces of an extensive lime kiln which they are now exploring. The only recent discoveries consist of the shrine of a goddess of fortune and the head of a marble statue, probably Apollo's, which was undoubtedly the work of the Greek sculptor, Calamis, a contemporary of Phidias.

Hits Steak Critic with Chair.

"This is a bum steak," remarked Louis A. Weiss, 118 West Ontario street, last night in the restaurant of Nicholas Patropas, 548 North Clark street. Patropas struck his customer on the head with a chair and was about to inflict a second blow when Detective Stephen Leddy arrested him on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

CABINET MAKING PUZZLES WILSON

President Elect Says Not a Soul Knows Who Will Get Portfolios.

HAS OFFERED NO PLACE.

Declares That He Will Make the Whole List Public at Once.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 5.—President Elect Wilson tonight made it clear that nobody in the United States knows who is to be in his cabinet, or what will be the program he will suggest for the next congress.

He declared that he has not offered a single cabinet portfolio to any one thus far, and has reached no conclusions as to plans for an extra session.

The president elect admitted he is finding the task of cabinet making difficult. He said he will delay any announcements until he can name his entire cabinet.

Field Constantly Widening.

"I don't like to make scattered announcements," he said, "and it may be that I shall not announce the cabinet until the last minute. Sometimes I hear something about a man whom I had not considered that makes me want to know more about him. The field of choice is constantly widening."

Mind Still Open.

He indicated that he intends to occupy as much of his time as possible between now and March 4 in canvassing the field from which he will pick a cabinet. He said his mind is still open and that as soon as he reaches decisions as to all the men he wishes, he probably will make all the offers simultaneously.

TWO MORE OPPOSE DUAL SCHOOL PLAN

Sophonisba P. Breckinridge Writes of Vocational Training as Sociologist.

AURORA MAN INTERESTED

W. S. Frazier Points Defects in Any Separation of Systems in State.

[The subject of vocational education is treated today from the standpoint of social betterments in large cities, and from that of the needs of the smaller cities and towns. The first article is by Prof. Breckinridge of the University of Chicago, a prominent social student, active in the work of civics, philanthropy, and social amelioration in the community. The second article is by Mr. W. S. Frazier, a member of the school board of Aurora, objecting to the dual administration plan as unnecessarily onerous to smaller communities.]

BY SOPHONISBA P. BRECKINRIDGE

[Assistant professor of social economy, University of Chicago; director of department of social investigation, Chicago School of Civics and Philanthropy; president Woman's City club; secretary Immigrants' Protective league.]

The claim of the child to better provision for vocational or trade education makes itself felt by the social worker in several ways. In the first place, settlement residents, representatives of the United Charities, agents of the Juvenile court, who administer the funds to parents act, in fact, all who are in touch with the homes of the poor, have many acquaintances among the children who must under our present order take up the burden of pecuniary contribution to the family income at the earliest possible moment.

In Illinois that moment is supposedly the moment at which the child becomes 14. Our child labor law prohibits the employment of children under 14 in many kinds of occupations, and from any kind while the school is in session. These prohibitions have never been held to apply to the street trading children, and boys employed in the distribution of newspapers have, in general, been denied the protection attempted by the measure.

Training as Greatest Need.

Obviously, fourteen is too soon for immature bodies and undeveloped minds to be allowed to leave school and take up the duties of wage earning, but so long as the community fails to devise a plan by which the child may be given a longer childhood, and so long as the child is allowed to enter the labor market, it is only fair that some preparation for that wage paid work should be given, and given by the school, to which the child is entrusted during his guarded years.

Nothing more unfair can be imagined than the situation which repeats itself day after day in our modern city life in which the child starts out on his fourteenth birthday to hunt a job without any equipment whatsoever except perhaps an eager spirit and a burdened heart. All the child has goes into the venture.

Out of it comes the meager $2.50 to $4 a week which is left after carfare and lunch money are subtracted from the amount obtained in their pay envelope, which is usually turned in unopened and used for general family purposes.

These children, and there are thousands of them in Chicago, find only the most uneducative and demoralizing employments open to them. They find it easy to flit from job to job, and easy to succumb to the temptations of the street or the work place, while they are daily made more casual instead of more industrial and march steadily toward the headquarters of the unemployed.

Great Need of Safeguard.

For all of these children the opportunity for vocational training which will hold their interest, postpone the day on which they enter the labor market, send them out with something to offer and with some notion of the demands of the world they enter, is an absolute essential if we would safeguard them from delinquency and demoralizing idleness.

And after they have been given this minimum preparation and have been allowed to assume the responsibilities of the wage worker, the school should still through compulsory continuation classes hold their interest and by employment supervision keep thoroughly informed as to the exact demands made upon our working children by the industries which they enter.

Just what form of organization this vocational provision should assume the educator rather than the social worker must of course determine. Upon a few points, however, the social worker who daily sees the consequences of the failure to prepare and guard the working child may make suggestions.

In the first place the vocations for which the child is fitted must be those upon which the child may possibly enter. It is for the present demands of Chicago industry and business that children must at present be prepared. Neither the industrial organization of German cities nor the experiences of New York and Boston can do much except suggest method.

Our boys go into the Chicago shops, our girls into the Chicago establishments. This means a very close and intimate knowledge and a planning which will pack into the shortest time the largest amount of preparation possible under the circumstances.

Against Separate Systems.

In the second place, while the social worker demands in this way that as much as possible be done to render the child more competent as a wage earner, she also demands that this preparation be given under the auspices of those whose interest is always the child rather than the industry, and who would feel themselves responsible for turning out good citizens rather than good workers, if a choice between the two is possible.

Therefore the social workers have been scarcely less outspoken than teachers in their opposition to any measure looking toward the separation of vocational training from the regular school organization.

They demand not that the child shall be taken away from the school authorities, but that those authorities be given enlarged facilities and greater power to train the child for his industrial life, to supervise him in his initial industrial experience, to stimulate and aid him in his industrial advance.

POINTS FLAW IN DUAL SYSTEM.

BY W. S. FRAZIER.

[Member of Board of Education, Aurora.]

I am in hearty accord with the plan to establish vocational schools in Illinois, realizing that if we would maintain our position as one of the leading industrial nations of the world we must provide general technical education adapted to the understanding and requirements of the privates in the industrial army, but one feature of the proposed enactment I believe to be radically wrong.

It seems to me to be unwise to create new boards of education which would be entirely separate from the existing school management. The present law providing for township high schools, I believe to be a mistake in that two separate school managements in the community exist without the correlation and interchange of text books, teaching personnel, disciplinary, and administrative rules, pay schedules, use of buildings, etc., which are possible only in practice with a unified control.

For Township as School Unit.

I am not opposed to the use of the township as a school unit, but I do believe thoroughly that the township high school act should be so amended that with its adoption all of the public schools within the township would come under the same management with the high school. The division of school authority and responsibility within a natural geographical or political entity is far from desirable.

Now it is proposed by means of the vocational school act to still further complicate the situation by the introduction of still another board of education, so that in communities such as Evanston, Joliet, Harvey, and Streator, where township high schools have been established, there would be three separate boards dealing with the public education, should vocational schools be opened, and two separate boards in all other communities adopting it.

Can there be any question that this multiplicity of school authorities will have a deterring effect so far as the adoption of the act now in question is concerned?

Bewildering Assortment of Boards.

What community in this state, possibly excepting Chicago, will stand for this bewildering assortment of boards of education or of school trustees working inevitably more or less at cross purposes, levying taxes for the construction of buildings when existing ones would answer every purpose?

The plan to delegate to the common council of cities the control over school finances or of the school tax levying power, seems a step backward, for that means the restoration to an uncertain extent of political influences over school management, which is something we neither have in this part of the state, nor want.

Our school funds are now levied, collected, and disbursed entirely independent of the common council. This could not of course be changed under present laws, even if it were desirable to do so; therefore, should a city adopt this proposed law, we would have separate school tax levies, raised in different manner, each regardless of the other. This complication seems to me to be entirely unnecessary, and it would almost certainly, through needless duplication of equipment, throw a heavy burden upon the taxpayers.

What is needed, it seems to me, is simply an extension of our present school system, not a brand new one under different, semi-political control.

URGES FAMILIES GET CONVICT'S PAY

Miss Jane Addams Denounces Prison Contract System as "Darkest Era of Slavery."

WANTS TRANSFER SYSTEM

Hull House Leader Proposes Penitentiary Products Be Exchanged Between States.

Legislation that will allow a convict's family, deprived of his support, a share of his prison earnings was urged yesterday by Miss Jane Addams. She made an address before the Chicago Ethical society, Fine Arts building.

Miss Addams denounced conditions in Illinois and elsewhere, and pointed out the hardships forced upon wives, mothers and children of prisoners.

"The prison contract," she said, "is a survival of the darkest era of slavery. Men are exploited at a pittance for the benefit of a few. How about their helpless wives and children, forced to get down on their knees and scrub to eke out a meager existence? It is wrong—all wrong.

"There is but one solution. It is the establishing of an interstate transfer system, keeping prison commodities out of the market and inaugurating instead a general interchange of prison manufactured goods between the states, allowing the prisoner's family a certain sum above his maintenance.

Useless Trades Taught.

"The trades learned in prisons do not benefit the convicts. They cannot work at them when they are released. Shirt making, broom making, etc., are purely prison institutions, and are generally understood as such. What, then, is the released man to do? Go back to his old way of living and be returned to prison again, in order that some contractor may benefit from his labor.

"The state of Colorado has the only system that I have yet seen that is a model. They have prison camps, where the men build public buildings and state roads. They live in the open, thus escaping tubercular infection, to which from 40 to 60 per cent of deaths in prison are due. These men are treated like human beings. They are 'trusties.' No guards are employed. A foreman, who is a real foreman, has charge of the work. He is hired by the state. Prisoners thus employed have one-third of their time remitted.

Jails Convicts "Morally Sick."

"Nearly all the people in prison are not criminally vicious, but are morally sick. They can be cured.

"The people of the country are awakening to the need for a change. The governor of Arkansas recently pardoned 390 men who were employed in various contracts. It was a good thing in every way. A short time ago such an action would have aroused a storm of protest. The mildness with which the news was received shows the people agree with the governor that it was the only way under existing conditions to abolish a detestable institution.

"Some women imagine they can support themselves and families until he comes out! That is the term they all use. One woman worked five years at $5 a week to support her family and failed one year before 'he was due to return.' Trying to fill a father's place, she could not fill a mother's. One of her boys is now serving time for forgery and a girl is in a home. This would not have happened if she had received a division of her husband's labors while he was incarcerated."

LABOR UPHOLDS 32 DYNAMITERS

"Don't Be Quitters," Cries Nockels.

Sentiment in favor of the resolutions jumped to fever heat with the first words in its favor.

"Don't be quitters, men," shouted Treasurer Nockels, pounding on the table. "We have been charged with lack of support and interest in the Indianapolis case. Go ahead and vote for these resolutions. Let the world know we believe in the men who went to jail."

Before the yells of approval had died away, President Fitzpatrick jumped into the ring and made an equally insistent plea for the adoption of the resolutions.

"We want to clear the stigma which has been put on several of us that we are 'holding off' in the Indianapolis case," he shouted. "That's a lie. We have gone as far as we could to give aid."

Fitzpatrick Upholds Violence.

Mr. Fitzpatrick then declared he believed violence was necessary under certain conditions.

"We must resort to first principles if we can't get redress from illegal transgressions," he said. "The Declaration of Independence tells us to tear down institutions if necessary."

It was voted to submit to the unions the proposition of assessing each member 5 cents for a benefit for the families of the convicted men.

RAISE BAIL FOR 32.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 5.—As an immediate step toward procuring bail for the thirty-two members of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, now in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., J. E. McClory, acting secretary-treasurer of the union, departed for Leavenworth today, taking with him blank bond applications.

McClory did not discuss his plans other than to say that he was taking blanks to the prisoners for their signatures.

He intimated, however, that practically sufficient money or securities had been pledged to obtain the release of all the prisoners except Herbert S. Hockin, who has announced that he will make no appeal.

The funds have been raised principally among labor unions, and it is believed that the imprisoned iron workers will be released during the week.

DINNER TO VICTOR HERBERT.

Augustus Thomas Presides at Twenty-first Birthday of Dramatists and Composers Society.

New York, Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Augustus Thomas presided at the dinner given tonight at Delmonico's to Victor Herbert by the Society of American Dramatists and Composers on the occasion of its twenty-first birthday. The dinner was attended by 125 members of the society.

"I have a bad memory, which, by the way, is a good thing for a composer to have," Mr. Herbert said, "but I know that my memory, as bad as it is, will retain for the rest of my life the debt of gratitude I owe you for doing me this great honor."

Mrs. Martha Morton Conheim, after she had been warned by Mr. Thomas that Mrs. Herbert was present, pronounced the guest of honor "a good man, a good musician, and, better than all that, a good looking man."

Killed Falling Downstairs.

Andrew Mauzhinsky, 3335 Mosspratt street, was instantly killed last night when he fell down a flight of ice covered stairs at 3358 Mosspratt street, where he was visiting friends. Death was caused by fracture of the skull.

ASKS HOME RULE OVER UTILITIES

Senator Ettelson Has Bill Providing for Separate Body for Chicago.

OPPOSED TO ONE BOARD.

Intends to Make Fight Against System Favored by Legislative Commission.

A public utilities bill calling for "home rule" for Chicago in the regulation and control of its public service corporations will be introduced in the senate at Springfield by Senator Samuel Ettelson. His bill will be put in opposition to the one to be recommended by the joint legislative commission which has been investigating the utilities question for months, and which will be ready to report shortly after the opening of the session.

Although Chairman Dailey of the joint commission has not yet made public the details of the measure he will introduce, it is generally accepted that it will provide for one commission to have charge of all the public utilities of the state.

Provides for Commission.

Senator Ettelson's bill provides for one commission to be appointed by the governor to have charge of all the utilities outside of Chicago, and a second commission to be appointed by the mayor to have exclusive jurisdiction over Chicago corporations.

During the public hearings here several weeks ago the single commission idea met with strong opposition from the city administration, as well as from practically every public service corporation represented in the discussions.

Mayor Harrison Interested.

Mayor Harrison went before the commission and protested that Chicago was able to care for its own public service corporations, and argued against the commission form of regulation, stating that the proposition of "home rule" was foremost with Chicagoans, and that they would oppose any legislation seeking to curtail the powers of local officials.

Mr. Alfred Uihlein
Schlitz Brewing Co.
Milwaukee, Wis.

Dear Sir:

Answering your favor of recent date in regard to the influence of light on the quality of beer, will say that our observations, extending over the last twenty-five years, have convinced us beyond a doubt that exposure of beer to light has a very detrimental influence on its quality generally, but especially upon the flavor of the beer.

Not all beers are alike susceptible to this influence of light, pale strong hopped beers of the ''Pilsen'' character, that is, the type that is most favored in America, being especially susceptible, and acquiring, when only exposed for a few minutes to the sunlight, a disagreeable odor.

We have tested beers repeatedly in this direction placing the bottles into direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure, found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable, on account of the peculiar odor developed.

The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles, and such bottles are therefore recommendable.

Authorities on the subject of the detrimental influence of light on beer are:

C. Lintner, Lehrbuch der Bierbrauerei 1875, S. 343
Beck, Zeitschrift für das gesamte Brauwesen, 1882, S. 370
V. Huth, Der Bierbrauer 1876, S. 127
Ney, Allg.Zeitschr.f.Bierbr. u. Malzfabr., 1878, S. 273

The latest and most exhaustive series of experiments on this subject are those by the well known scientist J. Brand, in an article entitled ''Tests on the Protection afforded by the beer bottle glass against the influence of light.'' ''Zeitschrift für das gesamte Brauwesen,'' 1908, page 333.

Yours very truly,

THE BEER THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS

"Beer bottles should be manufactured from reddish-brown glass, inasmuch as same will to a much higher degree than any other kind of glass, minimize the influence of the rays of light on the quality of beer, and will protect the latter against acquiring the disagreeable taste (Sonnengeschmack) due to the chemical action of the light. * * * * *

"Bottles of strong glass should be selected. They should never be of colorless glass, inasmuch as through the influence of light the beer will not only take on a disagreeable odor and taste, but will also become turbid." (Lintner.)

"While beer quickly deteriorates when it is exposed to direct sunlight, such deterioration will eventually take place in diffused light."

Extract from Proceedings of the Second International Brewers' Congress held in Chicago, October 19-21, 1911.

"Beer acted upon by light soon takes up the very disagreeable so-called 'light taste,' and also a repulsive, skunk-like odor. Beer so affected is offensive to the palate of most consumers."

Extract from Beer Bottlers' Handy Book (By Philip Dreesbach, Bottlery Expert and Instructor in the Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology.) 1906.

Dr. W. Schulze (Allgemeine Zeitschrift für Brauerei, 1888, p. 593) finds that dark brown bottles offer the best protection against the rays of the sun.

"It is interesting to note the observation that beer in colorless bottles exposed to diffused light will undergo a change, precipitating a heavy sediment and taking on a disagreeable odor and taste."

Extract from Die Theorie und Praxis der Malzbereitung und Bierfabrikation. Published by Director Julius E. Thausing, Leipzig, 1893, Fourth Edition, page 920.

"In recent years the observation has been made that the rays of sunlight effect a chemical change in beer. For this reason the use of beer bottles blown from colorless glass is diminishing, bottles blown from colored glass being chosen; the amber colored bottles, which, when held towards the light, show the color of light beer, are particularly to be recommended."

Extract from Die Praxis der Bierbraukunde. Published by G. E. Habich, 1883—page 726.

"It is a known fact that sunlight and daylight influence unfavorably the taste and flavor of the beer and care must be exercised in the selection of the bottles."

CONTROL NEEDED IN PHILIPPINES

Natives Unable to Maintain Order and Develop Resources of Islands.

STRIFE OF THE TRIBES.

Uncle Sam's Aid Required for the Benefit Both of Natives and of This Country.

ferent customs, and generally hostile each to the other.

For instance, among the head hunters we find Ilongots, Ifugaos, Bontoc Igorots, Kalingas, Apayaos, and others. In these cases even the different rancherias of the same tribe have always been at war with each other. It is only recently, due to American influence, that there has been any peaceful intercourse between the different rancherias. Even yet this much to be desired state of affairs does not obtain everywhere.

Division of the Christians.

Considering the Christian tribes commonly known as the Filipinos we find them divided into Tagalogs, Pampangans, Ilocanos, Bicols, and Visayans. These people, while from the same stock and having more or less the same customs, speak different dialects and have little or no liking one for the other.

The Christian tribes despise and maltreat in every way the weaker savage tribes, but have a wholesome fear of the warlike ones.

Due to the utter impossibility of obtaining anything approaching justice for savages when under Filipino officials it has been found necessary to take all of the parts of the islands containing savages entirely out of the provinces under Filipino control. More than once Filipino provincial officials have proposed killing off the savages as a better solution of the problem than wasting time or money on them.

No Real Filipino Race.

From this, it is seen that, considering all the inhabitants of the Philippine islands, there is no such thing as a Filipino race, a Filipino language, or any of the other agents which make for the homogeneity necessary to develop a feeling of nationality. In other words, there is no such thing as Filipino nationality.

To add to the confusion, besides the ill will and difference of dialect which tend to keep the Christian tribes apart, there are two questions which tend to disrupt each of them. These two questions are the differences of blood and class.

Among the Christian tribes there is a considerable number who have white or Chinese blood in their veins. They are called mestizos, and on the whole are the most energetic, best educated, hardest working, and richest of the Filipinos. They are decidedly in the minority and are hated by the full bloods.

Rich and Poor Classes.

There was in Spanish days no middle class Filipino. The people consisted of two classes, the rich upper land owning class, and the poor lower class, practically serfs bound to the land. The upper class contained a large number of fullbloods as well as mestizos. This upper class believed thoroughly and does yet, to a large extent, in this feudal organization of society. They participated in the revolution not with any intention of establishing a real republic, or of really correcting the wrongs of the mass of the people, but merely with the intention of pushing the Spaniards out and of themselves ruling the islands for their own benefit.

The mass of the people, knowing only too well the wrongs they were suffering, were easily persuaded by the false promises of the leaders to take up arms against first Spain and then the United States, when these leaders decided that that country would interfere with their plans.

Growth of the Revolution.

The best class of the mestizos were not in favor of insurrection and at first took no part in it. When Admiral Dewey lauded Aguinaldo they came to the conclusion that for their own interests they should join the insurgents. When Aguinaldo showed his intention of fighting the Americans this conservative element abandoned him and his party.

This element did all they could to help the establishment of a civil government. Under Gen. Otis they were kept in power. Under Gen. MacArthur the leading revolutionary element commenced to get control. Mr. Taft, in his efforts to stop the disorders which succeeded the real insurrection and to bring about a lasting peace, allowed this revolutionary element, which had formed a party called the Nationalista, to practically have complete control.

Too Much Self-Government.

Though it was done with the best of intentions, in looking back now it can be seen that too much self-government was too quickly given the Filipinos. The revolutionary leaders, with their influence with the people and backed by the American government, filled most of the offices. With few exceptions, being imbued with anything but belief in real democracy, they not only have made no real attempt to better the condition of the mass of the people, but have done everything in their power to render innocuous the efforts made in that direction by the Americans.

In addition they have used their powers to punish those natives called Americanistas who supported the Americans or who have done so since. Due to the robbery, murder, high handed conduct of the Tagalogs, general lack of order and lack of all justice which obtained in the territory ruled by Aguinaldo and his government, there was a considerable number of Americanistas even during the insurrection.

Decrease of Americanistas.

As the disorder was suppressed, the native discovered he could get fair treatment from the Americans and that the tales he had been told about them were not true. As a consequence the number of Americanistas grew. With the advent of the Nationalistas it became dangerous to be an Americanista. When the natives saw that the government took no real steps to protect the Americanistas from the vengeance of the Nationalistas the number of Americanistas naturally diminished until there were practically none. The result is that while today there are many natives who at heart are Americanistas and who above everything else fear a native government, they do not dare admit it.

When the lower class native complains of conditions he is told by his Nationalista officials that it is the fault of the Americans and can only be remedied by getting rid of the Americans.

Thus it is seen that the upper class of the Christian tribes is divided within itself by race hatred, due to the admixture of other bloods, and is totally unfit to govern due to its adherence to feudal ideas of class distinction.

Savages Hard to Control.

A government to be successful must be able to maintain order. Supposing the Christian Filipinos could agree sufficiently amongst themselves to establish a government, they would have to control the savage. This for them is a physical impossibility.

Parts of the head hunter country were never really under control of the Spaniards. The Moro never knew what it was to be really subdued until the American came. It has taken a lot of hard fighting. Even yet outbreaks occur. When Mr. Dickinson visited the islands the Moro chiefs told him they never would submit to Filipino rule. The Moro knows he is strong enough to resist the Filipino and despises him accordingly. The Filipino knows it, and fears the Moro.

With a population made up of such dissimilar elements, with such lack of accord, with such lack of just ideas regarding government, with such lack of ability to maintain order, how can there be any question of turning the islands over to the natives? It could result in nothing but anarchy. Therefore, it is morally indefensible.

Extent of the Philippines.

The next thing to consider is the economic development of the islands solely with respect to the benefit of their inhabitants. Few realize the size of the Philippines. Though they have a population of only 8,000,000 they have an area 2 1-3 times as great as that of Java, which has a population of 30,000. Their area is slightly greater than that of Italy. It is 23-24 that of England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales together and 4-5 that of Japan, which has 50,000,000.

Comparing the Philippines with Japan and Java, it is evident that they are capable of supporting six to seven times their present population. The islands are immensely wealthy in practically untouched resources. Even 8,000,000, though they had the energy and the capital, could not develop them unaided. Even with the development that is going on now the supply of labor falls far short.

Energy of the Chinese.

There are plenty of energetic Chinamen eager to enter and to do the work. They readily intermarry with the native and the breed is good, as their offspring possess the Chinaman's energy, while lacking his clannishness and lacking the indolence of the pure blood native. The entrance of a limited number would not deprive the pure blood of his chance to work, while the example set of the rewards gained by work would be a good one.

The pure bloods, with their hatred of the mestizo, are entirely opposed to even a limited immigration.

The entrance of capital is necessary for the development of the islands. That development is essential to their prosperity. Nevertheless, the Nationalist leaders are opposed to the entry of capital even though every measure be taken to prevent the exploitation of the islands by large concerns.

Thus it is seen that the party which is crying so loudly for independence is not only unable to establish a just government that could maintain the order necessary to attract labor and capital, but that, possessing neither, it is opposed to the entry of these two fundamental agencies of economic development.

Value to the United States.

As the continued presence of the United States in the Philippines, far from being detrimental to the native, is beneficial to him, the next question is in what ways, if any, is this occupancy of benefit to the United States?

This occupancy can benefit us directly in an economic way and indirectly by its strategic importance with reference to trade routes and our proximity to China.

Every year Americans pay millions into the pockets of foreigners for tropical products which cannot be raised in this country. We have to have these products. Such articles as we produce are produced by others also. These others too often are the ones from whom our tropical friends buy. With a proper development a large part of these tropical articles can be produced in the Philippines. With proper tariff arrangements we would get our tropical articles from the Philippines and they in return would take our productions.

Opening of Panama Canal.

Already the rise of Manila as a point for the transshipment of cargoes has attracted the notice of Hongkong. The opening of the Panama canal should materially increase its importance in that respect. A cargo ship bound around the world and using the Panama canal would find Manila a convenient point for disposing of her cargoes for Japanese and north China ports and for picking up cargoes from these points.

American trade with the east will readily grow. Due to the immense markets which are gradually being opened up in that part of the world, it is important to us that it should grow. Under these conditions Manila will be a convenient and central distributing point for south China, Indo China, the Straits settlement, and the Dutch East Indies.

The position of the Philippines on the flank of all trade routes from Europe, India, the East Indies, and Australia to China and Japan gives them a strategic position that in time of war would be of inestimable value, particularly if that war had had its origin in a trade dispute.

U. S. Should Retain Control.

The proximity of the Philippines to China, if taken advantage of, insures us a consideration in Chinese affairs we could hardly hope for at a distance equal to the breadth of the Pacific.

To sum up, it is seen that it is to the best interests of the population of the Philippines that the United States remain in possession and that to do so is advantageous to the United States.

Many, while forced by the facts against them to admit this, fear the complications which may arise from having a possession so distant. They argue it would be better to forego the advantages gained and since the people of the Philippines cannot govern themselves to give or sell them to some power which can maintain order. Japan, Germany, and Great Britain are mentioned as probably being glad to assume the burden.

Question of the Future.

This fear of the risk run is the fear of the timid who forget that no substantial gain can be made without some risk, that the two always go together. In attempting to avoid all risk they would give up advantages which while not appreciated now, will, should they succeed in disposing of the Philippines, be as much regretted by our grandchildren as we would regret the failure to purchase Louisiana or acquire the Pacific coast, had the timid ones of those days had their way.

As regards the length of time necessary to reach them, the Philippines are nearer the United States than a large part of Louisiana or any part of the Pacific coast was when they were acquired.

Aside from the advantages which we would lose by any such action, is the question of what would happen to the native. England or Germany would undoubtedly promote the economic development of the islands and would treat the native fairly well. In neither respect, however, would they show anything approaching our leniency.

Japan's Rule in Formosa.

What Japan would do is best judged by what Japan has done in Formosa. There it has and is exploiting the island for its own exclusive benefit. The civilized part of the population is being deprived of all trade advantages by means of the economic measures taken by Japan. The savages are gradually being exterminated.

There is but one just and honorable course for the United States under existing circumstances. That course is advantageous both to the Philippines and the United States. It is to announce that, due to the lack of economic and political development of the people of the Philippines, the question of independence cannot be even considered for several generations to come.

Principles of Control.

Then to establish a government which will insure:

1. That no native official will have it in his power to deprive the masses of the people of those rights which they are supposed to enjoy, but are prevented from having in so many cases at present.
2. That freedom of speech and expression of ideas will not bring the punishment which the Nationalista leaders have succeeded so well in meting out to those who disagreed with them.
3. That the American shall be protected from the native official, who will be made to understand that while he is entitled to no special privileges, he is entitled to justice, and cannot be treated with contumely and contempt.
4. That prompt and proper punishment will follow all offenses, instead of a leniency carried to an extent that causes it to be mistaken for fear.
5. That capital and labor will be encouraged to come to the islands under such safeguards as will prevent the exploitation of the islands or their people.

Trouble Made by Agitators.

Under such conditions agitation would almost immediately cease. The mass of the Filipinos are peace loving and easily led. The agitators removed the people would turn to the development of the country. The lower classes, spurred on by a desire for a higher standard of living, will work, once they are sure of adequate reward for their labor. None of the property owners are agitators.

Once sure that the United States was going to stay they would abandon their support of the agitators. They only give it now for fear of offending those who may soon be their rulers.

The Americans equitably treated would no longer be despised by the Filipinos, and thus would be stopped a condition of affairs which is rapidly breeding an intense race hatred.

The encouragement of people with a moderate amount of capital to enter the islands would furnish profitable openings for many Americans without hurting the Filipinos. The entrance of a limited amount of Chinese labor would, as has been shown, benefit the islands and the native. At the same time, it would not close any avenue to the American immigrant, as the labor performed by the Chinamen would be such as is impossible for a white man in a tropical climate. Neither would it affect the oriental immigration question of this country, as the privilege of entry into the Philippines would not include the right of entry into the United States.

WANT CHINESE IN PHILIPPINES.

PEKING, Jan. 5.—Delegates representing Chinese Chamber of Commerce at Manila, who are here attending the Commercial and Industrial conference, have drawn up a memorial imploring the central government to open further negotiations with the United States for the purpose of removing the stringent rules now enforced against the immigration of Chinese laborers to the Philippines.

The memorial reviews the treaty between the United States and China and argues that this agreement does not apply to the Philippines because they are not a portion of the United States proper.

Irrefutable evidence of this, the Chinese declare, is the fact that the people of the United States contemplate giving the Filipinos their independence.

GREAT LAKES TRAFFIC SETS RECORD, REVENUE CHIEF SAYS.

Capt. Bertholf, Commandant of Cutter Service, Reports 72,500,000 Tons Passed Through Soo Canal in 1912.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Traffic on the great lakes during the last year was greater than ever before, according to reports received by Capt. Bertholf, commandant of the revenue cutter service.

Nearly 72,500,000 tons of freight passed through the Soo canal from the upper to the lower lakes from April 24 to Dec. 19—the period of navigation. This commerce, consisting principally of ore and grain, was carried in 20,000 ships, the greatest number of vessels passing through the canal in one day being 124.

A year ago only 53,500,000 tons passed through the canal.

ASK CITY'S HELP FOR CHICAGO PLAN

Wacker and Associates Want Aldermen to Take Back Lincoln Parkway.

MUST BE MADE WIDER.

Park Board, Unable to Condemn Needed Land, Offers Avenue Back.

Chicago aldermen will be asked today to give the Chicago plan a much needed aid by taking Lincoln parkway back from the Lincoln park board.

Charles H. Wacker, head of the plan commission, and a number of executive committee men will argue before the council committee on streets and alleys that return of this street is necessary under commission plans.

Need for Condemnations.

At present the Lincoln park board controls the street. As it has not the power to begin condemnation proceedings necessary for widening the street the city is asked to take over the project. The park board already has offered to return the street from Ohio street to Chicago avenue, but some opposition was met with from aldermen who, it is said, did not understand fully the need of the proposed widening.

"We shall explain to the committee the need of this section," said Mr. Wacker yesterday, "and we do not anticipate much trouble, because we have already the required frontage consents and the park board has taken the required action. It is merely a legal point which some of the aldermen did not fully appreciate when it was first put up to them."

Street Obstructions Issue.

Another subject of importance before the same council committee today will be the consideration of the order for removal of street obstructions. William M. Ellis for the Building Managers' association and representatives of the Association of Commerce and the real estate board will appear before the committee and ask that the order be modified in order to protect lessees of buildings whose leases have not run out.

A modified order will be submitted by Mr. Ellis, framed along the same lines as presented at a former hearing of the committee. At that time the representatives of the different associations asked for another hearing.

Mr. Ellis' plan is to have the order framed so obstructions struck at by the order will be removed gradually, instead of by sweeping order.

COURTS SEVERE ON VIOLATION OF MEAT INSPECTION LAW.

Solicitor McCabe of Department of Agriculture Notes Tendency to Impose Heavier Penalties.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—A marked tendency of the courts to impose more drastic penalties for violation of the meat inspection act is noted by Solicitor McCabe of the department of agriculture in his annual report.

He calls attention to a fine of $800 imposed on the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company, which pleaded guilty to shipping unsound and unwholesome sausage from New York to Pennsylvania. The only other large packing concern successfully prosecuted by the government during the fiscal year of 1912 was Libby, McNeill & Libby of Chicago, which was fined $1 for shipping immature veal from Illinois into Indiana.

Secretary Wilson and Mr. McCabe say the big packers are complying with the law satisfactorily. They deny the charges brought by Representative Nelson of Wisconsin that the large Chicago packing concerns are allowed to violate the law with impunity.

HONORS MEMORY OF VETERANS

Ulysses S. Grant Post Pays Tribute to Twenty-five Dead.

GIRL PLACES CARNATIONS.

"Soon All G. A. R. Men Will Be Gone," Says Speaker.

Taps were sounded yesterday over the empty chairs of twenty-five members of Ulysses S. Grant Post No. 28, G. A. R., at the annual memorial services in Memorial hall of the public library. As the adjutant called off the names, a girl dropped white carnations into empty chairs.

When the adjutant had called the last name and the roll of the drum had died away, not a sound was heard for several minutes. Each of the 125 veterans present stared at the white clothed girl and wondered how long it would be before she would drop a white carnation as his name was called. Twenty-five of their comrades died during last year. The ceremony was impressive, and many of the wives and widows of veterans wept.

Pay Tribute to Dead.

Cuthbert W. Laing, commander of the post, officiated. Adjutant Lewis B. Ind made the first address. He paid a tribute to the memory of the dead comrades. Chaplain Charles R. Philip read the twenty-third psalm. He was followed by Dr. Charles O. Brown, who made the memorial address.

Dr. Brown spoke of the heroism of his comrades and declared it would be only a few years until all of them were gone.

"The entire world," he said, "pays tribute to the brave men whose ranks are now straggling and broken. Their names may die, but their deeds will live forever. In the days when we were in the prime of life and fighting for our country our comrades fell in great numbers. Their places were quickly filled. But in the Grand Army of the Republic, when a comrade falls, his place can never be filled.

Heroes' Deaths Leave Vacancies.

"My gray haired comrades, your places as heroes will never be taken. When you stormed the trenches and drowned the roar of the iron throated guns with your cheers you amounted to little as men, but now as heroes you command the respect of the world."

Hundreds of Alco owners testify against the horse

In every line of business Alco trucks have superseded the horse—a single Alco sometimes displaces six, eight, ten or twenty horses. The following data is a brief of the complete evidence in our possession—open to any one desiring the information.

Brewers
54 Per Cent Bought on Re-orders

Fifty-four per cent of the Alco trucks in brewery service are re-orders. The Pittsburgh Brewing Company operated an Alco for one year without spending a dollar for repairs. Two Alcos of the Inland Brewery and Malting Company of Spokane replace eight horses at a saving of one-half the former cost.

Coal
20 Cents Earned Per Ton

The Seaconnet Coal Company of Providence, R. I., save 20 cents a ton. One Alco owned by the Godfrey Coal Company of Milton, Mass., displaces four horses. The Alco of the Consumers Coal and Supply Company of Asbury Park, N. J., displaces six horses.

Contractors
On One Trip Hauls 18 Tons

Carlson & Torell of Hartford, Conn., make 80 miles a day now—horses did well to make ten. Their Alco also works on Sunday. H. Dupuis & Son of Ottawa, Canada, haul 185 bags of cement on each trip—14,800 pounds. A trailer is attached to the truck proper. John Quinlan of Montreal has three trailers attached to his Alco, and hauls on each trip 18 tons. Palmer Bros. Construction Company of San Diego, Cal. move houses with their Alco.

Dairies
Supplant 9 Horses by Alco

One Alco in service of the South Lincoln Dairy Supply Company of Boston, displaces 9 horses. The Alco truck owned by Levy Dairy Company of New York replaces 8 horses.

Dry Goods
Save 33⅓ Per Cent on Delivery Costs

Lord & Taylor of New York City use their Alco day and night. The Spokane Drygoods Company is saving 33⅓ per cent. Snellenburg & Company of Philadelphia find one Alco, "equal to double the work of a three horse van."

Express
$290,000 their Alco Investment

Over $290,000 is invested in Alco trucks by express companies. One company has over $136,000 in Alcos. The American Express Company operates 28, the Long Island Express 20, Wescott Express Company 12, Wells Fargo 6, Adams Express Company 4, and so on.

Furniture
Save Over $100 Per Month

G. C. Flint & Company of New York now accomplish with one Alco in a single day's work what horses required two days. The R. D. Bronson Desk Company of Los Angeles state that their Alco has "saved many dollars." The Kennedy Furniture Company of Chicago have tripled their radius of delivery and save over $100 per month.

Society and Entertainments.

Cupid Perils Rules of Sunbeam League.

UNLESS something is done to stop the activities of Cupid, at least one organization of young women will face a reconstruction of its constitution. A year ago the Sunbeam league was organized by six young women, whose efforts were augmented by their friends.

The work of the league has become so widely known that few organizations in the city have a more interested following. But with the making of the constitution the young women of the committee—all unmarried—determined that only the unmarried members should be considered the active workers of the league. The actual work must fall to the lot of the members upon whom no home duties devolved.

Within a few months the engagement of Miss Preston Cowles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cowles of Kenwood, to Fred Norwood Wilson, was announced. Miss Cowles was one of the six young women. Her marriage followed on Nov. 30 last.

Within a week after this wedding announcement of the engagement of Miss Ida May Giffert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Giffert of 2436 West Monroe street, to Ralph E. Abell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Abell of Elgin, was made public. Miss Giffert is one of the west side supervisors of the league. Then came the announcement, made by Mr. and Mrs. Eduard A. Furst of Astor street, of the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Laurenza Furst, to Frederick Charles Hinkens, son of Mrs. Arnold C. Hinkens. Miss Furst is the league's president.

As if the betrothal of the president were not enough, there followed the announcement of the engagement of Miss Louise Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Denison Morris of Deming place, to E. Detchen Garver of Winnipeg, Canada, which put the league's second vice president in the list of the young women soon to be married.

The same week announced the engagement of Miss Marian Sibyl Hester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Hester of 832 Junior terrace, to Charles Noble Robertson Jr. of Lonsdale, R. I., son of the owner of the big muslin bleacheries, and of the engagement of Miss Agnes Bradley, niece of Mrs. J. M. Baker, to Frank Bartholomay. Both Miss Hester and Miss Bradley were charter and active members of the organization.

Now comes the announcement, made by Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Sewall Felker of 113 North Francisco avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Myra, to Harold L. McCourtie, son of Mrs. William H. McCourtie of Springfield, Mass. Miss Felker not only was one of the original six members of the league but she has been a west side supervisor and has been responsible for much of the big work the league has done at the Cook county hospital. She founded the kindergarten, which has become a hospital institution, and she had charge of the Christmas entertainment for the hospital tots.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Wheeler, 834 Madison street, Evanston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lilian, to Frank J. Dunn of Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Roughan, 6600 Lexington avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Anita Pauline, to Harold Thomas McMahon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McMahon of Lake Villa, Ill. The wedding will take place during the summer.

The marriage of Miss Minnie Weisbrod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Weisbrod, 1328 South Troy street, to Dr. P. S. Winner, will take place on Tuesday, Jan. 7, at the bride's residence. Only the immediate family will attend.

The last of the entertainments for the Stock Yards day nursery will be given tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Charles H. Morse Jr., 1132 East Forty-ninth street. Mrs. Burton Hanson and Miss Margaret Cameron will present the program.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. deWindt of Winnetka have gone east to visit Mrs. deWindt's parents in Cambridge, Mass.

Mrs. Joseph Samuels of Cleveland is here visiting her mother, Mrs. F. Friedman, at the Vincennes hotel.

Miss Bessie N. Parker, who has been in Berlin the last year studying piano, has returned to Chicago, and is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Frederick Bruegger, 5480 Everett avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Field, Hotel Windermere, will sail from New York tomorrow for Egypt, where they will meet their daughter, Miss Margaret L. Field, who has been visiting for two months with Gen. and Mrs. J. Franklin Bell at Manila.

Arabian Nights' Ball Plans Given by Leaders.

OWING to the Christmas rush, many of the invitations to the "Arabian Nights'" ball, to be given on Friday evening, went astray, and it is the desire of the committee in charge to have those wishing tickets apply to Mrs. Joseph Fish, first vice president of the Chicago Lying-in hospital, who is chairman of the invitation committee. The invitations will be mailed immediately.

Each ticket will include a seat in the balcony, which has been converted into an oriental bower. After the pageant, which will be led by the trumpeters from the cast of "Aida," there will be three costume dances, after which all present may join in the dancing.

Eleanor De Cisneros of the Chicago Grand Opera company will sing. Count and Countess Cisneros will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Peters at the costume dinner which will precede the ball at the Congress hotel. At this dinner only oriental dishes will be served. The waiters will be dressed in oriental costumes. Miss Helen and Miss Louise Morris, debutantes, will be the guests of honor and will be dressed as court dancing girls.

Some of the more notable of the costumes to be worn by the women follow:

Mrs. Charles Pope, chairman of the program committee—Persian; will wear light blue satin harem skirt with gold tunic set with numerous turquoises and a jeweled girdle; diamond hair ornaments will peep out from beneath the silken turban of blue chiffon.

Principal Talks on Cooperation.

Miss Azile B. Reynolds, principal of the Armstrong Grammar school, spoke before the current events class at the First Congregational church, Evanston, yesterday, on "Coöperation." Miss Reynolds told of the Neighborhood association of her school, composed of parents of students.

"Through its financial help," she said, "it has been possible to add to the school open air classes, medical treatment for epileptics, and clothing for needy children. The association is looked upon as a mutual benefit society and those who have been helped in time of want help others in turn when their finances permit."

J. Merel Davis of the Y. M. C. A. in Japan spoke on progress of Christianity in the orient.

Expect 'Spat' in Ranks of Woman Democrats.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—With the nominations from the floor, two or three official "slates" secretly prepared, and a triangular fight on, the delegates to the first annual convention of the National Democratic Woman's league, of which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Thomas Riley Marshall respectively are honorary president and vice president, are coming into a lively three days' session.

The league, which was formed last June, just before the Democratic convention at Baltimore, has been a hotbed of politics ever since its inception, and the splitting up into three distinct and militant camps occasions no surprise to the initiated.

An elaborate program has been prepared for the convention, which opens on Tuesday, William Corcoran Eustis, chairman of the inaugural ball committee; Speaker Champ Clark, and the Rev. Alfred Harding, bishop of Washington, being among the speakers.

The elections will come on Wednesday morning, the militant delegates later putting aside politics to take part in a reception given by Mrs. Perry Belmont in celebration of Andrew Jackson day.

Mrs. Matthew T. Scott and her sister, Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, are members of the national board of directors, and Mrs. Carl S. Vrooman of Bloomington is national vice president of the league for Illinois.

Mrs. William A. Cullop of Indiana is chairman of the general committee of arrangements for the convention.

How to Earn Money at Home

Why Not Let Others Save You Trouble?

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

"WHAT is the use of doing it myself when I can have it done for me so well and so reasonably?"

That is what one visitor to THE TRIBUNE'S Home Workers' exhibit room said the other day.

That is what many of the visitors to this exhibit room are saying every day.

What is the use of taking the time and the trouble to make all the mince meat for a family of two or three?

Several of the home women who exhibit in THE TRIBUNE'S exhibit room make mince meat and the cost to you is less than if you bought the ingredients and made it yourself.

What is the use of fussing over making plum pudding for the once or twice that you want to have it during the winter?

It is easy to forget how to do those things, and along with the trouble of making it only occasionally one has the danger of failure and the wasting of expensive materials.

You can buy the plum puddings from some of the home women who have advertisements in the Home Workers' Market Place.

You can buy any amount that you want, from an individual plum pudding that weighs a fraction of a pound up to any size that you may require.

Don't you hate the worry and the fuss of personally superintending a dinner or luncheon?

Doesn't take away from the pleasure of entertaining?

Why not have a competent home woman come to your home and relieve you of all this?

I know of many such women who are well able to take entire charge of the kitchen and prepare the meal without your help.

What is the use of fussing over the mending every week and trying to do it after you have been downtown all day and are tired?

It is an injustice to yourself and you are seldom satisfied with the mending that you do when you are already exhausted.

The spending of a small sum weekly would enable you to have the services of one of the home women who make a business of expert repairing.

Do your comforters wear out or begin to look shabby and soiled after using for a short time?

Why not have them freshened by being recovered?

Read this advertisement in the Home Workers' Market Place:

HOME MADE COMFORTERS—ANY MATERIAL desired, $3 and up. Comforters re-covered.

They are the nicest warm comforters that you could wish. They are light in weight and strongly made, so that they will not come to pieces after being used for a week or two.

The twentieth century is a century of specialists—of the division of labor.

THE TRIBUNE'S Home Workers' Market Place meets this condition by giving to the home woman the opportunity to use her particular talent and to profit from its use.

It gives to you, the buyer, the opportunity to buy the things that you are unable to make and have heretofore had difficulty in buying.

It is to your advantage to become familiar with the things that you can buy from the home workers.

It will save you time and worry and energy and money to know this for yourself.

Men's Working Gloves.

I know a widow who has three children to support. She purchases material at a wholesale house and makes hose supporters and men's canvas working gloves.

She has many customers among her acquaintances who pay her full retail price or more. She makes more than a good living in this way.

Baby's Wash Bonnets.

A pleasant and easy way I earn money is by making baby's wash bonnets, to measure if desired, in materials like chambray, linen, and pique in white or colors. They are made in two pieces, brim and top, and ripped apart to launder. The brim has a band of embroidery beading stitched on its inner edge. I cover, basting to crown, and the outer edge is either scalloped or stitched with a little embroidery edging. The bonnets are finished with ribbon drawn through the beading or small rosettes, and either ribbon ties or elastic. They may be sold for 50 cents to $1.50, according to material and work, and take only a short time to stitch and put together.

Handkerchief Bags.

As the handkerchief becomes so easily soiled when carried in a silver bag, I have found it a good idea to make small handkerchief bags. These are made of linen and embroidered and would easily sell for 25 cents.

Manufactured Honey.

Put three pounds of granulated sugar into a porcelain vessel. Add sufficient water to moisten and make a thick sirup. When boiled to a sirup add one pound of good honey and let the mixture come to a boil. Remove from the fire and pour in vessels desired. This increased quantity will be found as good as the original pound of honey, and a great many people like it better, because of the absence of the honeycomb, which is dissolved.

Marbled Cream Candy.

This recipe for cream candy is so good that it should be sold for about 75 cents a pound. It is called marbled cream candy:

Boil four cups sugar, one-half cup cream, one cup water, a lump of butter, a tablespoonful of vinegar, and a little bit of soda together to a thick sirup. In a separate pan heat one-half cup cream and three tablespoons chocolate. When it is quite thick add a cupful of the candy to it. Turn the white sirup out onto a plate and put spoonfuls of the chocolate on it here and there. Pull as soon as it can be handled.

Making Chains and Rosaries.

I have a friend who realized pin money in making coat chains and rosaries. She bought all her beads by the dozen and her wire by the ounce from a wholesale dealer. The crosses, of course, cost her a good deal more, because she could not get them wholesale. She got $2 to $3 for a coat chain and from $2.50 to $4 for a rosary. It took an evening to make a coat chain and a little more than an evening to make a rosary.

All she needed in tools was an old glove, so she would not get any calouses on her hands, a hat pin to make the links on, and a set of pliers, consisting of a cutting pliers and two plain pliers to link the links together.
MRS. A. DOIG, 1610 North Francisco avenue.

No Expense Except Time.

A young woman in our neighborhood makes a specialty of washing children's hair, for which she charges 25 cents, the children calling at her home. As there is practically no expense she realizes a neat sum each month.

Radiator Protector from Box.

To make radiator protectors, take the laundry boxes in which the shirts are delivered, use two boxes, cut off the sides on one side only, slip them one into the other, and put on radiator. They fit exactly. Cover them with denim. The cost is but a trifle and they readily sell from 50 cents to $1, according to material, and are both ornamental and very practical.

LOS ANGELES STARTS HOME TO CURE HABITUAL INEBRIATES.

Drunkards of Coast City Will Do Farm Work and Raise Their Own Produce Until Reformed.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—John Trench, habitual drunkard, was the distinguished guest of Mayor Alexander, Chief of Police Sebastian, and members of the police commission on the formal opening of the city's home for inebriates. Trench is the first patient to enter the home, and his observations concerning it were of keenest interest to the city officers.

The home was secured by the city for the benefit of just such men as Trench. He and men of his type will be given a chance to live in the open, to do farm work, and to eat the product of their own toil.

The buildings will accommodate forty persons. Inebriates will be sent to the farm at the discretion of the judges and police officials. Each man will be sent on the honor system.

BIG LINER PULLED FROM MUD.

Amerika Drawn Into Deep Channel by Tugs After Three Barges Lighten Cargo.

New York, Jan. 5.—The Hamburg-American liner Amerika was drawn into deep water early today from the mudbank off Tompkinsville, Staten Island, where it went aground on Saturday. Three barge loads of the Amerika's heaviest freight was removed before several powerful tugs succeeded in dragging it free. After the cargo had been returned to the hold the big steamship, at 11:45 o'clock this morning, resumed the interrupted voyage to Hamburg.

NEGRO WOMEN PLAN CLUB TO AID SUFFRAGIST FIGHT.

White Leaders of "No Vote No Tax" League Conduct Meeting and Influence Organization for Cause.

The first attempt to organize a negro woman's suffrage association in Chicago was made last night at Quinn chapel, Twenty-fourth street and Wabash avenue. The mass-meeting was held under the auspices of the "No Vote No Tax League of Illinois." Miss Belle Squire presided.

The speakers were Miss Clara Gilliland and Miss Antoinette Funk. They urged the negro women to form an organization and take an active part in the fight for equal suffrage. Steps were made to form the association immediately. According to the speakers it will be the first negro organization of its kind in the country.

Can American Fashions
Be Successful?

IN THE recent trend towards American fashions for American women, the question of their successful acceptance by women has been raised.

Three years ago THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL decided to adopt and design American fashions in women's clothes. During that time it conducted an extensive advertising campaign, almost entirely descriptive of its American fashions, to find out definitely whether the American women had sufficient interest in the matter. When the magazine began this American fashion advertising campaign it had a circulation of 1,500,000 copies. Of its last issue it printed and oversold its entire edition of 1,760,000 copies. The direct returns of its American fashion advertising campaign alone were over 250,000 copies,—the largest circulation increase ever made by the magazine in an advertising campaign during a corresponding period.

Since this advertising, over a year ago, it has held every copy of this circulation, and never has its fashion department, now almost entirely given over to American designed fashions, given such widespread satisfaction, nor has its correspondence from its readers about the fashion department ever been so large or reflective of such keen interest.

News of Music and Theaters.

First Performance of "Orfeo" Is Impressive.

BY GLENN DILLARD GUNN.

Music so old that its forgotten idiom sounded strangely new and beautiful engaged the efforts of the artists, chorus, and orchestra of the Chicago opera, under the direction of Cleofonte Campanini, when Monteverdi's "Orfeo" was given for the first time in Chicago yesterday afternoon in the Auditorium. Modern music began with this opera 305 years ago. Its harmonies, that then moved the Italian world of art so profoundly, still glow with colors as rich and as deathless as the gleaming marbles of the Cà d'Oro or the pictures of Raphael or Titian; nor have the melodies that touched the hearts of the listeners in that strange and distant time lost their persuasive power. Mr. Campanini and his collaborators set them forth with a reverent enthusiasm inspiring to witness.

The genius of Monteverdi seems as great to modern ears as it did to the art loving court of Mantua or to the citizens of Venice in the early part of the seventeenth century. Perhaps his voice, sounding down the dim vistas of the centuries, speaks to us with an added eloquence; for we hear in its utterance that greatest of artistic attributes, simplicity, while to them his music had all the bewildering fascination of novelty and seeming complexity.

Men of all nations have followed the new artistic direction that he first showed to the world. It has led them to many strange discoveries, some beautiful, some valueless. But none of Monteverdi's followers has risen above him in nobility of thought, in purity of style, in the intrinsic eloquence of the musical idea. They have expanded and elaborated. Many have reared tonal edifices of dimensions more imposing. But none has sounded a note of tragedy more searching, more profound than may be heard in the portentous utterance of the cellos, basses, and muted horns that accompanies the contralto aria, "O! bitter lot and cruel"; nor has the voice of bereavement found lyric accent more moving than that of Orfeo's song, "Thou art dead, my life."

The performance was most notable in its orchestral aspects, which represented standards of refinement quite unapproached by anything the season has disclosed. For these, of course, Mr. Campanini was responsible, ably assisted by Mr. Kramer and a quartet of soloists recruited from the first desks of the string section. To hear Mr. Kramer's tone again, if only in these important but incidental solos, was a joy; nor was the equally beautiful tone of the first cellist, Mr. Bayer-Hannisch, a source of satisfaction less keen.

Of the vocalists engaged first honors belong to Mr. Sammarco, who assumed the title rôle. He is one of the few stars of opera who can shine with equal luster in concert. Miss Darch, as La Musica, made the prologue a model of style. Miss Heyl and Miss Keyes likewise contributed importantly, and Miss Riegelman made the pastoral episodes of the second act delicious bits of atmospheric song.

In the concert's second division Mr. Campanini scored a hit with a tarantella by Martucci, which derived its most effective accent from the circumstance that he conducted it with his hands in his pockets. It was repeated, and he showed that the orchestra could play it quite as well with the assistance of his baton. Leon Sametini contributed the Wieniawski D minor concerto for violin with a fine display of tone and technic which should suffice, since the composition demands little more.

Mr. Hamlin's Recital.

MATZENE PHOTO.

George Hamlin, who abandoned the concert stage temporarily a while ago to become one of the tenors of the Chicago Grand Opera company, strayed back to concert yesterday afternoon at the Studebaker. It must be mentioned that in his recently developed field of endeavor he has contracted a few habits of the operatic stage that he might have avoided, particularly a disregard for the precise enunciation which distinguished his singing of a year ago, and which, whatever the view operatically, must be an essential of the recital.

But perhaps it was another of the recent acquisitions, a somewhat forced artificiality generally indigenous to that field of music where optical illusion is considered important; perhaps it was this which contributed to the audience's approval of the Giordano solo which opened the third group, the "Amor ti vieta di non amar," from "Fedora," sung in a style that was close to bravura.

The program was admirably arranged, the diversity of the selections giving Mr. Hamlin opportunity to exhibit styles of singing as different as the styles of composition. Thus the second group, containing nothing of particular significance, offered a wonderfully sweet mezzo voce in Martini's "Plaisir d'Amour," which contrasted effectively with the vigor of Godard's "Embarquez-vous," and the quite different treatments of the familiar airs from Lalo's "Le Roy d'Ys," and the "Claire de Lune," of Faure.

The closing group included an interesting novelty, "The Old Men Admiring Themselves in the Water," by John Palmer. For the success of this principal credit is due Edgar Nelson, whose customarily excellent work as accompanist reached its climax in this difficult work, with its primely important bass and 5-4 time. Particular mention should also be made of his accompaniment for Hugo Wolf's "Der Rattenfaenger," the delivery of which can best be described as a piano solo with vocal obbligato.

The "Foglia di Rosa" of Pavanelli, introduced as a novelty, was interesting chiefly as showing the futility of the imitation of Debussy by a composer of different race and feeling. An aria by Assistant Director Parelli of the grand opera company, "April Odors Were Sweet," was included in the last group.

Mr. Hamlin was in good voice and was well received.

"The Unwritten Law" at the Olympic.

Edwin Milton Royle's new play, "The Unwritten Law," was submitted last evening to the judicial survey of what is known as a "metropolitan" audience at the Olympic theater. The result of the inspection seemed favorable.

Mr. Royle has presented another of the clinical-legal affairs in vogue at present. He has taken the basis of his story from the records of an Idaho court and with usual dramatic license has not transgressed on the verities of either legal lore or medical science—so he announces in a special footnote in the program. Neither, it may be added, has he found any startling variation of the main thread of his theme—one frequently touched on before and often more skillfully — that of treatment of neurotics by hypnosis. As for his legal thread it is so fragile that it really needed no excuse or eminent legal verification.

His story deals with a family in a small western town. The father, formerly a brilliant man, has been ruined financially and mentally by drink. He deserts, leaving the mother to care for her three children. When nearly ready to give up the unequal fight the mother succumbs to the blandishments of a seemingly whole-souled saloonkeeper—excellently played by Frank Sheridan. Playing on the mother love by his attention to the children the saloonkeeper has the woman fall in love with him.

Then his "past" in the person of a former mistress appears and lures him back to his old habits. He is ready to desert the mother just as she has obtained a divorce and is free to marry him. She rebels and in a frenzy stabs him. At the same moment her husband returns to the old home.

Two shocks. One restores the husband to his normal consciousness and the second takes away from the woman her memory. The husband is accused of the murder. Hypnosis is brought to bear. She reveals the entire story. Her former husband is cleared and the grand jury refuses to punish the woman for her crime—bringing into the foreground "the unwritten law" just as the curtain descends—and every one is reunited and happy.

Mr. Royle's play appeared too long in the untangling of the story. The first two acts were taken up entirely in presenting "atmosphere"—first, the sordidness of a home ruined by drink and then of the sunshine brought back to it by the kindly saloonkeeper. Why the sudden transformation in his character should occur is not clear. After the second act the action is more rapid and conclusive.

Frank Sheridan in a typical brusque Sheridanesque rôle dominates the play, with May Buckley always sympathetic, if a bit bromidic, as the long suffering mother. Earle Browne, John Stokes, Elsie Herbert, Fredrick Burton, and Stella Hammerstein care for the more important parts, not to forget Robert and Vivian Tobin as a pair of precocious children who are not tiresome.

Brief Notes.

Miss Doris Keane and William Courtenay have been selected as the principal players of a new drama by Edward Sheldon called "Romance." It will be produced within the next two weeks.

William Faversham and Tyrone Power, having caused each other annoyance by their performances in "Julius Cæsar," have parted company. After several weeks of dissatisfaction with Mr. Faversham, Mr. Power failed to appear as Brutus in Newark, N. J., on Thursday, and an understudy played the rôle. Mr. Power hopes soon to be seen as a star in "Macbeth" and "Othello" with Mme. Bertha Kalich as his chief assistant.

Channing Pollock, the author, and the Messrs. Shubert have been exchanging courtesies. The other evening at a banquet Mr. Pollock said: "I read plays for the Shuberts for two years—may God forgive me!"

Whereupon the Shuberts replied: "God may forgive him, but we never will—either for those he recommended or for those he turned down."

On $100 a Month.

"The following table is based on an income of $100 a month for man and wife:

Rent, stove heated flat, five rooms	$25.00
Coal	4.00
Groceries, meat, and milk	32.00
Clothing, shoes, etc.	10.00
Laundry	6.40
Insurance	5.00
Church	4.00
Papers and carfare	3.60
Total	$90.00

"If husband takes his lunches from home and there is no sickness you can save $10 a month. The above table is based on the whole year and is honest. Some of the estimates that I read are not, or they are based on a single month and can not be relied on for the entire year.

"One table published reads:

"'Payment on home, $35'—Does this payment include interest? 'Table expense, $18,' which is only 60 cents a day. 'Church and charity, 50 cents.' What kind of church and charity is it at 50 cents a month? The important item of clothing and shoes she does not give an estimate on. How about laundry and ice?

"These estimates are misleading, many of them for the reason that they do not include many items that are necessary, perhaps not each month, but do occur many times during a year.

"Here is perhaps the whole secret in a nutshell: Strive to discriminate between want and need. It is a great work to teach the art of living reasonably; it is one of great charity to the poor. Our American method of cooking is an expensive one as generally practiced. The French are the people who live cheaply, as a rule, especially so among the poorer class. It would be one of the greatest charitable deeds if we could have printed and placed in every family condensed practical lessons of economy in the art of living well, and at the same time cheaply, an explanation that would prevent waste, reduce the expense of purchases, and at the same time increase the nutrition. All these points would give added enjoyment to every household. Americans are noted for being great eaters, as well as wasteful and extravagant in the matter of their food. The old time system of our grandmothers was based on a rule of plenty, with at that time little cost. While at the present time the cost has greatly increased, but the idea of great plenty is still with us.

The Economy of a College Girl.

Perhaps the economy of a college girl may prove of interest to your readers. This winter I was at a loss what to do about my furs, which had been worn three winters, and my black plush coat which, though two seasons old, must serve me for another year. It had a standing military collar, much worn, as were also the cuffs. I purchased a coat collar pattern, ripped the lining and filling from fur, and cut a collar from the fur neckpiece. There was enough for a large rolling collar and cuffs without need to use worn edges. I lined it with satin, using the sewing machine for seams, rather than the tiresome hand method, and it worked very nicely. An investment of 75 cents for three new buttons to replace the old ones made such a change in the appearance of the coat that I can wear it for another year at least. My muff, though worn less than the neckpiece, was sadly out of date, being one of those rug affairs. I removed the tails and lapped the paws of the under side under the head and front paws, and sewed it firmly. Then I sewed up the openings thus made at the sides, leaving room to put the hands in. There were six tails, three of which I fastened on each side to cover worn places, and the result is a pretty pillow muff, made without cutting the fur or linings.

THE MONKEY'S PUZZLE

The thoughtful expression worn by the monkey is due to the fact that his master has ordered him to visit the twelve windows and return with his crop of pennies as speedily as possible.

Joko is calculating the shortest route which will take him past all of the windows and back to his master's shoulder.

Now, if you were in Joko's place, in what order would you visit the sociable looking residents.

Cave Dwellers in London.

The new London county hall, which is slowly assuming shape and substance on the south side of the Embankment, is one of the many new buildings in London remarkable for their underground space.

While the New York or Chicago architect soars for space, the London architect burrows. Owing to the high price of land, the choice lies between the skyscraper and the cellar. Every year sees extensive additions to the underground world of London, where the abnormal demands on space have evolved the underground man.

There are many men living and working in London today who see less of the sun than a miner.

And the great underground world of London is developing. Underground trains, underground tramways, underground cafés, and "short cuts" underground are increasing. The catch phrase of the Londoner should read: "If you want to get on, get under."

Birth of the "Movies."

About 3 o'clock one winter's morning seventeen years ago, the police on duty in Hatton garden, London, were startled by loud shouts, which were followed by louder cheers. They hurried to the building from which the noises came—a place used by an electrical engineer and scientific instrument maker—knocked loudly at the door, were admitted, and found the owner, Robert Paul, and a number of workmen in great excitement.

They had succeeded, after months of patient working, in throwing the first moving pictures on the screen, utilizing the ideas evolved by Edison two years previously.

The film was but forty feet long and the screen but seven feet square. A year later Robert Paul showed his pictures on the screen for the first time in public at the Finsbury Technical college and the London institution. The scientific world hailed the new process with delight, and the picture theater was born into the world.

Not one among the British scientists who congratulated Mr. Paul on that memorable night at the London institution could have foreseen the day when moving pictures would be shown on some 50,000 screens in as many buildings provided for the purpose all over the civilized world. Nor did any dream that within fifteen years a government would use moving pictures as a means of civilizing savage people like the Filipinos, that revolutionaries in China would through picture theaters in the Flowery land gain a knowledge of what freedom and progress was in other countries. But so it was, and is. The moving picture has captured the entire world.

WOMEN HURT IN RUSH OF 1,000 AT NEW YORK STRIKE MEETING.

Prominent Suffragists Near Speaker Call on Ladies' Garment Workers to Walk Out in Sympathy.

New York, Jan. 5.—In the rush of more than 1,000 men and women in an attempt to enter the Hippodrome today to attend a massmeeting of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, several women were thrown from their feet and slightly injured.

About 6,000 persons were in the hall when the doors were ordered closed. When a report reached the street that there were 1,000 vacant seats, the rush at the entrances followed, and for a time the police were powerless.

Speakers at the meeting declared in favor of women joining the tailors' strike, which has involved, according to the strike leaders, more than 100,000 workers. A strike vote will be taken early this week.

Among the spectators were Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Miss Inez Milholland, and Mrs. J. E. Milholland, suffragist leaders, who heard a statement of Jacob Panken, one of the speakers, that "the strike of the ladies' waist and dressmakers' union to the tune of 40,000 would advance the cause of woman's suffrage more than all the begging from politicians."

BABY A SIGHT WITH ECZEMA

Mother Thought He Couldn't Be Worse. Resinol Acted Like a Charm.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 6, 1912.—"I wish you could have seen my baby before I started to use Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment and see him now. He is now one year old, and the eczema started when he was about a month old. I was ashamed to let anyone see him, his little head was a sight. I thought he would never have any hair on his head at all. I used —— remedies for about five months.

"Then I thought I would try Resinol Soap and Ointment. I thought the child couldn't be any worse! I got the samples all right, and I tell you they acted like a charm. I used Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment for about two months; I saw a change from the first application. Now he is as pretty as a picture, and his hair has come in beautiful and curly." (Signed) Mrs. M. Whiteley, 797 Hunterdon Street.

Is your little one suffering from any such distressing trouble? Then how can you fail to profit by Mrs. Whiteley's experience? Even in such a terrible, stubborn case, Resinol brought prompt relief. It is ready to do as much for you. Resinol Ointment and Soap are sold by all druggists, or you can try them free by writing for samples to Dept. 8-T, Resinol Chem. Co., Baltimore, Md.

The World's Cooks

By Jane Eddington

The Thousand Leaves and Other Leaves.

PARIS.

THE puff paste or feuilletage, a paste of leaves (the French for leaf is feuille), without doubt originated in France. At any rate it is put to divers uses here. At home we have our cream slices, and the patty shell, but few things besides. Here they divide a square puff pastry into many thin leaves. Because of this fact, although they may not have divided it into more than half a dozen, they call the final product "thousand leaves," and put between these leaves a made cream, a jam, or even such a thing as pâté de foie gras.

When the combination is of jam the thin leaves no more than dilute it. When meat, like the foie gras paste, is put in, the top leaf is ornamented with aspic jelly which may have finely chopped truffles in it. The black truffle and that goose liver meat go into hundreds of combinations here, but the great thing is the little pot of meat (terrine de foies gras truffés).

Oblong pieces of puff paste, with some sort of an icing cooked on the top and with nothing between the leaves are many. The allumette and feuille de condé are such.

Although every French cook of any importance likes to feel that he does things in some individual and special way, there is a pretty well established tradition as to the making of puff paste, as reference to various cookery books shows. On pages 536 and 537 of my edition of the Nouvelle Cuisine Bourgeoise, by Urbain Dubois, there are pictures of the paste at different stages.

PUFF PASTE—In 150 grams of flour (practically five ounces and a third) make a well and put into this two decilitres (about one-fourth of a cup) of cold water. Mix the flour and water together with the hand on the board—work overhand, mostly. Weigh this paste and take one-half its weight in fresh butter, which must be worked with the hand until it is of the same hardness or softness as the paste. Pat both paste and butter out into a cake. Place the butter on top of the paste and fold over on the four sides to form a square. Roll out into a ribbon three times as long as wide. Fold over one-third at one end and then the third of the other end. Give the square thus formed a half turn and roll out again. The paste is thus rolled across from the former rolling. Set aside for twenty minutes. Roll in the same way twice again, and again set aside for the same length of time, and roll again twice—six times from first to last. There must never be any folds rolled into it.

ALLUMETTES—Into fifty grams of icing sugar stir gradually a little white of egg and beat for ten minutes or so. With a wet knife spread this on a long square of paste as wide as you want your squares to be. Cut into long squares with a wet knife and bake from ten to fifteen minutes. These puff up quite high, and, when most successful, the tops are like the thinnest and smoothest of brown sugar leaves, a rather pretty and dainty thing.

LEAF OF CONDE (Feuille de Condé)—Instead of spreading a plain sugar icing over the paste take one-half of the white of an egg, beat into it the necessary icing sugar, and add a little lemon juice. Add to this a heaping tablespoon of chopped, burned almonds. If the mixture is too thick then to spread, add a bit more of the white of egg and work. Spread this over the paste with a spatula and then cut with a wet knife into inch wide strips. Lift from board to baking tin with a floured knife. The oven must not be too hot. Bake as allumettes.

LOVE LEAF (Feuille d'Amour)—Cut out two thicknesses of paste with a small, round, and finely scalloped cutter about two inches across. With a cutter about half as wide, and also scalloped, cut out other rounds, and cut a hole in these with a plain round cutter about the size of a small ring. Wet the larger round with cold water and put the smaller one on top and in the center of it. Beat an egg and brush it over the whole; then sprinkle with icing sugar. These "fantasies" will rise high, and, when cool, a hole is poked through to the center and the space filled with jam or anything preferred—it may be oysters, cooked as for patties.

PALM LEAVES (Feuilles de Palmier)—To use up bits of paste make these palm leaves. Put the bits together and roll up twice in fine sugar, sprinkling it on the board and on the rolled out paste. Roll the paste into a square and fold over a piece, perhaps an inch and a half wide, on one side and then on the other. Keep folding in this way until the folds meet. Then sprinkle with sugar and fold folds together, pressing them close. After cutting off the uneven ends cut off pieces about a fourth of an inch thick and drop from the knife. Put the cut edge on a tin, turn the two points a bit, so that they look like the section of a blue bell as to shape, and bake on an iron tray. Much like these are what the French call papillons—which are butterflies of paste.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Secrets.

By Lillian Russell

Mothers and Beautiful Children.

[Copyright: 1913: By Lillian Russell.]

THERE are many women whose children are an absolute religion to them. Such women are the salt of the earth.

The bringing up of one child to perfect womanhood or manhood is a responsibility. So much greater is the responsibility of bringing up six or seven.

It requires constant devotion and unceasing thought. The study of diet alone is a science—that the little ones have not too much milk, too much sugar, too much meat; that they eat regularly and sufficient food. There is no laziness in perfect motherhood.

To cultivate beautiful children a mother must direct their little lives and thoughts. Men always remember the advice and admonitions of their mothers when they cannot remember anything from the fathers excepting complaints.

A true mother will not sacrifice the value of food to the taste of a child. She knows sugar has a high heat producing quality, it satisfies hunger rapidly, and thereby spoils the taste of a child for better food, whose heat values are not so unwisely high.

She knows that to school children the candy dangers are great, and that children under 5 years of age who have become insistent in their demands for candy as rewards for goodness have already started on the path which leads to dyspepsia and ill health all through life.

She understands that the kind of meals which are suitable for adults are seldom if ever suitable for children, not only in the actual foods themselves, but in the manner in which they are prepared.

The spiced and highly seasoned articles which are supposed to give zest to a jaded palate have no place in the dietary of a child.

A true mother will not permit the young members of her family to take their places at the table with grownups, for she knows that after a taste of the richer foods they will acquire a distaste for their own simpler dishes. She sees that the little ones have a table to themselves, with dishes suitable for their delicate stomachs.

A true mother studies to direct the little minds of her children to right thinking. She has to study and keep in touch with things of current interest in order to be able to answer the marvelous questions her children will ask, and, believe me, that is a science in itself.

She will interest them in the correct books to read, so that their minds will be kept pure while developing. She will see that they see the best reproductions of the best pictures. She will teach them pure religion, love of humanity in all its phases, and encourage them to save pennies for the blind babies' fund and the crippled children's home.

She will see to it that they play with healthy children and in healthy places, understanding that health is contagious.

In fact, a true mother is the maker of citizens of the world, and she is responsible for them until they have outgrown her loving arms and be some mothers and fathers in turn.

When men stop to think of all this, which few do, they will never deny a mother any right she may demand.

Remember: Proper motherhood is second only to Christhood.

Lillian Russell's Answers.

DOROTHY: A simple exercise which will soon develop the arms if practiced daily is as follows: Extend the arms horizontally, then imagine a heavy weight in each hand; slowly force this weight up until the palms of the hands meet over the head, at the same time resisting the effort to raise the weight. Lower the arms and the weight in the same manner.

ETHEL: Rub cocoanut oil or a good skin food into the hollows in your throat daily. This will gradually fill out the hollows. Practice deep breathing. This strengthens the muscles and will fill out the neck. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall send you instructions for deep breathing and a dietary for gaining flesh.

Shrimp Salad.

ONE can of shrimp, one small stalk of celery, one head of lettuce. Drain and rinse the shrimps and cut each one in four or five pieces. Cut the celery quite fine and mix with the shrimps, adding the following dressing, made and always kept on hand in the icebox: Mix together with cold water to make a paste three teaspoonfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of mustard, one teaspoonful of salt, and one or two teaspoonfuls of sugar, according to taste. Add to this a well beaten egg, put the mixture in the inner vessel of a double boiler with one and one-half cups of water, cold or hot, and one-half cup of vinegar. Cook, stirring often, until thick. Take from the fire and, while cooling, add a good lump of butter or a few tablespoonfuls of olive oil. If less salt is desired do not put in as much as suggested above. Arrange the shrimps and celery on crisp lettuce leaves, pour dressing over all, and serve.—Kindness of "Helen."

Dresses for a Schoolgirl.

"Have you in your family a young schoolgirl about 14 years old who would like some school dresses? I have five—one serge, one broadcloth, one black and gray checked, one sponge, and one linen—I should like to give to her. "RUTH B. F."

So many are the requests for clothing—in spite of the fact that our rules forbid us to ask for wearing apparel through the Corner—that the dresses you so generously offer were given away soon after the receipt of your letter, and we thank you for the gift.

Would Appreciate Quilt Pieces.

"Some weeks ago I wrote you offering some silk pieces and foreign stamps to the Corner. The stamps I still have, but the silk pieces I took out yesterday to an old lady of 84 years in the Old People's home. She is piecing a quilt which she hopes to sell to get some money for winter underwear. To save confusion and possible disappointment I think it best to let you know the pieces are no longer in my possession. If any one else offers silk pieces the old lady would be grateful to get them."

Eighty-four years old and piecing quilts to make money to buy underclothing to keep her warm in the bitter weather! Does not the thought grip the heart cruelly? I am so sure of the women of the Corner that I can already see in imagination packages of silk pieces going to the Old People's home in question. Please remember not to send these silk bits to the office, but write to me for the address of the correspondent who asks for them.

To Banish Red Ants.

"'A. F.' tells 'M. H. M. D.' if she will send her address she will tell her how to 'use oil of sassafras so that it will utterly banish red ants forever.' Will you kindly ask 'A. F.' to give her remedy in the Corner publicly, so we may all receive the benefit? I am sure many others besides myself and 'M. H. M. D.' will be glad to receive her recipe. MRS B."

The address of "A. F." is no longer in our keeping, as it was not retained after her letter had been printed. If she sees this request will she send to me her method of using oil of sassafras that I may publish it for the benefit of other housewives? They and I will be grateful.

I have my own doubts, however, as to the power of any remedy to "banish red ants forever." The price of immunity from all pests is eternal vigilance. One application of what a collegian calls "a chaser" may seem to settle the insects, but their progeny is numerous, and if one is not on the alert the second generation of invaders will soon "walk the paths their fathers have trod."

Tomato Jelly Salad.

Add to a pint of strained stewed tomatoes (canned or fresh) salt and sugar to taste. Bring to a boil, stirring in a good pinch of baking soda and a scant pint of hot water. Pour this over a package of gelatin that has soaked for an hour in enough water to cover it. Stir all over the fire until the gelatin is melted, then strain through a jelly bag and pour into small molds (muffin tins will do) wet with cold water, and set in the icebox until firm. Turn the molds out upon crisp lettuce leaves, sprinkle each mold with chopped celery, and serve with any salad dressing desired. If preferred, the minced celery can be stirred into the jelly before it is quite stiff.—Kindness of "Helen."

Some Valuable Suggestions.

"Some one asked how to prevent linoleum from bulging. Try taking out all the tacks, every one, and it will flatten out of itself.

"To keep raisins from falling in a cake, wash and lay on a napkin and dust with flour. Shake off the flour and add to the cake.

"Try putting soles cut from worn out men's trousers in the children's shoes to keep the feet warm in winter. Cut the sole much smaller than the shoe and paste it in with flour paste as smoothly as posible. Try it, mothers—it works finely!

"Can any one tell me how to size a rug? Also how to make an umbrella waterproof? Some day I will come out and tell you how I make my very 'bestest' cake with only one egg.

"To color ecru use brown tube paint and gasoline. Dissolve paint in gasoline. Test the color with a bit of the material. Apply with a brush or dip the article to be colored in the fluid. N. E. C."

Four valuable suggestions, one promise, and a request. We are grateful for the bits of useful information, and I think I am safe in promising that our housewives will show their appreciation of these by telling how to "size" rugs and make umbrellas waterproof. But is not an umbrella supposed to be waterproof when bought? I have always thought so. We shall be glad to receive the recipe for your "bestest" cake.

Laura Jean Libbey's Advice

By Laura Jean Libbey

At the Lady's Risk.

[Copyright: 1913: By Laura Jean Libbey.]

SOME one has somewhere asserted that, "marriage is simply a game of chance; that the mating of souls and hearts is a beautiful dream that belongs to past age; that nowadays love is far down upon the lists of necessities which it depends upon to make a happy marriage. The man who has most gold has his finger upon the handle of the matrimonial market, it is said, and can turn the wheel whichever way he listeth."

The writer of the above sentiments must have either been a very cross old bachelor or a woman with whom life had gone awry from every viewpoint. I have my own theories, however, and cling to them.

I will never believe that a sweet, fresh hearted young girl would deliberately throw over a true, manly young lover who has his own way to make in the world for a crabbed old fellow whose only passport to favor is wealth. Every marriage entered into is at the lady's risk, it would seem to me. Change seems to be the law of most men's natures. This would seem to mean that a third of the jolly good fellows who enter wedlock cannot leave the spice of fickleness behind them as they enter the church door. Most men are frank enough to admit their failing. The lady weds him at her own risk. The only guarantee she has is his word that he will love, honor, and cling to her for all time to come.

Marriage is the greatest risk wherein a woman is called to use her judgment. There are minor matters in which she recklessly risks. The girl who goes out upon the street with a well powdered face, rouged cheeks, and eyes which glaringly display makeup, deliberately advertises herself for what she is not. She risks the impudent stare of an undesirable set of men, to be spoken to, aye even to being insulted by them. Timid women would rather look less doll-like than to risk such a consequence. The girl who has to earn her daily bread can illy afford to take such risks by arraying herself gaudily, insuring the displeasure of the proprietor as well as the comment of patrons.

She above all others can illy afford to take a risk in matrimony by wedding on short acquaintance or taking a man of whose life, relatives, and friends she has known almost nothing of. Marriage at the best is a risk, and it is just as well to know what the risks are on both sides as near as can be figured out.

It will be claimed that men take an equal chance with women in matrimony. But in the general cases this is not true. They can make their own bed, as it were, that is, they can supply the requisites for a comfortable home or deny more than the necessities of life. Woman must face her risk as to how much happiness after marriage shall be hers. Just so much joy and how much sorrow is every life's inheritance? Why not take a risk in the cause of happiness and love?

Is She Right?

"Dear Miss Libbey: My brother and I are invited to a night wedding at the church, but not to the reception at the house afterwards. I want to go, and he would be willing to take me if he could go in a business suit, but says that would not be the correct thing. I tell my brother that if we were going to the reception he would have to wear his dress suit, of course, but that as we are only invited to the ceremony at the church it does not make any difference whether he wears a business suit or a dress suit. Am I right or wrong? "MARIA."

You are right.

* *

He Smokes Cigarets.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I love a young man very dearly, but he smokes cigarets. This is the only thing I have against him. I do not want to give him up, but my friends tell me that a man who smokes cigarets is not worth going with. Now, I know that my friend is a gentleman. Will you tell me what to do in this case? Should I give him up? ANXIOUS."

Cigaret smoking is a foolish and expensive habit, and to a certain extent impairs the health, but there is nothing morally wrong about it. It is considered a minor vice. Still, if you feel as strongly as you do in regard to cigaret smoking, I would advise you not to waste any more time with the fellow.

Shall She Accept Invitations?

"Dear Miss Libbey: I attend a coeducational college. Nearly all my friends are in the college. I am engaged to a young business man. Should you consider it unwise or improper to accept invitations to college affairs which my fiancé is not allowed to participate in? My whole social life would be greatly modified if I should drop out of college life. Of course, the boys I go with to these affairs know I am engaged, and I never go more than twice or three times with the same boys. PERPLEXED."

I think there is no harm in accepting the invitations that you ask about, providing your fiancé does not object.

TINKER MAY SIGN BROWN AND KLING

New Manager of Redlegs Expects to Land Former Star Battery of Cubs.

FINAL OFFER TO ROGER.

Joe Believes "Noisy John" Is More Valuable Player than Ex-Leader of Cards.

BY SAM WELLER.

"If I can land a battery that I'm after, I'll think pretty well of my ball club's chance in the National league race next summer." That was what Joe Tinker had to say last night after returning from a week of vaudeville in Cincinnati, where he is to be baseball manager next season.

"It is some battery, too, I want to tell you," continued Joe. "It was largely responsible for the winning of four National league pennants in the last seven years, and I think the pair has a lot of the old cunning left. This, combined with the ginger of a lot of my young fellows down there, should make the Reds as great a ball club as any of them.

"If you haven't guessed the names of the players already, I'll tell you who they are. They are Mordecai Brown and Johnny Kling.

"Now, I haven't signed either of them yet, but I have gained premission to offer them a lot of money, and that's what talks in this game. If I fail to land either one of them, I still think I have a strong ball club, but I would like to have that pair of veterans. I think both still are capable of playing great baseball for several years.

Final Offer to Bresnahan.

"I see Murphy says Roger Bresnahan will be with the Cubs because he has offered more money to him than any other club can offer. Perhaps that will land the man all right. I, too, have made an offer to Bresnahan. Maybe it isn't as much as Murphy has offered, but it's all I will give to get him.

"However, I'll say that I'm going down to Kansas City and offer a whole lot more to Johnny Kling than I offered to Bresnahan, because I consider Kling worth a great deal more. Kling, I think, is in better condition today than Bresnahan, is little older, and would do more and better work for me than Roger would.

"If Bresnahan got $20,000 in cash from the St. Louis club as a settlement, he isn't going to feel much like getting out and hustling next spring to get in playing condition. Kling is a fellow who always has taken great care of himself and he would need little work to be back in shape.

Expects Brown to Sign.

"Regarding Mordecai Brown, I will say that I saw him before going to Cincinnati over a week ago and think that he will sign a contract with us, providing he can get sufficient money. I am ready to offer him a good salary and I'm willing to take a chance that he will be all right. He can have all the time he wants to get into shape. I don't expect him to get into the spring battles.

"I have thought it would be a great thing to have him round into old time form about midseason, especially if my younger players had been able to keep the Reds up in the fight until then. It would make us look pretty strong to have Brownie go in and take a regular turn on the slab for the last half of the year, and have Johnny Kling back of the batter catching him. I firmly believe that Brown can get back in shape if given time and everybody in Chicago knows that there is no better pitcher than Brown when he's in form.

"I'm going to leave for Oregon the last of the week to fill a theatrical engagement and look after my apple land out there. I will go by way of Kansas City to see Kling. I don't know whether or not Johnny can be induced to play ball again, as he has a good business in Kansas City. However, I'm going to plead with him and offer him a lot of money."

Makes "Hit" in Cincinnati.

"Have the Cincinnati rooters started roasting you yet?" was asked.

"Say, I had the best week of my life down there," answered Joe with enthusiasm. "The manager of the theater told me the house had done the best week's business in a year's time. Then I was treated royally by everybody and had a lot of time to talk over plans with Mr. Herrmann. Before the week was over I was feeling quite at home. As soon as I can get back from the northwest I'll move to Cincinnati. Then it will be about time to pack up for the spring training trip."

BALL MAGNATES MEET TODAY.

National Commission Will Hold Annual Session in Cincinnati and Elect Officers.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 5.—The national baseball commission will hold its annual meeting in this city, beginning at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Unlike the majority of the former annual meetings there is no one case to come before the body that stands out prominently over the others. The commission will hear the report of its chairman, August Herrmann, its secretary, John E. Bruce, and then elect its officers for the ensuing year. There has been no intimation other than that both of the above named officials will be reëlected.

JENNINGS CHALLENGES DEAN.

Hughey Seeks Discussion with Harvard Professor Who Criticised His Method of Coaching.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Hughey Jennings is out for a return match with Prof. Le Baron Briggs, a Harvard dean. He wants to meet the noted educator in a debate. The dean's recent discussion of American sports caused the dispute. Prof. Briggs found fault with Jennings' methods of coaching. He measured it algebraically and found it out of plumb. Jennings, who arrived here today, offered to debate the matter according to rhetorical Marquis of Queensberry rules. No word has come from the dean.

SKATING TROPHY TO M'LEAN

Leaves Sickbed to Win Derby Race at Humboldt Park.

10,000 PERSONS PRESENT.

Walter Gunderson of I. A. C. Takes Novice Event Under Protest.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Two weeks ago Robert McLean, international skating champion, was confined to his bed with a severe attack of scarlet fever. Yesterday the plucky youngster disregarded the advice of his physician and entered to compete in the feature race of the Sleipner A. C. skating derby at Humboldt park. Despite his weakened condition McLean finished first in two events, one of his victories giving him permanent possession of the Nestor Johnson trophy, a mile race which he won in 3:05.

It was the trophy race which induced McLean to enter the contests. A year ago he won a leg on the trophy at the same park, and it was his anxiety to clinch his right to the emblem that induced him to endanger his health by leaving home. A stiff wind blew across the lagoon and the light snow was blown into the faces of the contestants. McLean's physician had accompanied him to the park, and pointed out the unfavorable conditions, but still the champion insisted on competing.

Crowd of 10,000 Sees Races.

Approximately 10,000 ice fans, one of the largest crowds that ever saw a similar event at Humboldt park, packed every available spot around the course. McLean whetted the appetites of the fans for the feature contest by winning the half mile race, the second event on the card. W. E. Gundersen and Harry Kaad finished second and third respectively in this contest. Kaad went into the lead at the start, but McLean caught him at the first turn, and won by a comfortable margin. Leon Greib, a Milwaukee skater, failed to show as well as was expected in this event. The winner's time was 1:25 4-5.

McLean Wins Trophy Race.

Five started in the trophy race. Kaad again shot into the lead at the start, with the others bunched several yards behind him when the first turn was reached. McLean's speed in taking turns enabled him to draw up on even terms with the tri-color skater before the second round was made, and Fisher and Gundersen also gained slightly on Kaad. Costello, the fifth starter, was trailing the field when the half mile was reached. At the three-quarters Gundersen had taken the lead, with McLean and Kaad only inches behind. McLean sprinted in the final quarter and drew away from both Gundersen and Kaad, finishing in front by a margin which he might have increased had he desired.

Norman Wins Handicap Event.

The two mile handicap race went to Thomas Norman of the Douglas Park club with a handicap of 275 yards. Norman negotiated the distance in 7:25 2-5. Roy McWorther, who had an allowance of 225 yards, was a good second, and James Costello of the Douglas Park Skating club managed to secure the show honors. Costello had a handicap of 300 yards. McLean, Fisher, Kaad, and Greib all were entered in this affair, but proved unable to overcome the big handicaps allowed the less experienced skaters.

The mile race for novices was won by Roy Gundersen, an unattached entrant, in 3:26 2-5. Gundersen is said to have won one race last year, and first prize was held up pending a decision by the officials. James Hansen of the Palvia A. C. finished second, A. Nordgren was third, and William Winter, a Milwaukee entrant, was fourth.

August Nelsen furnished added entertainment to the big crowd with an exhibition of fancy skating. Summaries:

One-half mile race for boys—Won by Edward Planert; Roy Nelsen, second; Edward Moorehead, third. Time, 1:44.

One-half mile open race—Won by Robert McLean; W. E. Gundersen, second; Harry Kaad, third. Time, 1:25 4-5.

Mile novice race—Won by Roy Gundersen; James Hansen, second; A. Nordgren, third; William Winter, fourth. Time, 3:26 2-5.

Two mile handicap—Won by Thomas M. Norman; Roy McWorther, second; James Costello, third. Time, 7:25 2-5.

Nestor Johnson trophy race, 1 mile—Won by Robert McLean; W. E. Gundersen, second; Harry Kaad, third. Time, 3:05.

WENDELL PHILLIPS ELEVEN RETURNS FROM WESTERN TOUR

South Side Boys Declare Trip a Success, Though Defeated in Two of the Three Games on Long Trip.

Members of the Wendell Phillips High school football squad, including Faculty Representative Hugh L. Ray and Coach Multon, arrived yesterday noon from Astoria, Ore., the scene of the only victory of the three contests played in the west during the holiday vacation. Although victorious in only one clash, the players pronounced the trip a success.

Adverse ruling on special formations which Wendell Phillips intended to use in the Boise game was, in a measure, responsible for the defeat. Western officials refused to allow a tackle one yard back of the line. They ruled that the player must be back either five yards or on the line of scrimmage.

According to Capt. Alberts the Boise team outweighed Wendell Phillips fifteen pounds to a player, while at Portland conditions placed the Chicago eleven under a greater handicap. Alberts claims the Portland backfield averaged 200 pounds with one player around 220 pounds. The entire western team was at least thirty pounds on the average heavier than the invaders.

Only three players, Sherman, McCarthy, and Davis, suffered injuries. In all cases they were minor, received in the Portland game, but did not prevent any of the youngsters from participating in the Astoria contest. The boys brought back reports that the treatment accorded them in the west was cordial.

MARKSMEN TRY SKILL IN GALE.

Two Events Decided at Chicago Gun Club—Kuss Led Field with Score of 77.

Despite a stiff gale, which cut down the scores of the marksmen, two events were held at the Chicago Gun club traps yesterday. The wind blew directly in the faces of the shooters, making good work almost impossible. The best score of the day was made by Robert Kuss, who broke 77 targets out of 100 in the open handicap event. Edward Silver was second, with 76.

COACH STAGG GOES TO FLORIDA.

Ill Health Forces Maroon Mentor to Take Vacation for at Least Three Months.

Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago left for Florida last night for a vacation for at least three months. The "Old Man" has been in ill health for some time, but thought he might get through the winter campaign without taking a rest. Apparently the strenuous football season affected him more than he anticipated, for he was warned that to continue his work at the Midway would endanger his life.

ICY GAME TO HYDE PARK BLUES

Local Soccer Eleven Defeats Braceville, 2 to 0.

SLEET RETARDS PLAYERS.

Slippery Condition of Field Makes It Difficult to Score.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Scoring one goal in each half the Hyde Park Blues defeated the Braceville Blues, champions of the Illinois Valley soccer league, 2 to 0 in their arctic match at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue yesterday.

It was unfortunate that a freezing sleet fell early in the day, as this made the field slippery and the ball soon gathered a light coating of frost. Under the stormy conditions it was difficult to form an estimate of the real skill of the miners, who had previous to yesterday lost only one game this season.

Twenty minutes after the start the Hyde Park men attacked, and after a tricky run Parker got close to the goal mouth and scored.

Marley Scores First Goal.

Early in the second period Hyde Park forced a corner kick, but nothing came of it. Some combination play by the home forwards gave Marley the ball twenty yards out and he booted a great goal. The ball hit Paderni on the shoulder and was deflected into the corner of the net, giving Holmes no show to get it.

Herron had a good chance to score for Braceville but shot wide, and at the other end Capt. Parker did the same from short range. Another invasion by Braceville ended by Gleghorn booting over the goal. Marley came close to scoring again, his drive hitting the cross bar and bounding back into play.

Braceville forced two fruitless corner kicks and McKay blocked a shot from Lewis. Braceville had the better of the attack in the last fifteen minutes, Birchall stopping a shot from Tyler and making a nice save of a dropping ball which Lewis tipped into the goal mouth.

Goalkeeper Prevents Count.

Hyde Park made a quick attack up center and Mair shot across the goal mouth. Braceville once more invaded and Birchall stopped a hard long drive from Gleghorn. He fumbled for an instant, but cleared the ball before the opposing forwards could reach it. Lineup:

The local team scored four of its goals in the first half, getting two in the first ten minutes of play. The visitors' only score was made in the second half.

WILLARD REFUSES OFFER FOR MATCH

Challenger of McCarty Declines Bout with "Gunboat" Smith on Coast.

FIGHTER A "GOLD MINE"?

Business Men Would Give Charley Cutler $10,000 for His "Interest" in Cowboy.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

The services of Jess Willard, contender for the heavyweight title now held by Luther McCarty, are sought by promoters in all sections of the country. The "big fellow" received an offer yesterday from Promoter Moffett of the Wheelman's club of Oakland, Cal., for a bout with "Gunboat" Smith, one of the best heavyweights on the coast.

The western promoter wanted to stage the match on Feb. 1, but Willard declined, as he wants to meet McCarty before he engages in any more battles with second raters. Moffett wanted Willard to go ten rounds with Smith, but Jess said the terms offered would not be worth the trip. Tony Ross will be substituted for Willard.

Willard is not given to boasting, but if there is one fighter whom he thinks he can beat that man is McCarty. Jess has met and beaten most of the best men in the heavyweight division, and he believes his record entitles him to a match with the champion. Willard objects to a match between McCarty and Bombardier Wells, a foreigner, declaring an American should be given first chance.

"McCarty is right in drawing the color line, and I would do the same thing if I were in his position," said Willard. "A white man has no right battling with a negro. There are enough black fighters in the business to keep them busy among themselves, and the crop of good white boxers is large enough to accommodate all the promoters.

"I have refused the offer to meet Smith because I know I can beat him, and the terms offered me would not make the trip worth while. One of my hands is sore and I want it to heal properly so that if I get a chance to meet McCarty I will not have any excuses to offer if he beats me.

"McCarty says he will not fight again until July 4. I understand he has signed to meet Bombardier Wells on the coast. If this is true, I guess I'll have to wait, but I am going to keep after him until he either agrees to give me a match or shows the public he does not want any of my game."

A number of Chicago business men want to take hold of Jess as a paying proposition. C. E. Robinson, 2544 Michigan avenue, a real estate man; George M. Kenny of the Kenny Transfer company; Dr. J. J. Davis, and George Hofmann are the men who have offered Charley Cutler $10,000 for his interest in Willard. The sum of $2,500 will be paid Cutler when he signifies his willingness to do business. Another $2,500 will be given Charley when Willard and McCarty are matched, and the remaining $5,000 when the pair step into the ring. If Cutler is willing to relinquish his hold on Willard and the latter is satisfied with the arrangement, the syndicate will select a capable manager to look after the interests of the giant.

Charley White, Chicago's featherweight champion, will leave tonight for Omaha, where he will go ten rounds with Tommy Bresnahan Friday night. Charley is in great shape and expects to win easily. In the absence of Nate Lewis, Joe Thomas, the boy manager, will go with White and act as his chief second and adviser.

Steve Ketchel and his manager, Larney Lichtenstein, left last night for Stockton, Ill., where Steve tonight will go ten rounds with "Battling" Meyers, a protégé of Harry Forbes. Ben Croutch, a local high school boxer, and Tommy Smith will meet in the eight round semi-windup.

Mickey Sheridan and his manager, Fred Gilmore, will leave tonight for Windsor, Canada, where Sheridan will box eight rounds with Paul Sikora on Wednesday. This will be Sheridan's first fight in five months. Sheridan is hot on the trail of Eddie Murphy, the Boston lightweight, who was beaten twice by Packey McFarland. Mickey has boxed the easterner and is certain he can beat him.

On Thursday night Jimmy McGovern, another of the Gilmore stable, will box ten rounds with Jack Shaughnessey at Jackson, Mich. This will be one of Jimmy's first fights, and Gilmore has a lot of confidence in his ability. McGovern learned all he knows from the Gilmores, who are taking a keen interest in him.

"Spike" Kelly is working like a Trojan in preparation for his ten round battle with "Wildcat" Ferns at Memphis, Tenn., on Jan. 13. The winner of this contest will have a good claim to the welterweight title, and the Irishman is doing his best to get into shape.

BIG PURSES ARE OFFERED FOR M'CARTY; PARIS WANTS HIM.

Manager McCarney Accepts Missouri Dates and Asks $30,000 for Burns Match Abroad.

BY HARRY GILMORE JR.

Venice, Cal., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—So numerous are the offers and so flattering are the terms accompanying them to Billy McCarney, manager of the new world's heavyweight champion, Luther McCarty, that wise Billy sits back in a cool and reticent manner and just waits.

While waiting on previous bids Billy received a $2,500 guarantee from Kansas City for McCarty to take on an exhibition bout there with his sparing partners a week from Monday night. To this the shrewd Mr. McCarney made prompt acknowledgment, with his acceptance, with a proviso of a 40 per cent privilege. A like offer has been accepted at Springfield, Mo., where McCarty made his first ring encounter under Manager McCarney over a year ago.

Greatest of all comes a flattering guarantee from Paris for the champion to meet Tommy Burns there the first week of June, the night before the Grand Prix is run. McCarney named the offer, but did not wish to give it for publication, but read his reply asking a $30,000 guarantee, with $2,500 expense money.

"If Mr. Burns hopes to get a chance at the title through McCarty," said Billy, "he can listen to some of the terms he imposed when champion. Both fighter and manager are planning to leave here about Wednesday, going direct to Kansas City, then to Springfield. They will make St. Louis and Chicago en route to New York.

OLD ASSOCIATE OF KEENE DIES.

Maj. Daingerfield, Manager of Financier's Racing Interests, Ignorant of Employer's Death.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 5.—Maj. Foxhall Alexander Daingerfield, manager of the racing and stable interests of James R. Keene, his brother-in-law, died at a hospital here today, aged 73, unconscious of the fact that his long time business associate and relative had passed away two days before. The two men had collaborated in breeding and raising some of the most famous thoroughbreds the world has known.

During his illness of the last year Maj. Daingerfield's daughter, Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield, known as a magazine and newspaper writer, has managed the big stock farm.

Just before his death Maj. Daingerfield compiled statistics showing that in the six years from 1905 to 1910 Mr. Keene's winnings from his Kentucky bred horses aggregated $1,237,050.

PELIKANS LEAD PIN LEAGUE

Sweep Series in Randolph, While Taylor Trunks Lose.

NEW RECORD FOR TOEMMEL.

Three Teams Now Tied for First Place in the Concordia Race.

Most of the bowling leagues laid off during the holidays, but the Randolph league, one of the largest in the city, continued its schedule and produced some interesting games. The Pelikans, by a triple victory from the Columbian Knights, have gained a one game lead over the Taylor Trunks, who dropped a game by the Colonials during the week.

In the individual list Toemmel and Kelly, city champions in the doubles, are in front with Collier. Toemmel set a new three game series record for the league when he averaged 235 1-3.

In the Concordia league one of the closest races in the history of the game is being staged. Three teams are tied for first place and three for second. Pudewa leads in the individual work.

The Monroe league shows no changes, with the Schlitz five safely intrenched in the lead. Art Fitt leads the individuals.

Gibsons lead the Bryn Mawr league, with three members of the Sir Clifton team, which is in second place, leading in the individual standing. The averages follow:

IMMIGRANT HELD MODERN PRODIGAL

The Rev. C. W. Gilkey Gives Sunday Evening Club New View of Wandering Son.

PLEADS FOR FOREIGNER.

Warns Against Widening Breach Between Native and Alien Born Citizen.

The Bible parable of the prodigal son received a new and modern application in an address by the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, pastor of the Hyde Park Baptist church, given last evening at the Sunday Evening club, in Orchestra hall.

The foreign immigrant was likened to the son who went into a far country and the people who refuse to give the immigrant sympathy and help were likened to the unfraternal brother who remained at home and found fault. The same idea was applied to all who turned away in the spirit of complacency from those who were in need of social help and betterment.

"The virtue of the prodigal consisted in the fact that he had love in his heart," he said.

"The attitude of America toward the immigrant has too largely been that of the unfraternal brother. The immigrant comes to our shores saying, as did the prodigal, 'make me as one of thy hired servants.'

Foreigner a Patriot, Too.

"We charge him with being the cause of political corruption and much of our financial disasters. We have looked on him in a cynical way as we have seen him on the train or the street car. We have called him 'Sheeny,' a 'Dago,' and have compared him with cattle and sheep. Yet through it all he has been undergoing the miracle of transformation by reason of hope, faith, and patriotism. Patriotism is not a matter of whether a man lives in the north end of Boston or in the back bay district.

"More than one-half of the voters in the country are foreign born. Beware of widening the cleavage that separates us from our foreign brother. If it comes to a final division of the estate of this country it will be well for us to ask of the census taker and the vote counter as to which citizen will get the larger share.

"The unfraternal brother is the man who turns away from any who have social need. Prosperous, self-complacent folks have a way of saying, 'This is a great question. Undoubtedly there is social injustice, but then you can't help it so long as people are people. You can't change people.'

"If we can't change people we can remove the conditions under which people are crushed and distorted and we can set their better natures free.

Asks Co-operation with God.

"If we cannot change people God can, and we can coöperate in giving Him a chance.

"The trouble with the unfraternal brother in the instance recorded in the parable was that he didn't understand his prodigal brother. He knew him only as a scapegrace. He did not know his better nature. He didn't know what love can do in the changing of character when the life of God gets into the soul of a man. He simply shrunk and shriveled until he himself was harder to reach for good than his prodigal brother.

"This will happen to every one who does not keep the windows and doors of his soul open to others. It is this that keeps us from understanding God and other people.

"Jesus in speaking of the prodigal never condoned his sins. He knew that he was but temporarily submerged. He saw the good and the possibilities in him. He was an older brother, who knew the father's heart. Today he is ranging over the fields and into far countries reminding all wandering men of the warmth, wealth, and welcome of the Father's house."

ILLINOIS WINS THIRD PLACE AS AN OIL PRODUCING STATE.

Year's Output of 28,000,000 Barrels of 42 Gallons Each Only Exceeded by California and Oklahoma.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—[Special.]—Illinois retains third rank among the oil producing states in 1912, although it suffered a loss of more than 3,000,000 barrels in output. California is first and Oklahoma second. The geological survey in a report issued today gives the following comparison of production in 1911 and 1912 by states:

	—Barrels of 42 gallons— 1911.	1912.
California	81,134,391	87,000,000
Oklahoma	56,069,637	52,000,000
Illinois	31,317,038	28,000,000
Louisiana	10,720,420	10,000,000
West Virginia	9,795,464	11,800,000
Texas	9,526,474	10,500,000
Ohio	8,817,112	8,500,000
Pennsylvania	8,248,158	8,000,000
Indiana	1,695,289	1,200,000
Kansas	1,278,819	1,300,000
New York	952,515	700,000
Kentucky	472,458	500,000
Colorado	226,926	200,000
Other states	194,690	500,000
	220,449,391	220,200,000

The report states that the shrinkage of the supply in the United States and the increased demand for gasoline accounts for the increase in prices. Pennsylvania petroleum at the wells sells now at $2 a barrel, compared with $1.30 a year ago. In Illinois the price has advanced from 67 cents to $1.05. American prices also have been affected, states the report, by the shrinkage of the Russian and other foreign production.

STEADY YEAR IN N. Y. MARKET

Resume Shows Most Active Stocks Varied Scarcely a Point.

DROP WITH BALKAN WAR.

Harriman Merger Decree Helped Decline from October High Mark.

New York, Jan. 5.—The summing up of results for the year just ended, to which last week was largely given up in the stock market, offered no more striking fact than the small net changes in the price level.

The average price of the most active stocks, in which the largest part of the year's dealings occurred, varied scarcely a point on Dec. 31 from Jan. 1 a year ago. In the interim nearly all departments of finance, commerce, industry, and agriculture had made new records of activity, volume, and values. From the year's high level of stock values in October, declines followed with the outbreak of the Balkan war and culminated early in December after the Supreme court decision against the Harriman railroad merger.

Market Free from Hindrances.

With the passing of the effect of these special influences, the problem of the stock market is the extent to which the factors of strength in the situation will be left free to assert themselves. Absence of speculative inflation being indicated, existing conditions seemingly leave a market free from complications which might interfere with its reflection of strength and improvement in general affairs.

The money market in New York showed that preparations for the yearly settlements had been ample to avert the expected stringency. The relaxation became so pronounced as to invite fresh requisitions on New York's resources from abroad, which was reflected in the rise in foreign exchange. The question is presented of the demands to be made on New York for help in meeting the obligations to follow the Balkan settlement.

U. S. Bond Issues Attractive.

Huge government bond issues at attractive terms, even if not placed in New York, may displace other holdings of Americans to supply capital resources for participation. With average bond prices in New York already near the low level for five years, the chances of enlisting new capital on terms of advantage to borrowers seem to promise little. Bond dealings last week expanded slightly, but the reinvestment demand, usual at this period, proved to be slight.

The most authoritative financial opinion maintains confidence in the year's prospects for continued activity and prosperity in trade. Orders in hand and in sight are believed to insure the business of the steel mills through the first half of the year.

"Occasional Wants"
In the Way of Service
And Who Supply Them

Remember the last time you wanted something done in rather a hurry—and couldn't think of the right man or firm to do it for you? Nobody seemed to have the definite information when you asked. There was no handy list to tell the desired name and address at a glance.

Probably it all meant some annoyance and loss of time—possibly discomfort and money loss.

This Tribune department is here to prevent such things. It appears once a week—on Monday morning. It is correct and up to the minute. It covers a wide range of service that is hardly advertised at all elsewhere.

Be sure to give yourself the benefit of it.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

"HE SAID THAT 'THE STAR' WENT INTO every home in Kansas City, into every man's home in Missouri and Kansas and into practically every state in the Union."

The above is part of the printed report of a case in a Kansas City Court of Law on Dec. 9, 1912, and the statement was unchallenged by any one, because every one there—the lawyers for the defense and the prosecution—knew that The Star does go into practically every home in Kansas City as well as a great many of the homes throughout the Great Southwest.

In Kansas City The Kansas City Star stands pre-eminent—it carries all the classified advertising of Kansas City and vicinity. If you would get the business of this rich field at the least effort and expense you must use The Star.

The Star is the paper in Kansas City in which the people read the ads.

January Sale of Undermuslins

Crepe de Chine Combinations, $5.95

Very Specially Priced

The special values offered at this sale illustrate the economy of anticipating one's needs when the purchasing power of money is the greatest. While our undermuslins are always reasonably priced, months are spent in planning values for our January sale that we often cannot duplicate, and which you will find it economy to take advantage of.

Crepe de Chine Combinations—A beautiful model formed of alternate strips of crepe de chine and German Val. lace; the straight drawer is opened at the side and trimmed with a wide edge of lace and ribbon bows. In a splendid quality of pink, blue or white crepe de chine. Special, $5.95.

Crepe de Chine Chemise-Pantalon—For evening wear, our own special model, cleverly designed to wear over the corset and tights with the narrow evening gown. Cut low, with ribbon straps over the shoulder and rubber in top, $8.75.

Chemise-Pantalon—Our own models, $1 to $3.75—The bottom of this garment is cleverly designed with a tab which buttons over, making a combination Chemise of it and peculiarly adapting it for wear over the corset with knitted undergarments.
